Three-Day 'Build-Blitz' For South Shore Habitat Home

South Shore Habitat for Humanity will team up with volunteers to conduct a three-day "blitz build" of a home at its new site at 95 Main St., Quincy Point.

The event will be held May 19-21, after which the entire exterior of the two-story, three-bedroom home will be complete. Local and state politicians are expected to join dozens of volunteers in contributing time and labor.

South Shore Habitat hopes that the Quincy "blitz build" will be proof that communities can come together to provide decent shelter for reponsible "working poor" families.

"This is not about square footage or light switches," this is about helping good families develop self-reliance, self-esteem and a sense of well-being," said Site Selection Chairwoman Mary Pottle.

A committee comprised of Quincy residents is already at work reviewing applications from local families. Once completed, the home will be sold at cost and financed through a long-term, interest-free mortgage. In return, the chosen family will invest 500 hours of sweat equity-time and labor into the construction of their home and a future South Shore Habitat project. The partnership reduces building costs, increases ownership pride and encourages the construction for more homes.

Those interested in volunteering or receiving an application for the Quincy house should call the South Shore Habitat office at 340-5992.

EPA: No PCB Risk

Salem Could Re-Open On Weekend

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The USS Salem could be re-opened by this weekend after a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency inspection found "no health risk to the public from PCBs."

"I expect to have all details worked out on Thursday to try to allow the opening of the museum (the USS Salem) this weekend, either Saturday or Sunday," Executive Director William MacMullen said Tuesday.

The results of an inspection of the ship by Kimberly Tisa, regional PCB coordinator for the EPA, buoyed MacMullen's hopes for the weekend re-opening.

"Based on our inspection of the ship last Friday and analytical random sampling results, we did not find a risk to the public from PCBs in areas of the ship which will be accessible for visitors," Tisa told The Quincy Sun.

The Quincy-built heavy cruiser, the centerpiece of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum at the Fore River Shipyard, was closed temporarily by Mayor James Sheets the day after it was re-commissioned into the Historic Naval Ships Museum System May 14.

The question of a possible PCBs problem had kept the museum closed.

MacMullen is scheduled to meet today (Thursday) with representatives from the MWRA, the Department of Environmental Protection and Green Environmental, the museum's environmental consultant, in Boston to secure approval for the weekend opening.

"I am really confident the ship will open soon because they (the MWRA and DEP) wouldn't be holding this meeting if they didn't feel comfortable," MacMullen said.

At today's meeting, MacMullen said he expects the MWRA, as the owner of the shipyard museum site, to grant permission for a waiver regarding the use of the museum site. The MWRA must okay the waiver before the waiver can be issued by the DEP.

$100,000 In Planned Improvements

Woolworth's Here To Stay

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Despite the coming of a Wal-Mart store in Quincy Point, Woolworth's is planning to stay in the city and spend an estimated $100,000 on improvements to its store on Hancock Street in the downtown.

Store Manager Donald Russell made the announcement after this week's meeting of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA).

Russell said the store is already in the process of having its registers computerized. It will also receive a full paint job on the inside that will probably begin sometime next week, he added, and there are also tentative plans to enlarge its basement.

The total cost of the work will be about $100,000 or even a bit more, Russell estimated.

Last year, Russell and other downtown merchants expressed concern about the coming of Wal-Mart. Russell suggested at the time that Woolworth's might have to close its downtown store--which has been at its current location since 1948--if Wal-Mart were given a permit for construction in the city, which eventually happened.

Some merchants said then they see Woolworth's as one of Quincy Center's major draws for shoppers and that their businesses would suffer losses if it closed.

Russell, however, seemed more upbeat about the situation this week.

"Woolworth's is in Quincy to stay," he said. "We've been around a long time, and we've seen a lot of things come and go. As far as we're concerned, Wal-Mart is just the newest upstart."

Russell said many customers have requested that the store offer evening hours--it is currently open 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. six days a week and noon to 5 p.m. on Sundays--and that he hopes QCBPA members soon will join together in a plan to keep their shops open later at night. He added that Woolworth's is currently in the first year of a five-year lease with its landlord, Faxon Trust of Quincy.

Another QCBPA member, Bernie Reisberg of Bernie's Modern Formal Shop, agreed with Russell's comments about evening hours and offered his analysis of the Woolworth's situation.

"It (improvements at Woolworth's) would be a great shot in the arm to the entire business community," he said. "It shows the kind of confidence that Woolworth's has in Quincy Center."

Council Cuts $220,000 From Budget

After two sessions, the City Council has cut $220,000 from Mayor James Sheets' proposed FY 96 $136.6 million municipal budget.

The council has the power to make cuts to the budget but cannot add to it. The budget must be finalized before the new fiscal year begins July 1.

At a budget session Monday, $100,000 was slashed from a proposed figure of $200,000 from temporary loan interests. In addition, $20,000 was cut from the suggested $420,000 pensions budget.

Other budgets discussed Monday night included those of the fire, treasurer's, auditor's and plumbing budgets.

At its first session last week, the council trimmed $100,000 from a proposed total of $800,000 for workers compensation. On that night a number of budgets were reviewed, including those of the building, library, and parks departments.

Several items have been put on hold until the conclusion of the budget sessions, most notably a total of about $226,000 to

At Least 126 Overbilled

Ambulance Co. Faces Audit

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A company that provides ambulance service to the city through Quincy Hospital will be audited as a result of improper billing practices.

The firm, Natick-based Norfolk-Bristol Ambulance Co., has admitted to at least 126 cases in which customers were mistakenly billed.

Atty. Daniel Raymondi of Quincy, who brought the matter to the city's attention, said this week an audit will be conducted at the request of Quincy Hospital Director/Chief Executive Officer Ralph DiPisa.

At press time, DiPisa could not be reached for comment. However, Nursing Director Doris Sinkevich, who chairs the hospital's committee on ambulatory affairs, said in a prepared statement that the hospital has selected Feeley & Driscoll, P.C., a Boston accounting firm, to conduct the audit.

The statement did not say whether the hospital or the ambulance company will pay for the audit, but it did note that the audit will cover the company's billing practices for the last four years.

The hospital's contract with the ambulance company states that it may call for an audit at any time.

Raymondi noted that

Bellotti, Mariano Lobby For MWRA Rate Relief In Washington

Reps. Michael Bellotti and Ronald Mariano and 30 other state legislators left for Washington, D.C. yesterday (Wednesday) to lobby for increases in financial assistance for MWRA ratepayers as well as a relaxation of federal regulations governing the Boston Harbor Cleanup project.

The trip follows the recent decision by the Massachusetts House of Representatives to provide approximately $35 million in direct state assistance to the MWRA (Massachusetts Water Resources Authority). The action came in the form of an amendment sponsored by members of the MWRA Legislative Caucus as the House debated its version of the state's Fiscal Year 1996 budget. The spending plan is now being reviewed by the Senate.

The appropriation was made possible through legislation co-sponsored by Bellotti, Mariano and Rep. Stephen Tobin which created the Commonwealth Sewer Rate Relief Fund.

Bellotti said the trip to Washington is the next step in the battle against skyrocketing MWRA water and sewer bills.

"Having met many of our goals at the state level by providing direct state aid, reducing the scope of several capital projects, and by controlling costs at the MWRA, we are now turning our attention towards garnering further federal participation in the Boston Harbor project," said Bellotti.

Besides meeting with members of Congress relative to funding issues, Bellotti said, "the delegation is scheduled to meet with senior officials at the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the Clinton Administration to seek regulatory relief. Having experienced initial success in legislating the MWRA to petition the EPA for project scalebacks which would save ratepayers over $1 billion, the MWRA Caucus will be advocating for final EPA approval of those changes as well as for greater flexibility in the manner spelled out in the federal mandates."

Because of a court order that the state must clean up Boston Harbor, MWRA ratepayers are currently paying some of the highest water and sewer bills in the country. Mariano said he thinks the situation is "unconscionable."

"Clearly, this issue remains one of our highest priorities," he said. "Understanding full well the need to address the state's public health and environmental infrastructure, we will continue the efforts to secure state funds, monitor every dollar spent by the MWRA, and work towards appropriate federal support."

MassPlan Ed. Loan Rate Among Lowest In U.S.

Middle-income families trying to finance the cost of a college education received some good news recently from State Sen. Michael Morrissey and the Massachusetts Educational Authority.

The not-for-profit state authority announced that the interest rate for the MassPlan fixed rate loan was set at 7.95 percent for the 1995-96 academic year. This is among the lowest fixed interest rates for educational loans in the country.

The MassPlan program, administered by the Massachusetts Educational Financing Authority, is designed for middle-income families who do not receive sufficient financial aid from traditional sources and who need help financing college costs.

"This loan program provides the opportunity for many middle-income families to access our outstanding Massachusetts colleges and universities, " said Morrissey.

The MassPlan program is offered directly to parents and students nationwide through 58 participating Massachusetts colleges and universities. With the fixed rate at 7.95 percent (APR 8.59), a family's monthly payment per $1,000 borrowed over 15 years would be an affordable $9.90.

Peter Mazareas, executive director of the authority, said, "Because we are a State Authority, we have a solid 12-year track record of providing low-interest college loans to thousands of middle-income families. The MassPlan is the best college financing option available and responds to a family's need for an affordable, straightforward way to plan and pay for college."

UPDATE ON PSA TESTING

Testing blood for the prostate-specific atigen (PSA) is a standard screening technique for prostate cancer in men. One of the problems with PSA testing has been that it can give a false positive - an indication of malignancy when none is actually present. Doctors at the Mayo Clinic are now suggesting a new way of evaluating PSA results that could help cut down on those errors. After studying PSA levels in hundreds of of cancer free men, the researchers have established guidelines for PSA that are adjusted for age. For example, a PSA level of up to 6.5 nanograms might be acceptable for a man over 70, while a test result of more than 2.5 nanograms could signal the need for further testing for a man in his 40s.

P.S. Healthy men produce increasing amounts of PSA as a normal part of aging.

Routine screening for prostate cancer is the best way to ensure early diagnosis. At COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE, we specialize in treating heart problems, hypertension and cholesterol. The Salem Is Safe

News stories with a negative spin and bold headlines sell newspapers.

So, it would seem, the Patriot Ledger's newsstand sales must have picked up a bit last week with its coverage of the USS Salem's temporary closing to visitors.

Especially last Thursday with the Page one lead story headlined in ominous, heavy type: "EPA: Ship poses PCB risk." (With dwarfed sub-head: Quincy mayor says Salem is safe.")

According to the story, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency said visitors should not have been allowed aboard the Salem after the recommissioning ceremony the Sunday before.

Frank McIntyre, identified as a spokesman for the EPA's Boston office, reportedly expressed concerns about PCBs below deck and was quoted as saying:

"The public shouldn't have to be put in a potential risk situation without knowing the full ramifications."

He said "potential risk"—not "risk."

But because PCBs (polychlorinated biphernyls) have been linked to cancer, the Ledger headline must have scared the hell out of those who did board the Salem that day.

And probably has scared off an unknown number of potential visitors who were planning to tour the ship when the museum opened but now have nagging second thoughts.

That headline was like a torpedo. It may not have sunk the museum, but it did some damage. How much, time will tell.

Interestingly, the following day, the Ledger had another Page One lead story on the museum with another bold headline: "Museum didn't heed warning." (With dwarfed sub-head: "EPA: Ship PCB threat probably not serious.")

This time, Kimberly Tisa, the EPA's PCB coordinator, reportedly said she had told William MacMullen, museum executive director, to confine visitors to the main deck that Sunday and not let anyone go below to the second deck until PCB testing is completed.

But she was quoted: "I wouldn't be overly concerned (about health problems). There weren't pools of PCBs (on the second deck)."

The PCBs, which had been checked before, are sheathed in paint or enclosed by metal and it was highly unlikely they would circulate in the air.

And, on Saturday, there was another Page one story with the headline: "Uncertainty plaques USS Salem museum." (Dwarfed sub-head: "Officials fear closing will diminish returns.")

That story reported environmental, financial and organizational concerns, lengthy background information on MacMullen and reference to the USS Lexington which the city had tried to get before the Salem.

But you had to read down 23 paragraphs and over onto Page 37 to find this paragraph:

"But an Environmental Protection Agency official said it is unlikely that the people who toured the retired Navy cruiser last weekend were exposed to toxic PCBs."

It then quotes Tisa: "Based on what we saw today (Friday, after a three-hour inspection of the ship), I don't believe there was a problem."

We are not trying to tell the Ledger how to run their newspaper but from a fairness standpoint something seems to be editorially out of whack here.

McIntyre's comments rated Page One and a bold negative headline.

But Tisa's positive comments on one day got only another dwarfed sub-head. More positive comments on the second day got no headline at all.

Why not at least one positive lead headline something like: "EPA: We See No Problem." In size equal to the one that read: "EPA: Ship poses PCB risk."

Besides being fair, it would have helped calm the fears of those who thought they risked cancer by going aboard the Salem on commissioning day.

And help undo the damage done to the ship's and museum's image and future.

The ship has had a number of environmental tests and passed them. The results of air tests for toxic chemicals are pending. These tests, it should be noted, are in the areas that will not be open to the public.

A lot of people have worked hard to bring the Salem to Quincy including Mayor James Sheets and MacMullen. No one has worked harder than the latter.

Some mistakes have been made. And more may be. There have been a few misjudgments and unfinished paper work. Opening this museum is like starting up a new business. Wrinkles have to be ironed out.

Contained PCBs are no threat to the public. And no one is running around dumping PCBs on the Salem's decks.

The museum was temporarily closed by Sheets not because of a PCB threat but to give the museum staff more time to prepare for handling tours.

The EPA has found no PCB danger aboard the Salem.

And would the U.S. Navy have taken a ship out of mothballed isolation at the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard and let it become the main attraction of a museum in Quincy if visitors going aboard risked cancer?

It's time to put a positive spin on the story and give the Salem a fighting chance for success.

Here's starting that positive spin: Tisa told The Sun Tuesday that her inspection found "no health risk to the public from PCBs."

And the Salem could be re-opened for visitors this weekend.

The Salem is safe.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1933 postcard view of Hancock Street in Norfolk Downs looking south from in front of the North Quincy branch library. The cafe on the left is now a parking lot. The Paige auto dealer further down on the left later became Fratus Pontiac and is today the Hancock Florist Shop. On the right the U.S. flag is flying over the Atlas Hardware store. The house in the distance that appears to be in the middle of Hancock St. was in front of the old Boston Gear Works office building and is now the site of Shuster Inc.

Suggests Formation Of Site Plan Review Board

Dear Quincy Planning Board members:

At the May 10 meeting of the Quincy Citizens and Wollaston Park Associations, our members voted to oppose the rezoning of city-owned land on Quarry Street from open space to Business "B."

The area in question is called the "North Commons" and is referred to in the Quincy Historical Society's Fall 1990 No. 24 issue as "The North Commons Quarry Land."

Several years ago, the land was zoned as open space for its use as a public park, when funding became available for its landscaping. Now, possibly, federal or state funds might be available for its use as "Abigail Adams Park" at this summit location, making it a real treat on Quincy's Historic Trail for visitors with its exception view of Boston Harbor.

According to the front-page story in the May 14 Boston Globe, "Article 97 of the General Laws requires a two-thirds vote of the Legislature when a city or town wants to transfer land acquired for conservation, open space, parks or recreational purposes to another owner or use." So, at this time, the City of Quincy cannot legally sell the Quarry Street land without a two-thirds vote of the Legislature!

Most West Quincy residents have not been aware that the Quarry Street open space was for sale by the city. Therefore, for the purpose of receiving a broader-based input on issues pertaining to future neighborhood matters on May 10, our associations voted to propose a change in the city ordinance to adopt a "Site Plan Review Board." We hope you agree with us.

Quincy Should Be Concerned About Braintree Dam Rebuilding

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On April 13, The Patriot Ledger reported a meeting in Braintree regarding the rebuilding of the Braintree Dam to protect sections of that town and the City of Quincy. In the article, no names of persons from the Quincy administration or elected officials were mentioned to have attended the meeting.

Quincy should be very concerned about the rebuilding of the dam. A break in the dam would not only affect South Quincy, but all the way to the Town River. I have been a resident of South Quincy for 92 years, a half-mile from the Braintree line, and never thought about the danger from the Braintree Dam.

Many new residents are in South Quincy, and they may not know the dam exists. Property valuation is also affected. The rebuilding is urgent and should be started soon, instead of being dragged out for many years like the Town Brook Tunnel.

Bellotti To Run For Governor

By PAUL HAROLD

Francis Bellotti told a crowd of 1500 at a fundraiser at the Sheraton-Boston that he would officially announce his candidacy for governor in two weeks.

May 25 - 31
1970
25 Years Ago

He said he expected the June 12 Democratic Convention at Amherst to go beyond the first ballot when he could expect to pick up delegate support. "After the first ballot, it will be an open convention," he said.

He also questioned Mayor Kevin White's delegate strength, noting that Senate President Maurice Donahue had the early lead among party officials, not the mayor.

Regardless of the outcome of the endorsing convention, Bellotti said he'd be on the September primary ballot.

200 WELCOME NEW CENTRAL BAPTIST PASTOR

Two hundred parishioners, friends and clergy from the South Shore attended the reception at Central Baptist Church to welcome Rev. and Mrs. Franklin McKerron to Quincy.

Walter Peterson, deacon and vice moderator, served as master of ceremonies and read a letter from Mayor James McIntyre.

Rev. McKerron resigned his position as director of alumni affairs at Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary, Wenham, to take the pastor's job. He said he would continue the Sunday evening religious broadcasts on Boston radio station WMEX, that were part of the church's outreach ministry for 29 years.

LATEST RADIO SYSTEM FOR QUINCY POLICE

With the purchase of $87,000 in the latest Motorola radio system, the Quincy Police Department became one of the first in the nation to benefit from funding from the Federal Highway Safety Act.

The new communications had seven channels of ultra high frequency, including a "scrambler" to prevent eavesdropping with outside receivers. One channel was tied into Quincy City Hospital to enable police cruisers to respond directly to medical assistance emergencies.

The system was designed to expand for additional channels in the future, including a mobile teleprinter connecting the city with state, New England and national law enforcement networks.

The committee, which is composed of residents and the affected business community, is seeking public input on the $6 million, 1500-foot concourse project that would link part of Hancock Street with Burgin Parkway.

CAC Chairman David Ezickson, a Quincy public school teacher, said the committee needs input from the entire public and particularly from senior citizens living in private dwellings or high rise facilities in the area of the roadway. The Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women will hold a benefit Walk-A-Thon for DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) on Sunday, June 4, rain or shine.

Registration will start at 8 a.m. at Quincy City Hall. Mayor James Sheets, the grand marshal, will kick off the event at 9 a.m. Norfolk County DA William Delahunt will address the participants and supporters at the end of the walk at Marina Bay in Squantum.

Event organizers said the walk-a-thon has two main purposes: to heighten awareness of domestic violence as a social problem and to secure funds necessary to sustain a safe haven for victims of domestic violence.

Revenue generated from the walk will go into the DOVE's general fund.

Pledge sheets for participants can be obtained from any member of Commission, the Mayor's Office, or the North Quincy library. The first 50 people who turn in pre-paid pledge sheets with $50 or more in pledges will receive a free Walk for DOVE t-shirt.

Pledge sheets and/or t-shirt order forms along with payment to The Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, P.O. Box 2148, Quincy, MA 02169. Make checks payable to Friends of the Commission.

To volunteer or to purchase a t-shirt for $10, call 471-3072, 340-1732 or 649-5142.

Mariano Tours Deer Island Facility

In an effort to monitor every rate payer dollar spent by the MWRA, Rep. Ronald Mariano recently toured the Deer Island Treatment Plant.

Mariano was joined by many of his colleagues from the MWRA Legislature Caucus in taking the opportunity to get a firsthand look at the $3.5 billion project.

"As homeowners and businesses struggle under the burden of skyrocketing water and sewer bills. I firmly believe that they have the right to know where their money is going and that it is not being frivolously spent," said Mariano. "To this end, I will continue my efforts by working with the MWRA Legislative Caucus, State Auditor, Inspector General and the Legislature's Committee on Post Audit and Oversight to ensure that ratepayer monies are only dedicated to meet the environmental mandates driving this project."

The inspection tour was hosted by MWRA Executive Director Doug MacDonald, who provided the group with details of the project's status as well as its future. Mariano has been working with the MWRA in an effort to reduce the scale and costs of the overall project.

One such effort is a reassessment of the number of secondary treatment batteries at the Deer Island Plant.

The downsizing from four batteries to three is possible because projected wastewater flow is less than was estimated during the planning process in 1988. The new plan would reduce costs by approximately $170 million. The Environmental Protection Agency, which must make the final decision as to whether the downsizing will allow the MWRA to meet federal environmental compliance goals, is currently reviewing the matter.

In addition to pursuing the scale back possibility, Mariano said he and the MWRA Caucus have enjoyed past success in scaling back other portions of the project, as well as securing over $100 million in state ratepayer relief funds.

Restaurant License Granted Despite Nearby Restaurant Objection

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License Board heard a complaint from Raymond Yee, owner of a Chinese restaurant on Billings Rd., who was trying to get the board to deny a license to Hong Hanh Thi Nguyen to open a restaurant called Saigon Panda at 49 Billings Rd.

Speaking before the board at Tuesday's meeting, Yee said "business is tough enough as it is", and was afraid that another eating establishment nearby would hurt his business.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, who chaired Tuesday's meeting in the absence of Chairman Joseph Shea told Mr. Yee that "competition is what makes this country great"

Gorman said although he "sympathized" with Mr. Yee, it was not a "valid reason for the board to deny a license".

Before the board took their vote, Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers who said he had "concerns about the traffic and congestion" in the area reported that some adjustments were made with the traffic commissioner, to rectify the problems. Ayers said that pick-ups and drop offs would be done in the rear of the building to eliminate some of the congestion.

Ayers noted that the establishment would be remain open until 9:30 p.m. weekdays and 10:30 p.m. on weekends and commented, "I can work with these hours".

Atty. George Burke, representing Mr. Nguyen said the restaurant would feature Vietnamese and Asian foods. and said he had conferred with the traffic division and was "satisfied regarding the issue of traffic.".

The board voted unanimously in favor of the request.

Nominations Sought For Ayers Councillor's Award Program

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce J. Ayers announces the fourth annual councillor's award program which recognizes an exemplary child of middle school age living in Ward 6.

Ayers said he recognizes that the middle school years are very important in terms of the development of a child, and he feels that providing positive reinforcement is invaluable.

"It is my hope that this award helps to set an example for younger students as well as for the peers of the award recipient, giving them an incentive to work to the best of their ability in school and to take an active role in the community," he said.

The winner will receive a $100 savings bond along with an award which will be presented July 4 at the Squantum playground after the parade.

Anyone who knows of a student who they believe to be worthy of this award should submit a written explanation of why the students is deserving. The award recipient will be judged on his/her academic achievement and contribution to the community.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Taking Back Your Neighborhood

If crime has a strong grip on a neighborhood, it's hard to take the first steps toward reclaiming your streets.

People are afraid that if they act, criminals will take revenge. You can counter this fear, and protect each other, by working closely with police and organizing group activities--there's safety in numbers. You may want to meet outside the neighborhood at first.

Neighborhoods across the country have used these tactics to take a stand against drugs and violence.

•Ask police for help in forming a Neighborhood Watch program. You will be taught how to write down license plate numbers and descriptions of suspected dealers. How to video activities you believe are suspicious and then pass this information along to the police.

•Use a bullhorn or loudspeaker to broadcast "drug dealers on the block. Police are being notified."

•Make public your dissatisfaction with businesses, including restaurants and bars, that ignore drug dealing. Do the same to stores that sell drug paraphernalia, such as pipes or rolling papers.

•Organize clean-up campaigns to sweep litter and drug paraphernalia off the streets, clean off or paint over graffiti, plant flowers and trees, and repair broken equipment in playgrounds.

•Make young people part of your neighborhood improvement team. Find other creative, constructive activities for youth, especially teens.

•Put up large colorful banners or signs that warn drug dealers that residents are watching for crime and reporting it to the police.

•March or organize a vigil to demonstrate that community's will to drive out drug dealers and other criminals.

•Make sure the newspapers and television cover this good news--show the world that neighbors and police care and are taking action.

Use good judgement when faced with problems of illegal drug use or sales or other criminal activity in your neighborhood. Think about how you can report a drug problem without subjecting yourself to retaliation.

Tests Show Salem Safe From PCBs

The USS Salem was tested for PCBs while berthed in Philadelphia and would not have been released by the Navy if there had been a health risk, according to the executive director of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum.

William MacMullen, who led the effort to bring the Salem home to Quincy as a floating museum, said the Navy and Environmental Protection Agency have an agreement regarding ship donation and PCBs.

"The Navy cooperates fully with the EPA to make sure that the ships that are given out really pose no health risk. That's why they don't give out nuclear submarines because they're loaded with all sorts of hazardous materials.

"If the Navy had thought that ship posed any health risks, they would have never let it leave 'Philadelphia," he added.

PCBs, polychlorinated biphenyls, were routinely used as an insulating fluid in electrical equipment in the 1940s, when Navy ships including the USS Salem were built.

The first step in determining the PCB level was taken in August, 1993, when MacMullen met with EPA representatives and a PCB expert for the EPA, Dr. John Smith, on board the Salem in Philadelphia.

"We went through the Salem and did a number of swipe tests, approximately 54 of them throughout the ship," MacMullen explained. "What they wanted to determine was if there were any PCBs on the ship they wanted to know where they were, so that we could put together a maintenance plan on how to deal with them."

The PCB analysis plan showed there were seven areas on ship that had PCBs, MacMullen said.

"We had to go back and identify with the EPA where these areas were and see what kind of a risk and what kind of a maintenance plan we had to put together for them," he continued. "We came back and did all the tests and found there were seven areas that showed there was some kind of detection of PCBs and the detection levels for these were lower than what you would normally need for approval but they still wanted to make sure this was done right."

MacMullen signed a compliance agreement with the Navy and EPA which was part of the contract awarding the museum the ship.

"It says we will produce a maintenance plan and we'll put together a training manual for people working on the ship and that prior to opening we will retest the seven areas after all the cleanup has been done just to see what the levels were," MacMullen said.

The seven areas re-tested for PCBs were:

•Inside lubricating oil within the anchor windlass room on the second deck. Regardless of the PCB test result here, MacMullen said that area would not be open to visitors because it contains heavy machinery.

•Inside four radar repeaters near the bridge and superstructure. The PCBs were found inside the radar's capacitors (transitors) which are painted with PCB insulator.

•Inside oil found in machine shop. "Philadelphia Naval shipyard people cleaned that up. That was clean when we took the ship over," MacMullen said.

•Radar sweep in the the Combat Information Center (CIC) which also had PCB insulating paint inside the capacitor.

The museum hired Green Environmental, Inc. of Quincy to put together the maintenance plan and they did. All of these things were submitted to the EPA back in April, MacMullen said.

In early May, Kimberly Tisa, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's regional PCB coordinator, walked through the ship with MacMullen.

On May 8, after walking through the ship, Tisa ordered another series of swipe tests on those same seven areas "so that we can see what the levels are just to make sure they are below any detectable limit," MacMullen said.

The latest swipe tests showed the seven areas did not pose a PCB risk, the director said. The minimum safety level is 10 and the highest reading of the seven tested areas was 7.2 on the floor of the machine shop which is off limits to the public. The other readings were substantially lower. Some of the readings are from tests as recent last week.

Tisa and MacMullen also went though every space on the ship's tour route. "We went from the top all the way down to the bottom, the entire length and width of the ship. We went through every space on the tour route.

"She said you have no problems here. You don't have any detectable levels of any PCBs," MacMullen said.

Essentially, the waiver will allow visitors to the site and give permission for visitors to walk from the museum parking lot to the Salem. The waiver allows the museum site zoning to be changed from industrial to commercial-tourism without waiting on a 21-public comment period.

Twenty-one days after the waiver is issued, the re-zoning will become official.

"This is actually a safer use for the site," MacMullen said. "We're not creating any hazards."

The EPA indicated Tuesday the agency will give the Salem permission to open to the pubic soon since the ship does not pose a health risk to visitors.

"The areas looked to be clean (from PCBs) and they shouldn't be a problem. These are the areas which are going to be open to the public. I am comfortable saying that based on the results and inspections we've done there aren't any areas that are considered problematic which will be open to the public," Tisa said.

MacMullen said the original tour route has checked out as being safe from PCBs. There are three other areas of the ship, the flag plot, tactical plot, and anchor windlass room, have not checked out because results from air monitoring tests are unknown.

"If these come back okay, they'll be able to physically open these rooms," Tisa said.

The windlass room, MacMullen said, will remain closed to the public regardless of the test results because the room contains heavy machinery. If the air is safe, the room will be screened off and visitors will be allowed to peer inside the room from the outside, MacMullen said.

According to a series of "swipe tests" for PCBs the Salem is not a health risk. The tests determined there are seven locations on the ship that have PCBs but that their levels are below the minimum safety level of 10. The highest reading was 7.2 while all others were significantly lower.

MacMullen said the Salem was checked by the Navy for PCBs last August. The Navy would not have released the ship if the government had believed the Salem posed a health hazard.

"We've known for over a year that the ship had no PCB problem nor health problems. It was just a matter of documentation that was holding things up.

"There was never any health hazards and the EPA has backed us up with their own pronouncement. It's too bad we got adverse publicity . . . but the public will be pleasantly surprised when they visit this ship," MacMullen said.

The director said he had hoped to have a letter from the EPA stating the Salem is safe before his meeting today.

If all goes according to plan, the Salem will be ready to receive visitors either Saturday or Sunday. MacMullen said the ship will be open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily. Tours will stop at 6 p.m.

Tickets, which will be purchased on the quarterdeck aboard ship, will cost $5 for adults and $3 for children under 12 and senior citizens. Plans are in the works for a permanent ticket booth at the museum gate on Wharf St.

Visitors can access the museum via Wharf St. which is located between the Fore River Bridge (southbound side) and Nicole's Restaurant at the Quincy Point traffic rotary.

MacMullen has asked Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon to post museum signs directing visitors to the Salem.

Groups of 10 or more are encouraged to call ahead to schedule their visit "so that we can give them special treatment," MacMullen said. For museum information, call 479-7900.

The museum will place 13 staff and volunteers aboard ship during visiting hours to assist guests. "We'll build up that number as time goes on," MacMullen said, adding he thinks the first official opening weekend should be positive.

"I think there'll be a lot more visitors than we think. This is going to be a very successful museum," MacMullen said. As an indication of its economic impact, the director noted Nicole's Restaurant sold out of food Sunday, May 14, the day of the museum's commissioning.

Officials had hoped to open the Salem, a 717-foot Quincy-built heavy cruiser which once served as the Flagship of the Sixth Fleet, on May 15, the day after the commissioning. However, MacMullen said a series of paperwork problems caused a setback.

The delay, in at least one instance, has been a blessing in disguise, the director said. The army of dedicated volunteers and staff, who had worked virtually around-the-clock preparing the ship for visitors for three months, were physically and emotionally drained by the day of the museum's commissioning.

"Some of our workers were busy right up to the time of the commissioning ceremony. The staff really got the rest they needed," MacMullen said.

Attractive Lighting Good Selling Point For House

One improvement to your home that has both an immediate and future benefit is attractive lighting.

"Whether you're in the process of selling your home or not, appropriate lighting in your home can brighten rooms, accent architectural features and furnishings and leave a favorable impression," said James N. Stamos, president of the Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors.

There are several types of lighting, each with a different purpose and effect to consider when updating your lighting scheme. Remember that rooms need different lighting based on your family's activities.

Ambient or general lighting is the overall or background lighting in your home. It is key that it be without glare and evenly dispersed. Pay attention to the colors and textures of walls, ceilings and floors. Light playing off certain colors can vary the effect. As a general rule, reflecting surfaces should not be too dark, ceilings should be a light color, regardless of texture, and walls should be only slightly darker than ceilings.

Local lighting is that light needed for specific tasks such as reading, cooking and sewing. These tasks can cause eye strain, so effective lighting is essential. Accent lighting also can be used to pinpoint or bathe a particular area in light.

"Since the kitchen often is the most frequented room in the house, and cooking requires a well-lighted area, it should be brighter than most rooms," said Stamos.

Kitchens may require both general and local lighting. For general lighting, luminous ceiling light is ideal. Fluorescent light fixtures placed under cabinets supplies bright shadowless light for detailed tasks and is energy efficient.

Another room that needs bright lighting the bathroom. Fluorescent lights are effective because people need to see well for putting on makeup, shaving and reading medicine bottles.

Although overhead lighting may be sufficient for bedrooms, you may prefer several table lamps with switches by the door and on the lamp itself for easy accessibility. You also might want to consider a lamp that is adjustable for reading, perhaps one that can be mounted on a bedside table or on the wall above the bed. A swing-arm, wall-mounted lamp is perfect.

Versatile lighting in the family room makes any activity possible. Lamps that hang from the ceiling with adjustable height or pivotal ceiling fixtures are options. A ceiling fan lamp is a great combination of air and light, especially in the commonly-used room.

"Besides its practical uses, lighting is a popular way of setting the mood in the various rooms of your home," Stamos said.

Torchiers placed around the outside walls of the dining room give the room an elegant look, as light battles the upper portions of the room. Of course, a chandelier in the dining room can determine the mood for the whole room as well as reflect your personal style.

Artwork can be displayed more prominently with spot lighting using specially designed art lights that attach to the frame of the picture. Decorative corners with knick-knacks or planters also can be brought into sharper focus with spot lighting. Wall sconces work beautifully to make hallways decorative and more interesting.

"Since energy efficiency is a concern, knowing which types of lighting save energy is useful," said Stamos. "The most efficient light source is fluorescent using 75 percent less energy and lasting up to 10 times longer than other types of lighting."

Another tip for saving energy is to use motion sensor lights for areas outside your home such as near the garage or back porch. Lights turn on as you approach, rather than being used for hours at a time. Many people like to leave one or two lights on when they are away from home. Stamos suggested using timers.

"Timers can save energy while giving the impression your house is occupied," he said.

There are no absolutes in the decisions regarding lighting in your home. It is a matter of taste as much as anything else, but remember: you work hard to make your home beautiful, so show it off with appropriate lighting.

Quincy 2000 interim Executive Director Joseph Mannarino announced Tuesday the establishment of a $100,000 pool to collateralize loans for low- and moderate-income applicants to the Quincy 2000 Loan Pool.

The new collateralizing program will enable low- and moderate-income business owners who meet all the Loan Pool's qualifications - except the ability to collateralize their loan request - to be given access to the loan pool.

"Low and moderate business owners with sound business plans and good credit histories are now able to apply to the Loan Pool despite their inability to completely collateralize their loans," said Mannarino.

JOSEPH MANNARINO

"Quincy 2000 will use the $100,000 to set aside loan guarantees in varied amounts to be used as partial collateral for business development," he said.

"In the fall of 1992, when business leaders and I created the Quincy 2000 Corporation, we had no idea it would be so successful and entrepreneurial," he said.

The Quincy 2000 Loan Pool is designed to fill the funding gap for micro-enterprises and larger businesses that have the potential to increase employment opportunities in the city of Quincy. Typically these businesses have little credit available and require loans not handled by conventional while he is happy the company has taken action on the matter, he feels the audit must be done quickly and efficiently so that a plan may be formulated to reimburse the Quincy residents who have paid unnecessarily for ambulance service. He added that the 126 cases the company has discovered likely are not the only instances where people were wrongly billed.

Ambulance Co. Faces Quincy Hospital Audit

"That's probably just the tip of the iceberg," he said. "I think we're going to find a significant number of individuals who have paid and need to be reimbursed. I'm convinced that it's a serious problem in the City of Quincy, and I'm sure a lot of people are still paying bills."

Raymondi said he has been contacted by other clients with similar billing discrepancies since he first discovered the problem.

The city began to look into the matter earlier this month after Raymondi told City Solicitor McGrath and The Quincy Sun that at least two of his clients have been wrongfully charged by Norfolk-Bristol. Raymondi said the clients were charged despite language in the ambulance contract which clearly indicates that their health insurance situations ensure that they should not have been billed for the company's services.

McGrath told The Sun after reviewing documents provided by Raymondi that there appeared to be a legitimate problem and subsequently contacted DiPisa. The hospital then contacted Norfolk-Bristol.

Norfolk-Bristol President Robert Zammito Jr. responded with a letter dated May 11 which stated that he had brought the matter to the company's billing office.

"I was distressed to learn that on 1-13-95 approximately 2,000 claims were sent to collection, of which 126 were Quincy claims sent in error," he wrote.

Zammito could not be reached for comment at press time, but has told The Sun that the company is open-minded about an audit. The company has served Quincy since February 1990.

Tentative Settlement Reached In Five-Year-Old Case

City Offers Plumbing Inspector $250,000 In Back Wages, Benefits

Quincy Plumbing Inspector Ralph Maher may get $250,000 in back wages and benefits under a proposed settlement from the city.

Mayor James Sheets said last week he wants to pay the money to comply with a state Civil Service Commission ruling rather than continue a fight with Maher that has bounced from the commission to the courts and back again. The mayor is out of the city this week.

Sheets said the city has negotiated a "reasonable" settlement with Maher that "will not incur any more financial liability for the city in the future." He added that Maher's attorney and the city came to the tentative agreement, which will need City Council approval.

At press time, Maher could not be reached for comment.

Maher, who was fired in 1989 in connection with ethics charges, was rehired last summer when the mayor chose not to appeal a Civil Service Commission ruling that Maher be reinstated "without loss of compensation."

However, Maher filed a lawsuit against the city last December when negotiations over the settlement reached a standstill. The issue was whether Quincy could deduct any of the income that he earned during the five years he was not a city employee.

The settlement figure of $250,000 is less than the sum Maher sought in his suit. He had been attempting to receive $255,378 in wages and $43,037 in benefits as well as 12 percent interest.

Sheets noted that while the city could fight in court for a lower amount, the case has already lasted for more than five years and there is no guarantee the city would win.

City Council President Michael Cheney said he thinks the $250,000 settlement will easily pass the council. He added that in all likelihood the council will vote on the matter at next week's meeting.

Maher was fired by then-Mayor Francis McCauley in September 1989. The city charged him with nine conflict of interest violations and said they constituted "acts of moral turpitude" on the job. Subsequently, the charges were reduced to two.

Two years ago, a Boston Municipal Court judge found that Maher committed only a technical violation of the state ethics law on one count and dismissed the other. The matter was then sent back to the Civil Service Commission.

The first charge was that in 1988, Maher inspected plumbing in the basement of a house being built on land that he was selling. The second involved the granting of a plumbing permit for another property two years earlier.

Council Cuts $220,000 From Proposed Budget

hire eight full-time parking attendants as part of Sheets' plan to have the city assume management of its two Quincy Center parking areas at the start of the new fiscal year. The parking system has been managed by a private company for many years.

Two more sessions are scheduled for May 31 and June 5. Budgets that have yet to be reviewed include those of the police and public works departments, mayor's office, council and the school department, the last of which originally was scheduled for Monday's session.

Councillors have said they are trying to avoid raising taxes this year, something Sheets has said will almost certainly be necessary to compensate for the new budget. The mayor is calling for a 2.2 percent or approximately $3 million increase over last year's budget because of increases in the school and parks departments, vacancies in the fire and police departments, and because city contracts will soon be up for renegotiation.

inland portions of Wollaston, South Quincy, and inland sections of Quincy Point.

Applications will be made Thursdays in selected areas of Quincy, east of Route 3A which may include some of the following neighborhoods: Squantum, Atlantic, Norfolk Downs, coastal Wollaston, Merrymount, Houghs Neck, Germantown and coastal Quincy Point.

Not all areas as described above will be entirely sprayed on a given date. Attempts will be made to spray as large an area of western Quincy on Tuesdays, and as large an area of eastern Quincy on Thursdays. The spraying will occur between the hours of 3 and 6:30 a.m. only if mosquito populations warrant an application.

If inclement weather occurs, or equipment fails, the application will be added to the next scheduled day, or rescheduled for the following day.

Dockham To Organize Speed Watch Program

Ward 5 city council candidate Dennis Dockham announces he will organize a speed watch in an effort to make vehicular and pedestrian traffic safer on Quincy streets.

"My committee has inquired to Sgt. Cardarelli of the Quincy Police Department Traffic Division. We found that although we have signs to indicate a speed watch there is not one presently organized.

"I propose and will seek to meet with a representative of the Quincy Police Department Traffic Division and our traffic engineer to organize a speed watch not only in Ward 5, but throughout the city," Dockham said.

"If I receive the cooperation of these officials, a form letter would be drafted and set to those in violation of the traffic laws. For this plan to work I need you, the citizens, who feel the same as I do about our traffic situation to get involved.

"All too often we depend on the mayor's office to solve our problems," Dockham said. "Please join me in a concern that we all have city-wide. Once the ground work has been laid for this plan my committee will inform you on how to become involved.

"I look forward to working with all of you on this very serious issue," he added.

After Dramatic Win Over Silver Lake

NQ Pounded By Weymouth

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

Things did not go as planned at Adams Field on Monday as North Quincy High School's baseball team suffered their worst loss of the season, an 18-3 drubbing at the hands of Weymouth High School.

North (4-9) tried again yesterday (Wednesday) at league-leading Bridgewater-Raynham. Today, North will try to get even with cross-town rival Quincy. The Presidents defeated the Red Raiders, 4-0, earlier this season.

The Weymouth power began early and continued throughout the game as they scored runs in every inning. Most came as a result Raider errors and missed plays. The remainder came on timely hits by the Wildcat batters. The biggest inning for Weymouth was the fourth when they collected six runs to add to their rising total.

Even though North Quincy's pitching has been one of the strong points of the year, Joe McCarthy found it difficult to keep the game in control as he fell behind early. He worked four innings, gave up 12 runs on 10 hits, and struck out five. Jesse Casler pitched the last three innings, giving up six runs on five hits while striking out two.

The Red Raiders kept the game close in the second inning. Trailing 3-0, Tim Zaniboni led off with a single. Two outs later, singles by McCarthy and Jeremy Neilson loaded the bases. John Conlin and Steve Heroux then reached on errors, driving in Zaniboni and McCarthy, respectively.

North Quincy scored again in the fifth when Conlin led off with a walk and scored on a Steve Koch double - the longest ball hit by a Red Raider batter all day - to close out North's scoring.

Their only other signs of offense came in the fourth inning when Sean Dolbeare walked after entering the game at the catching position earlier that inning; and in the seventh inning when Casler walked on four pitches, stole second, and advanced to third on a wild pitch.

The Raiders fans in attendance were still buzzing about their teams incredible 2-1 victory over Silver Lake on Friday in a game that took 13 innings to complete.

Dolbeare was the story of the game, pitching all 13 innings, giving up only four hits and striking out 13 Lakers batters. He also drove in the winning run in the 13th inning. He singled with two outs, driving in Koch. Koch walked to lead off the inning and advanced to third on a Zaniboni single.

Silver Lake broke a scoreless tie in the 11th with an unearned run. North Quincy struck back with the tying run in the bottom of the inning. Dolbeare walked, stole second, advanced to third on a Conlin single and scored on a Brian Beaton sacrifice fly.

The great defense by North was aided by three putouts by catcher Mike Hannaford.

Quincy Faces Hectic Schedule

The young Quincy High baseball team faces a flurry of activity this week as their season of inconsistency comes to a close.

The Presidents (5-10) battle North Quincy today (Thursday) at Adams Field. Quincy captured a 4-0 win in the first meeting of the season between the intra-city rivals. They were scheduled to host Silver Lake yesterday and play at Plymouth South Tuesday in a make-up of a rained-out contest.

There is also the chance that the Presidents will play a double-header this Monday against Falmouth. Both scheduled contests between the two clubs earlier in the season were rained out. "Right now the talk is of a possible double-header on Monday, but nothing has been set," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia.

In their most recent contest Monday at Barnstable, Quincy jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first inning before dropping an 11-5 decision.

Sylvia felt the game was indicative of the way things have gone for his sophomore- and junior-laden club all year.

"Right now we're not dinging and donging," he said. "We're getting good hitting one game and not the pitching. Then we get good pitching and no hitting. We're paying the price of being an inexperienced team; a team with a lot of sophomores with little varsity experience."

The Quincy infield featured three sophomores - third baseman Bobby Walsh, shortstop Mark Glynn and first baseman Mike Russo - for much of the season. Junior Jeff Russell has handled the chores at second base.

The Presidents boast only a handful of seniors: left fielder Steve Barrett, first baseman/designated hitter/pitcher Shaun Kivlin and DH/pitcher Chris DeLisle. Barrett is the only everyday, fulltime senior on the squad.

"Sometimes it has been frustrating because we see glimpses of what will be for our team, but we're not their yet," said the coach.

Particularly frustrating for Sylvia has been his team's inability to get good wood on the ball; Quincy's current batting average is around .210.

Sylvia summed up the season with five games left to play: "I thought we'd be more in contention at this point, but we haven't got the consistency. If we snuck into the tourney it would be a plus, but, either way, I think we have a lot to look forward to in the Quincy baseball program."

Triple A

Spillane & Epstein Strong In Early Season Play

Spillane & Epstein opened the season impressively, winning four straight games in Triple A action.

So far, the pitching has been a surprise, as Dave Buckley is the only returning starter from last year's team. Buckley earned the victories in an 11-6 win over Hurley Insurance and a 17-2 win over Local 2222.

Dean Zoia, Steve Joyce, Justin Kiley and Joey Scribi each hit the ball well in the win over Hurley. Erik Healy, Ryan Stoeckel and William Eisan played well on defense.

Against Local 2222, Buckley fanned 11 batters while Stoeckel, Zoia, Buckley and Joyce belted out three hits apiece. Steve Barbuto, Steve Harvie, Eisan and Scribi posted two hits each. In the fifth inning, Buckley, Stoeckel and Joyce combined for a fantastic defensive play which wowed all those in attendance.

In a 11-10 win over Quincy PAL, Zoia clubbed two triples while Stoeckel, Eisan and Joyce stroked two hits each. Dan Wooster also recorded a base hit. Zoia was the winning pitcher and he was backed by the standout defense of Harvie, Charles Pistorina and Darryl Zoia.

Eisan, a superb utility player, pitched in a 13-8 win over Locker Room and struck out nine batters.

Buckley led the offense with three base hits. Dean Zoia, Andy Tam and Kiley had two each.

Flavin & Flavin battled back from a 9-0 deficit against Kenny Lock to take a 10-9 lead, but they gave up three runs in the last inning and lost 12-10.

John Mooney pitched well for Flavin and nailed a three-bagger Brian French posted one hit and played well in left field. Anthony Tsina was superb at shortstop and scored three runs for Flavin.

Bregoli Member Of AAU N.E. Mariners Baseball Team

Chris Bregoli, 14, of Wollaston, has been selected to play for the New England Mariners AAU/Jr. Olympic, 14-year-old baseball team.

He captured one of 20 spots on the team by competing against 60 other boys from across New England. This will be Bregoli's second time playing for the Mariners, having been selected to play for the 13-year-old team last year.

Bregoli, known for his gun-like arm and skill with the stick, led the 13-year-old team in hitting in last year's national tournament in Des Moines, Iowa, where they finished fifth in the nation. This year he is looking to play mostly in the outfield with some time at second base.

Bregoli and the Mariners will compete in the 14-year-old national tournament in Coco Beach, Fla. from Aug. 3-12.

He also had the opportunity to play with USA Baseball this past winter, traveling to Hawaii and Australia for a 10-game exhibition tour.

Bregoli, who plays locally for the Elks of the Quincy Babe Ruth League, will again need to raise money to help defray the cost to travel with the Mariners program. Donations are tax deductible and checks can be made out to: New England Mariners, Inc., c/o Chris Bregoli, 80 Willow Ave, Quincy, 02170.

QUINCY WILL be represented by Chris Bregoli on the AAU/Jr. Olympic New England Mariners 14-year-old baseball team this year. It is the second year in a row that Bregoli was named to the AAU Mariners club.

Junior Farm

Yellow Cab, Egan In Fast Start

Everybody wants to know if the balls have been juiced, as heavy hitting has dominated the early season in Junior Farm League baseball.

Yellow Cab and Egan Sunoco opened the season in the most impressive fashion while Tobin Club and Petars Automotive have been close behind.

Stephen Williams has driven Yellow Cab with several home runs and rock-solid play at shortstop. Andrew McAllister, Billy Eagles, Michael O'Mahoney and Andrew Donovan have also looked sharp.

Defending champion Egan Sunoco has been fueled by the stellar defense of Matt Germain, Justin Swierk and Tom Mullen. Steve O'Brien and Pat Maloney have hit the ball all over the field to spark the offense.

Casey Winter, Michael Cafano, Bryan Donovan and Stephen Kelley have been instrumental in getting Tobin Club off to a fast start. They erupted for a league record 44 runs in one game.

Kevin Richardson and Mark Tobin have been the spark plugs for Petars Automotive with their superb all-around play. Teammates Brendan McDonald, Matt Lavery and Patrick Maxey are competing for the league's home run title.

Joseph Daly of Independent Valet pulled off the defensive play of the season when a turned an unassisted triple play. Brian Weeks has also keyed the Valet effort with his strong baseball savvy. Dom Delgardo, Mark Dugas and Brendan Craig have hit the ball well.

Michael Dolbeare helped Eric's Auto Body slam Quincy DARE with a two-strike, two-out grand slam shot that lifted his team to a 22-21 win. Matt Grazioso is having an MVP-type season, while Tim Summers, Tim Watson, Bob Newcomb and Dennis Magaldi have plyed well.

Citizens Bank has counted on the play of James Coughlin, Kate Curreri, Tom Cabral, John Ridge and the always-hustling Jimmy Burke. Dan Duval, Mike Rooney and Greg DiNicola have carried the big sticks.

Ian Jorgensen's grand slam backboned Jaehnig Chiropractic's first win of the season - a comeback effort. A FALL-OFF IN GAS MILEAGE

Observation of a noticeable fall-off in a car's gas mileage without an accompanying loss in engine performance may indicate a problem with either a defective oxygen sensor or a bad manifold absolute pressure sensor. Each part helps control the mixture of fuel, and, in either case, the auto technician can easily identify these malfunctioning sensors by virtue of a diagnostic checkup. Poor gas mileage may also be due to a partially clogged catalytic converter. To verify, a four-gas exhaust gas analysis test should be conducted. This test measures the percentage or quantity of four gases from the tailpipe. If the carbon monoxide percentage exceeds the oxygen's, an excessively rich fuel mixture is the cause of poor mileage. Otherwise, a clogged catalytic converter may be suspected.

Hint: A back-pressure test, in which pressure in front of and behind the catalytic converter is compared, can verify a clogged catalytic converter.

LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO invites your inquiries about most anything connected with the care of your car. Our technicians are highly skilled so they can do everything necessary to keep your car in excellent running condition with the best gas efficiency, whether that means something as simple as an alignment or complex engine work. American Cancer Society Relay For Life June 9-10

The American Cancer Society's South Shore Unit will hold its Relay for Life Friday, June 9 and Saturday, June 10 at Veterans Memorial Stadium, Quincy.

The relay will involve teams of walkers and runners who will round a track, round-the-clock, to raise funds for the fight against cancer.

Event Chairman Hank Bradley said the Society hopes to raise $20,000 during the relay, through walkers collecting sponsorships from friends, family members, and co-workers.

Each team will keep a representative on the track throughout the 24 hours, with members walking in half-hour shifts, Bradley said. Starting the "night shift" will be a candlelight ceremony to remember loved ones who have fought cancer. Team members camp out around the track throughout the night.

"I encourage anyone interested in joining the Relay for Life to call the American Cancer Society at 431-4210," Bradley said. "The relay will be a great way to renew our hope in the fight against cancer, while also doing something practical to support the American Cancer Society's research, education, and patient service programs."

The ACS is seeking people to form relay teams, and to join teams that need a few more members. Interested participants are invited to attend a team leader session to receive the necessary materials.

Local services provided the ACS to cancer patients include transportation to outpatient treatment by Road to Recovery volunteer drivers, support for women with breast cancer through the Reach to Recovery visitor program, and information on maintaining personal appearance during treatment through the Look Good. . . Feel Better program.

For more information about the relay, call the American Cancer Society at 617-341-4210.

Softball

Quincy Needs Four Straight For Tourney

By KERRY BYRNE

The Quincy High School softball team suffered a disappointing 10-8 loss to Barnstable Monday and now must win their last four outings if they are to complete their turnabout season with an appearance in the tournament.

The Presidents (6-10) were scheduled to take on Silver Lake yesterday (Wednesday) and will do battle in the Mary Pratt Classic tonight at 7 p.m. against North Quincy High. Quincy beat both Old Colony League rivals earlier in the year. They close out the regular season schedule with a rare double-header Tuesday against Notre Dame of Hingham.

Regardless of whether the Presidents make it to the tournament this year, they have shown considerable improvement over last year's QHS version (which won just one contest all season) and appear poised to make a tourney appearance next year if not this year.

"I've tried to instill in my kids confidence in themselves," said head coach Bob Keuther. "They've bought into my system and are focused on the idea of making it to the post-season. We certainly have had a season to build on."

Against Barnstable (11-6), the Presidents showed poise as they fought back from a three-run deficit with three in the bottom of the sixth inning to tie the score at 8-8.

Toni Kabilian led the inning with a walk. She then reached second safely when she slid under the diving tag attempt of Christine Frauton after Angela Hogrell had grounded to the shortstop. Kerri (Crash) Connolly walked to load the bases, and Kabilian and Hogrell came home when Alisha Ford, Quincy's leading hitter at .511 going into the game, cracked a single through the gut of the Red Raider defense.

Connolly scored the equalizer when a pickoff attempt at third was misplayed.

Barnstable struck for the two decisive runs in the top of the seventh and the Presidents were unable to rally in the bottom of the frame.

"We've proved we can play with the big guns of the league like Barnstable, Taunton and Bridgewater-Raynham," said Keuther. "But we've got to take it to the next level now. When the game is on the line and we needed to make big plays, we struggled. We got to do the things against the good teams to be in a position to win."

Quincy spent most of the game fighting into that position after falling behind early. They were down 3-0 in the first before Katie Gallagher got one back in the bottom of the inning.

Barnstable jumped to a 6-1 lead with three runs in the top of the third, but runs by Crash Connolly (who lived up to her name with some hard-nose base running), Mary Kelly and Kelly Howard brought the Presidents to within two. They could have tightened the gap further, perhaps even taken the lead, had it not been for a 7-2 double play that caught Ford out at home as she tried to tag up from third. At the time, Quincy had the bases loaded with no outs.

"Give credit to Barnstable," said Keuther. "They made the plays they had to make, like when they threw Alisha out at home. If we scored there it opens up a big inning for us. Those are the things we have to do to join the B-Rs and Tauntons of the league."

At the start of the season it looked like the Presidents would be unable to join that company. They opened with an 0-6 record but have gone 6-4 since. One of the keys to the turnaround has been the improved play of sophomore pitcher Hogrell. She has won six of her last nine outings and her team suffered when she missed three games in the middle of the season.

Regardless of how the final four games pan out, the Presidents should enjoy further success next year as the entire squad - which is now without a senior - returns to play again.

The Thrill was aided by fine defensive play from the likes of third baseman Scott McDonald, who backhanded a hard smash to the hot corner and threw to second for a force out in the fifth inning. McDonald's play helped the Elks maintain what was then a slim 3-1 advantage.

Chris Skelter pitched well for Beacon, striking out seven men. He added a hit and made several excellent fielding plays. Brent Austin reached base three times and scored Beacon's only run. Billy Croke added a well-hit single.

Andrew Nestor recorded four base hits while two singles each were clubbed by Bobby Muollo, Jeff Tam, Rochon and Germain. Jeff Haslett had one base hit and the defense was led by Stephen Graham and Michael DeAngelo.

Pacing the Colonial effort were Chris Lockhead (two hits and a solid performance on the mound), Kyle Piazza (double) and Mark Robertson (single, great hustle).

Kevin Weeks' second hit of the game drove in the winning run and lifted the Jaehnig Club over Burgin Platner, 5 4.

It was one in a long line of hits for Weeks, who is batting .526 this season. Fred Butts went the distance and earned the win with a 10-K outing. He also stroked a double and a single. Jaehnig recorded two hits and two runs. O'Toole nailed two hits while one single each was smashed by Dan Dorsey, Brandon Sleeth and Buckley. Heads-up base running by Derek Keezer led to the tying run. Pat O'Brien and Jeff Butts played well in the field.

Burgin Platner put forth their best performance of the season as they nearly pulled off the upset. Brendan Bowes smashed consecutive doubles as BP scored all four runs in the third inning. Todd White pitched a courageous game, fanning nine batters. Dennis Thomson and Bowes saved runs with outstanding defensive plays. Paul Adams also played well.

Burke bounced back from their loss to the Lions with a 15-2 win over Colonial Federal.

Burke hurler Justin (Fireball) Hall was stung for a run in the first inning, but held Colonial to three hits, fanning nine, the rest of the way. Moriarty came on and struck out the side in the sixth.

Peter Turowski paced the O with two hits and three RBI. Moriarty drove in three runs on a single and a double. Hutchings had two RBI and scored three times while Dan Duggan nailed two base hits. Ten-year-old Sean Moriarty had a two-run single in Burke's explosive fourth inning.

Jaehnig Chiropractic edged Beacon Sports, 4-3, in an exciting extra-inning affair.

Dan O'Toole earned the win with 11 K's in six innings.

Beacon tied the game in the fifth and would have put it away had Jaehnig's Chris Doherty not turned a sure hit into a double play.

Keith Austin gave Beacon a one-run lead in the first extra session thanks to his clutch two-out base hit, his stolen base, and an RBI single by Tom Hughes.

With two outs in the bottom of the inning, Jaehnig tied the score when O'Toole smacked a single and was driven in by Kevin Weeks.

Beacon left the bases loaded in the top of the eighth inning, setting up Dan Dorsey's heroics. Dorsey beat out a bunt single, advanced on Mark Maher's sacrifice and scored from second on a routine groundout. He managed to slide under the catchers tag in a very close and decisive play at the plate.

Pat Jaehnig recorded the win with two innings of strong work.

Chris Skelter pitched well for Beacon, while shortstop Mike Feenan and catcher Matt Joyce were rock solid on defense.

The Jaehnig Club sped around Rotary, 10-4.

Brandon Sleeth got the Jaehnig ball rolling with a bases-loaded double in the first. Pat O'Brien and Fred Butts played well defensively.

Two home runs by Dave Centrella and a game-winning roundtripper by Matt Holt lifted South Shore Buick to a 5-4 win over Keohane's.

Holt pitched five strong innings. John Fidalgo stepped to the mound with two men on and nobody out in the sixth and retired the next three batters for the save. He fanned two of the final three.

Ryan Casey played well in his first game behind the plate. Neil Gavin and Brian O'Hanley also made strong defensive plays.

Quincy Selected To Host 25 Students From Spain

The International Education Forum (IEF) has again selected Quincy to be the summer home for 25 Spanish students.

IEF chose Quincy because it represents an all-American community of historical significance with proximity to a major city.

The students will be in Quincy from July 6 to Aug. 2 and offer families the opportunity to experience Spanish culture without leaving New England.

Last year, the Ayer family in Wollaston hosted Enrique "Quique" Bonet. Paula Ayer, his host mother, said it was the best thing she had ever done for her family.

"Quique really became a part of our family and we all had so much fun. We're really looking forward to doing it again," she said.

The high school students come from all over Spain and speak varying degrees of English. They carry their own insurance and spending money. The families and the students act as ambassadors of goodwill by sharing cultural insights and everyday experiences so important to improving international relations.

Social and cultural activities are also organized for the students. Among them are beach parties and trips to museums, an amusement park and a Red Sox game.

Any family can qualify. Students stay with a family for 28 days.

May Is National Sight Saving Month

May is National Sight Saving Month.

Over 100,000 eye injuries occur each year and can be avoided if individuals practice safety measures at work, at home and on the athletic field. In conjunction with National Sight Saving Month, the physicians at Eye Health Services in South Weymouth offer the following advice to ensure vision that lasts a lifetime.

Eye injuries in the workplace result in lost production vs. productivity, increased medical expenses and worker's compensation claims, not to mention personal suffering and the potential loss of vision. It is estimated that 1,000 workplace eye injuries occur every day, costing the nation more than $133 million each year.

To prevent accidents in the workplace, know the visual requirements for your job and wear the appropriate eye protection provided. Be aware of any potential visual hazards in the workplace and report them immediately. If you do suffer an injury, seek prompt medical assistance from an opthalmologist.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

On this Memorial Day let us remember that this day signifies, perhaps more deeply than any other patriotic observance, the soul of America. The patriots to be remembered on this day represent every generation of Americans. They fell in battles widely separated by distance and time. Some came from families long established in America; many others were new to the land. These patriots differed in color, in religious beliefs, in political faith and other ways which historically have divided the human family.

Yet, all had this in common; they loved their country and they died to make men free.

And so, on this Memorial Day, let us solemnly pay tribute to these fallen heroes. Let us spare a prayer of thanksgiving that there have always been men and women willing to offer the ultimate sacrifice so that our national ideals could endure...

Mullen: Training Council Must Receive Funding

Police Chief Francis Mullen warns that unless the legislature restores funding for MA Criminal Justice Training Council to $3.9 million, municipal police training, especially for new recruits may cease.

Cities like Quincy, will be unable to use new officers even if local-Federal funding is available to hire them. The law, (Chapter 41, Section 96B) requires new officers to attend an 18 week basic training program before they can exercise police powers.

Over the last several years, the quality and quantity of the Training Council's programs have slowly been reduced, as the budget has been cut almost in half. However, the number of recruits has been doubled from about 350 per year in the 80's to 700 during each of the last two years.

To meet this demand for recruit training, the Council has diverted funds and energy from other critical areas of police training. It has been years since anyone took a comprehensive look at courses being offered. In many cases, instructors are left on their own to "wing it" in the classrooms as there are rarely lesson plans for them to follows.

Massachusetts lags behind comparable states in funding for police training. During 1992, when Massachusetts spent $2.4 million, California allocated $43 million; Arizona spent over $4 million, South Carolina $7 million, Tennessee $4.8 million, Washington $6 million, and Wisconsin $4.9 million. Massachusetts spent approximately the same as New Hampshire and Oklahoma.

It is not logical to keep sending recruits and officers through training classes that are outdated. While we emphasize the need for "community policing" in the 90's, this philosophy has yet to b incorporated into the M Training Council's curr culum.

This is one problen which money can cure We have dedicate training staff and in structors eager to do thei jobs. We have polic officers and recruit thirsting for interesting an informative courses. A we need is to restore th funding to the Crimin Justice Training Counci The Senate will b debating the budge starting this week. Prom action is required t restore the Trainin Council's funding.

MWRA Awards $5 Million Contract For Sludge Recycling Equipment At Shipyard

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) announces the award of a $5,088,000 contract to Alfa Laval Separation Inc., of Warminster, PA., for the supply of 12 high solids centrifuges and related maintenance services for the Fore River Pelletizing Facility, which converts sewage sludge to fertilizer.

"This contract award will help expand our ability to treat sludge at the Fore River Pelletzing Facility and is part of the MWRA's commitment to a cleaner Boston Harbor," said MWRA Executive Director Douglas B. MacDonald.

The temporary sludge processing facility, located at the Fore River Staging Area in Quincy, came on line in Dec. 1991, meeting the court-ordered deadline for ending discharge of sludge into Boston Harbor. In order to process the additional sludge quantities projected to be generated following completion of new primary and secondary treatment facilities at Deer Island, the facility must be modified to provide the capacity for long-term sludge processing.

The sludge-to-fertilizer facility is owned by the MWRA and privately operated by New England Fertilizer Co. The fertilizer is being marketed locally under the brand name, Bay State Organic.

Ayers Meets With Atlantic School Students

Sixth graders at Atlantic Middle School in North Quincy recently met with Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers to share their concerns about dogs damaging the condition of their school property.

Twenty representatives of the student body told Ayers they have noticed that many careless pet owners allow their dogs to defecate on property other than their own. Youngsters let the councillor know they are not only upset about Atlantic's grounds, but also are angry about dog feces on many of the playing fields where they practice and play spring sports.

The students in Cynthia Wilson's social studies class had done their homework. They found an article from the June 17, 1986 Patriot Ledger that indicated the City Council had passed an ordinance that would fine dog owners who allowed their pets to defecate on other people's property. The youngsters also had a copy of the current fines that apply to dogs that was sent to them by Dog Officer Phyllis Berlucchi. In addition, they received a letter from Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park Department, indicating that he shares their concern.

Ayers told the students that the City Council has been addressing the issue. A proposed "pooper scooper" law is currently before the council's Ordinance Committee.

The event is held to thank current patients and introduce new patients to the benefits of chiropractic health care. Services were provided for a $10 donation.

In the past, all proceeds from the event will donated to FCER, the leading chiropractic research organization in the country. This year, however, Dr. Steven Windberg chose to donate the money collected, which totaled $500, to the Oklahoma City Rotary Club to benefit children and families who were victims in the recent bombing there.

Two Bills Would Benefit Retired Public Employees

The Committee on Counties has released two bills that will benefit all retired public employees, announces Rep. Ronald Mariano, vice-chairman of the House Committee on Counties.

One bill, H3805, will provide a cost of living increase of 3 three percent on the first $10,000 on pension money that a retired person receives.

"It is our goal to help the people that have dedicated themselves to public service keep pace with inflation. A modest increase of $300 per year goes a long way to help people living on a fixed income."

Mariano also explained that H3810 raised the allowance to be paid widows of state employees who retired under disability retirement.

"This measure raises the annual allowance of widows and widowers from a minimum of $3,000 a year to $6,000 a year. This increase is long overdue and it will help those left behind by the deaths of disabled public employees."

Mariano said the bills will move on the House Ways and Means Committee.

School Violence Program On Continental Cablevision

Students from across the state will share stories about how they prevent fights, gang violence and racial strife in their schools through mediation in a cable television special Wednesday, May 31, about the attorney general's SCORE (Student Conflict Resolution Experts) program.

The special, "Stop, Think, Listen SCORE!," produced by Continental Cablevision and Attorney General Scott Harshbarger, will air on Continental community channels in 102 Massachusetts communities from 8 to 9 p.m. Viewers should check on-screen local programs listings for the correct channel number.

The purpose of the special is to raise awareness of the SCORE program, created by the attorney general's office, in hopes that more communities will see it as an effective way to reduce school violence.

Through SCORE, high school and middle school students go through training to mediate potentially violent conflicts. Through the program, which involves 26 schools in 15 urban and suburban communities, more than 2,500 disputes have been mediated with less than 5 percent of the resulting agreements having been broken.

"All of us at Continental Cablevision applaud Attorney General Harshbarger for his pioneering effort to get at the roots of school violence through SCORE," said Russell Stephens, senior vice president for Coninental's New England/New York Region. "For Continental, our collaboration on this TV program is a natural extension of the work we are doing through the cable industry's 'Voices Against Violence' initiative and Continental's own media literacy efforts to educate parents and children about TV violence and how to use the media more productively.

"SCORE teaches kids how to talk it out instead of fight it out," said Harshbarger. "It not only works to prevent violence, but it also teaches young people the skills they need to become responsible adults who can resolve differences and disputes peacefully."

More than 100 student mediators, SCORE adult coordinators and administrators from 22 high schools and middle schools participated in the TV program, which was taped live at Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government and, simultaneously via a two-way microwave link, from Central High School in Springfield.

Harshbarger serves as host and facilitator as the student mediators talk about the pressures that lead to violence in their schools, including drugs, alcohol and boy-girl relationships and how they mediate both one-on-one and group disputes to prevent fights by building trust, promising confidentiality and not taking sides.

They also talk about how they have brought the skills learned through SCORE beyond the school walls to help smooth relationships among their friends and families.

Pre-taped segments include a simulated altercation and mediation and visits to schools that have started and built successful SCORE programs.

Completion Seen By 1999

Concourse Construction Expected To Start In 1997

The first phase of the proposed Quincy Center Concourse could be completed by the year 1999, according to officials associated with the project.

Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton and representatives of Whitman and Howard Engineers of Wellesley, which recently completed a traffic study of first phase of the project, briefly outlined plans for the concourse at Tuesday's meeting of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA). They plan a more complete presentation for the City Council next week.

The $6 million roadway would be funded by state and federal monies. Phase 1, or the west side, of the project would link Burgin Parkway to Hancock Street while Phase 2 or the east side would connect Hancock to Revere Road. The Whitman and Howard study only pertained to the first phase.

Colton said in an ideal situation, construction on the entire project could begin by June 1997 and be completed about two years later. He added that he is confident that funding for the first phase will be made available even if the city does not commit to construction of the second phase.

Officials also said construction of the roadway would have a "dramatic impact" on the downtown. An average area traffic delay in the year 2000 would be 232 seconds if the concourse is not built, but only 70 seconds if it is, they noted.

The project is also expected to help the Quincy Center economy--since access to the downtown shopping district will be improved--and help clean the air as a result of a reduction in automobile emissions because of the shorter delays.

MATHEW LUZ of Natick, age 7, views close up of Fore River Bridge through periscope sight in main battery of the Salem's 8-inch guns during a visit on Monday.

AMONG THE 407 people who visited the USS Salem at the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum Monday were Jonathan McKeown, age 4, and his uncle, Elliot Oliva, both of Rockland.

Cruiser Draws 407 Visitors Monday

Salem Seen As 'Staple Tourist Attraction'

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Seen as a "staple tourist attraction" in the greater Boston area, the USS Salem reopened Monday to the delight of officials and visitors as the centerpiece of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum at the Fore River Shipyard.

The Salem was declared environmental safe and sound by the U.S. Enviromental Protection Agency last Friday. The MWRA, which owns the shipyard, also granted its approval. The agencies permission paved the way for Monday's reopening.

Some 407 visitors were received Monday. Men, women and children, including senior citizens, former crew and veterans from throughout the South Shore area, strolled the Salem's deck and surveyed her many features during the Memorial Day holiday.

Museum officials said the museum's initial response indicates the Salem is a fascinating and interesting tourist destination which they agreed will only blossom over time.

"I think the tour program worked very, very well," said Mayor James Sheets, the chairman of the USNSM Board of Directors.

"People were very pleased and asked a tremendous amount of questions. I think for the beginning of this tourist season to begin on a holiday which was overcast and raining this morning, to have over 400 people come aboard and visit the Salem is a good indicator of that which is to come," said Sheets, who has touted the Salem as a catalyst for the city's tourism effort.

The mayor credited the museum staff with preparing the Quincy-built heavy cruiser, which served as the flagship of the Sixth Fleet in the 1950s, for visitors.

"I think a tremendous job was done by the entire staff to get the Salem here and to be open for visitors. It's here to stay and it's going to draw a number of tourists to this city in the years and decades ahead.

"It's going to become one of the staple tourist attractions in the greater Boston area. I am very pleased with today," he added.

Museum Executive Director William MacMullen said anticipation was high for the opening. He noted some visitors showed up at the museum site at 8:30 a.m., 90 minutes before the Conference At Hospital Friday

Audit Of Ambulance Co. Could Begin Next Week

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The audit of a company that provides ambulance service to the city through Quincy Hospital could begin next week.

Quincy Atty. Daniel Raymondi, who discovered the improper billing practices by Natick-based Norfolk-Bristol Ambulance Co., said this week a pre-audit conference will be held at the hospital Friday at 9 a.m. to discuss issues related to the matter. He added that those in attendance will include himself and representatives from the hospital, City Solicitor Stephen McGrath's office and the auditing company, Feeley & Driscoll, P.C., a Boston accounting firm.

Raymondi said the audit of the ambulance firm, which has admitted to at least 126 cases in which customers were mistakenly billed, might begin as early as next week.

Raymondi, who initially brought the billing matter to the city's attention, told The Quincy Sun last week that Quincy Hospital Director/Chief Executive Officer Ralph DiPisa had called for the audit.

Hospital Nursing Director Doris Sinkevich, who chairs the hospital's committee on ambulatory affairs, said in a prepared statement last week that the hospital had selected Feeley & Driscoll to conduct the audit.

The statement did not say whether the hospital or the ambulance company will pay for the audit. At press time, neither Sinkevich nor Quincy Hospital Director/Chief Executive Officer Ralph DiPisa could be reached for comment.

Raymondi, however, said, "It is my assumption that the ambulance company will pay for it."

The hospital statement did note that the audit will cover the company's billing practices for the last four years.

The hospital's contract with the ambulance company states that it may call for an audit at any time.

Raymondi said last week that while he is happy the company has taken action on the matter, he feels the audit must be done quickly and efficiently so that a plan may be formulated to reimburse

Solicitor Rules Board Can't Revoke Dunkin Donuts License

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Despite a petition presented to the Quincy License Board two weeks ago with the signatures of about 100 local residents to revoke the license of a Dunkin Donuts at 825 Southern Artery, City Solicitor Steven J. McGrath said the license board may not reverse its decision.

McGrath, in a letter to the license board said the license could only be revoked for a reason of "cause". He said the issues raised regarding traffic or parking congestion or the existence of a day care center do not constitute sufficient cause.

He also noted that a condition of the license was committed to the obligation of the Quincy Point Congregational church, owners of the property, being on duty Sunday mornings to supervise parking and minimize congestion.

McGrath noted that agenda records of the license board state that issues of traffic concern were noted, discussed and presumably considered by the board members, who ultimately voted unanimously for the move.

Although neighbors had criticized Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro for not notifying them about the donut shop, McGrath said there is no statutory obligation to do so.

McGrath noted that the agenda was sent in the normal course of procedure to all city councillors, WJDA, the Patriot Ledger and the Quincy Sun as well as to a representative of the QCBPA.

License Board chairman Joseph Shea said he would send a copy of McGrath's letter to the neighbors, DeCristofaro and the license board.

The 1,500 square-foot restaurant will be a "satellite" with no cooking on the premises. It will seat 14 persons and have one drive-up window.

Studds Office Moves To 1419 Hancock St.

Cong. Gerry Studds this week moved his Quincy office two blocks south in Quincy Center to the second floor of the Greenleaf Building at 1419 Hancock St., near Granite St.

Studds will keep the same local telephone number, 770-3700. He also retains a toll-free phone number for callers outside the city: 1-800-794-9911.

Studds opened an office at 1212 Hancock St. two years ago, after redistricting placed Quincy into the 10th Congressional District. The building housing his original office changed hands earlier this year, and Studds said he was able to obtain a more economical rental rate at his new location.

"Our commitment to serving the people of Quincy and the adjoining communities remains as strong as ever," Studds said.

SNUG HARBOR SCHOOL Student Council members place flowers at memorial dedicated to Germantown residents who died while serving in the Armed Forces. From left are Megan Donohue, president, Sabrina Wong, secretary and Chris Dykens, representative. The memorial lists the name of Sgt. Edward Gargano, who was killed in Lebanon, as well those of Joseph Sullivan, Robert Leaman, John Granahan, Henry Grenier, Frederick Graves, Peter Landry and Gerald Peterson.

•Continued until next week issue of complaints on the operation of a lodging house on 191 Burgin Pkwy., and the fact that the rooming house is being run without a sprinkler system.

Atty. Lewis Whitman, representing Crown Colony Condonimium Trustees showed board members pictures of abandoned vehicles and said there has been burning of chemicals in barrels at night violating zoning laws.

Henry Gregoire,owner of the property, formerly called Haynes Junk Yard, will be notified to appear at next week's meeting.

Fire chief Thomas Gorman, who said the "condition was deplorable" said if the owner doesn't appear next week, his license will be revoked."

Finally, the license board, who has been monitoring Home Depot since last week's fire, said they will again inspect the establishment this week.

Gorman said the fire had caused a "longer process than originally thought" in order to re-open.

Police Chief Francis Mullen said the people at Home Depot were doing a "tremendous amount of work", but it appears they have a lot more to do.

Gorman said the license for storage of propane and flammable fluids will have to be reviewed. He added that the State Fire Marshall plans to regulate all area warehouses across the state to institute new conditions.

Rain Cancels Memorial Day Parade, Forces Ceremony Inside

Bellotti: 'They Must Not Be Forgotten'

Despite a rainout of the annual Quincy Memorial Day Parade, an estimated 400 spectators joined war veterans and city officials Monday for a ceremony in honor of those who died in past wars.

The ceremony was held in the gymnasium at the Quincy Center for Technical Education (CTE). Parade Chairman Thomas Stansbury said there were about 400 people in the crowd.

State Rep. Michael Bellotti, keynote speaker at the event, said the cloudy weather was appropriate for an event as solemn as Memorial Day and would help people remember those killed while serving their country.

"They made the ultimate sacrifice, and they must not be forgotten," he said.

Bellotti noted that his father, former Attorney General Francis Bellotti, won a Supreme Court case during his first term as attorney general (1974-78) which to this day has upheld the practice of veterans' preference.

He added that as a state representative, he also hopes to do all he can for those veterans who survived their wars.

"I didn't have the honor to fight with you," he told veterans in the audience, "but I know I have the privilege to fight for you."

Mayor James Sheets, who also spoke at the event, said it is important "we recognize all generations yet to come who will also have to lay down their lives so that this great nation can remain free."

The names of nearly 100 Quincy veterans who died during the past year were read aloud at Monday's ceremony, followed by a gun salute and the playing of "Taps."

Frank Anselmo, 97, a World War I veteran and former member of the Quincy School Committee, received a standing ovation when introduced to the crowd.

Towing Complaints Heard By Board

Following complaints made to the the Quincy License Board about the alleged towing violations by Tino's on Furnace Brook Pkwy., the board will ask Santino Vitali to appear at next week's meeting.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio told the board that Tino's has been "blatantly violating the law by ccontinuing his towing service without a license" and though previously notified "still continued to do so".

Tino's has since sold his business to Tom Westerfield. He appeared before the board, but was told the former owner is the one responsible for the complaints raised by neighhbors in the area.

According to Chairman Joseph Shea, Tino's has been using property at 61 Copeland St. as well as Furnace Book Pkway., but hasn't a license to operate towing at the Copeland St. address.

Shea said the Zoning Board of Appeals will have to be notified and said the matter will be continued until next week's meeting.

Annual Flag Day Parade June 14

Quincy's annual Flag Day Parade will be held Wednesday, May 14 at 7 p.m.

The parade, which honors U.S. veterans, the U.S. flag and youth groups, will begin at the intersection of Washington and Coddington Sts. and proceed north to and on Hancock St. The route will pass Veterans Memorial Stadium and end at Adams Field, Hancock St. and Southern Artery.

Following the parade, the Mount Rushmore Flag will be raised at Adams Field. The flag measures 45 feet by 90 feet and weighs approximately 300 pounds. It was first used in 1987 to cover the Lincoln figure on Mount Rushmore. Since 1991, the flag has flown at World War II commemorations around the world.

The evening will conclude with a fireworks display orchestrated by Rockingham Firesworks Display Company of Seabrook, N.H. Over 1,000 shells will be projected skyward for 20 minutes, starting at approximately 9 p.m.

After the fireworks, people will be asked to stay and help fold the flag. An estimate 200 volunteers will be needed.

The event is open to the public. Last year, over 50,000 spectators were present.

The annual Flag Day Parade is co-sponsored by the Quincy Partnership, City of Quincy and the Koch Club.

HEARTBURN HELPERS CREATE DRUG HEADACHES

If you're the type of person who caries a pack of antacids to fight off the occasional heartburn or sour stomach, you should be aware that those common, over-the-counter medications can cause serious problems if you are also taking certain prescription drugs. Antacids may affect the absorption or elimination of such medications as the heartbeat regulator digoxin (Lanoxin), the antibiotic tetracycline (Achromycin), the anticonvulsant phenytoin (Dilantin), the anti-ulcer drug cimetidine (Tagamet), and beta blockers for high blood pressure, such as propranolol (Inderal). If such interactions occur, the prescription drugs may be rendered much less effective in having their intended effects.

P.S. Anyone who takes prescription medicines should check with their doctor before taking antacids.

Be careful when you want to mix medications—even over-the-counter varieties. Consult your doctor for the right information. In our office, all medical professionals keep up-to-date on the latest information on medical intervention and care. At COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE located at 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and myself offer complete medical care with a focus on treating heart disease. Harold Watch Goes On

The Paul Harold watch goes on.

The No. 1 political question in town: "Is Paul running?"

HAROLD

It has been No. 1 since early last month when he acknowledged that he is "seriously thinking" of running for City Councillor at-large.

So, is he running?

He isn't yet saying he's an official candidate but he appears to be moving in that direction. And pretty fast.

It looks like he'll be making a visit to City Hall within a week or two to pick up nomination papers. The next step after that is the official announcement.

Political observers are already conceding him one of the three at-large seats if he gets into the race. They base this on his past vote-getting performance including the most votes (21,246 in 1977) ever given a city council at-large candidate in the city's history.

And his city-wide popularity hasn't diminished any since he gave up his Senate seat three years ago to run for Congress. (He lost but carried Quincy against Congressman Gerry Studds.)

So, if Harold has one of the three seats pretty much locked up, that would leave four candidates for the two remaining seats: incumbents Tim Cahill, Michael Cheney and Joseph LaRaia and challenger Larry Chretin who is giving up his Ward 3 seat to make an at-large bid.

Cahill has topped the at-large field in the last two elections which would seem to put him in a strong position to take one of the two remaining seats.

If so, that would leave LaRaia, Cheney and Chretien wrestling for the third seat.

But anything can happen in any election year. Nobody is elected until the votes are counted.

IF YOU'RE MAKING a list of future mayoral candidates be sure to include Dan Raymondi.

RAYMONDI

Raymondi, who is giving up his School Committee seat to run for Ward 2 councillor, really packed them in at his campaign kick-off fundraiser last week at Pat Flanagan's.

They were coming and going all night—an estimated 500 to 600 of them.

"It was the biggest political turnout I've seen in a long time," said one veteran poltical figure who attended.

And there were a number of tickets purchased in advance by people who were unable to make it that night.

There are no dollar figures yet on the amount raised but at $15 per person and $25 per couple it had to be healthy.

It was a ward councillor fundraiser but it would have been considered a success had it been a mayoral campaign event.

And those close to the Quincy political scene think there may be Raymondi for Mayor fundraisers coming down the road.

Raymondi lost a mayoral bid to Frank McCauley in 1981 and since then he has looked like he might someday give it another whirl—at the right time.

SPEAKING OF MAYORAL candidates another apparent challenger has appeared on this year's election scene.

Francis Gleason, of Edgewood Circle, a political newcomer, has taken out nomination papers for mayor. He is the second planning to challenge Mayor James Sheets. The other is Roger Lyons.

THERE'S A THIRD candidate for the Ward 5 City Council seat Charles Phelan is retiring from. Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg, former chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging, has nomination papers in circulation.

She joins Steve Reilly and Dennis Dockham as candidates who have already officially announced. If Stenberg files her papers, it would mean a preliminary election runoff.

A RECEPTION FOR John Gillis, Norfolk County commissioner and former Quincy city clerk, is set for tonight (Thursday) from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Quincy Elks Lodge, Quarry St. Tickets are $50 and may be obtained from Committee Chairman Tom Burke or at the door.

ROBERTS

MARK ROBERTS, candidate for the Ward 2 City Council seat, kicks off his campaign with a party Thursday, June 8 from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Adams Heights Men's Club, Bower Rd., Quincy Point.

Admission is free. For more information call 471-4107.

REMEMBER THAT MONEY Uncle Sam Rounseville found in the parking lot at the Stop & Shop on Southern Artery?

UNCLE SAM

Well, it has been reunited with its owner, Mary Leonard of Hull, who identified the exact amount. Sam delivered it to her the night before Mother's Day and turned down a reward.

He then went into Quincy Hospital for a little surgery. She heard about it and sent him a plant and cards.

(Yes, there were a number of others who said they lost the money but only the real owner knew the exact amount.)

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A KODAK photo postcard of the original Quincy Adams station on the Old Colony Railroad Line. The station was at the corner of Liberty and Water Streets and was built of Quincy granite. On the far right in this view you can see the upright gate for the grade crossing at Water Street. This was the last railroad grade crossing in Quincy when in the early 1930's the Water Street bridge was built over the tracks. This station site is in the northbound lanes of today's Burgin Parkway. When the parkway was built through this area, the bridge was expanded to span both the MBTA tracks and the new road.

Praises NQHS Renaissance Program

Editor: The Quincy Sun

It is absolutely necessary to acknowledge and praise the fine contribution to the preservation of human life and dignity on our planet made by Renaissance, a creative arts program at North Quincy High School.

This is not an exaggerated statement. The program presented at North Quincy High School on Thursday, May 18, was a revelation of what is right with today's youth. An activity such as this will literally be a contribution to the salvation of humanity on this planet.

Renaissance is not a part of required curriculum. It is a voluntary commitment of young people to refinement and enrichment of the human spirit; in essence a commitment to the perpetuation of our human nature's contributions in music, dance, theatre, and visual arts (photography, painting) and literary arts.

Concisely put, human existence on his fragile planet is in good hands with our young people in activities like those of Renaissance and we can cancel out the rampant sensationalism, encourage activituy like Renaissance, take a deep breath of relief, and cooperate activity with these young people who are keeping human activity on our fragile planet in good hands by reinforcing the dignity of the human spirit.

Former Resident Says Goodbye To Quincy

[The following letter, dated May 17, was submitted to The Quincy Sun for publication:]

To the people and friends I have in the City of Quincy:

Exactly in seven days I attain my 43rd birthday. My wife and I left Quincy in June of 1993 when she was transferred from Boston Financial Data Services to a part of the corporate structure BFDS is part of down here: DST Inc., a business partner of State Street Bank.

I now have a cancer that is terminal and my life expectancy (since November 1994) is 5 to 6 months at the most.

I ran for Quincy city councillor-at-large in 1981. It's with misgivings I know I can't come back to Quincy and run for office. I was going to again.

As for my former colleagues at Shaw's Market, I'll miss you!

Chelsea Remembered With Love

[Ed. Note: Chelsea, a very special Doberman Pinscher who helped teach Quincy school children and many others about disabilities, died last year of cirrhosis of the liver. Her owner, North Quincy native Ann Sava, who is disabled, submitted the following letter.]

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Chelsea's birthday recently passed by (May 23). She would have been nine. She should have been nine. I remember how festive her day was last year. She was surrounded by so many who loved her. It was a beautiful day.

This year, as the day approached and I pondered what to do, I realized that birthdays are days of celebration. So instead of the nine balloons that would have been flying this year for her birthday, a beautiful flag, made from a photo of her (and given to me by her breeder and another dear friend), is flying in honor of her existence on earth and to celebrate that she was in my life and touched so many others, and that still I am constantly stopped in public, and people tell me how they remember Chelsea and her special affect on others.

This year, Zephyr, my middle dog has been doing the demonstrations in schools and to other groups and all love him. Resa is by my side 24 hours a day as Chelsea's successor. She is doing wonderfully at the young age of 23 months. But in my heart there is still a hole, and often I ache for one more moment with Chelsea.

Many children and adults have felt badly that despite all the help, she only lived just shy of 15 months after her diagnosis. [Ed. Note: numerous organizations and individuals made donations to a special fund in Chelsea's name to help pay for her expensive medical treatments.] But that time was so precious. She loved seeing all the children last year, she loved her birthday party and when it came for God to take her, she gently left this world, at home, surrounded by those who loved her.

So I would like once more to thank all of you for the help you gave us, and the extra time we had together. May 23, 1995 was a day of celebration. Those of us who knew and loved Chelsea laughed together at some of our memories and shed a few tears, but most of all, we are grateful that we, and especially me, were blessed to share time with her.

Happy Birthday, my beloved Chelsea. You live on in our hearts.

Vote Could End Bus Strike

By PAUL HAROLD

June 1 - 7
1959
36 Years Ago

The seven-month strike by bus drivers and mechanics of the Eastern Mass. Street Railway Co. could end if the latest offer by the company is accepted this week.

Union officials didn't want to "outguess the ballot box," but it was expected that the vote would be 9-1 in favor of going back to work. The latest offer included a 10 cents an hour raise. A six cents increase would be retroactive, with the additional four cents effective on July 1, 1960.

Meanwhile, George Yarrington, chairman of the Old Colony Area Transportation Commission, filed with Gov. Foster Furcolo an alternative bus schedule in anticipation of the closing of rail service. This move was seen as putting pressure on the striking bus drivers.

CONTRACTED RUBBISH PICK-UP BEGINS

For the first time in the city's history, the rubbish pick-up was done by a private contractor and not DPW employees.

The first day's service by Marinucci Brothers of Boston went smoothly, according to city officials who supervised the transition.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Impact Quincy To Honor 12 Community Heroes

Twelve organizations and individuals who have contributed to making Quincy a better community will be honored as Community Heroes tonight (Thursday) at Impact Quincy's Annual Meeting.

The evening will begin with a reception at 6:30 p.m. and the meeting will follow at 7 p.m. The meeting will be held in the auditorium at the South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy Center.

"We were very happy that we had such a tough time choosing the honorees," said Donna Cunningham, Impact Quincy co-chairperson.

"So many people and organizations have contributed so much to the community, that it was difficult to narrow the choices down to 12. In fact, we had originally tried to select only ten, but found that we could not do so."

Nominations for the award were open to the community, and stated that the awards would be presented to "persons or organizations who have worked to strengthen communication, foster relationships, and create and support true community collaborations which promote and sustain healthy living." Over 20 nominations were received, and the honorees were selected by the IQ Leadership Team.

"We recognize that an essential element in the prevention of alcohol, tobacco, and other drug problems is a healthy and vibrant community," stated Jon Simons, co-chairperson of Impact Quincy. "Individuals and organizations like this year's Community Heroes are the foundation of such a community. It's important that we recognize them for their important contributions."

The 1995 Community Heroes are: Rev. Sheldon Bennett, pastor of United First Parish Church, Ted DeCristofaro, Ward 2 city councillor; David Ezickson, long-time teacher and community activist; Technical Sgt. Edward J. Holland, ROTC instructor at Quincy High School; Joseph F. Kintigos, Jr., police officer active in the Police Athletic League; Manet Community Health Center; Dennis Messing, active parent in youth hockey; Frank Miller, proprietor of Wollaston Market; Janet Powell, Director of Guidance for the Quincy Public Schools; Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition; Quincy Mothers' Cooperative; and Hi Thai, community liaison for the Quincy Police Department.

In addition, the meeting will also include reports from each of the nine IQ Task Forces, highlighting their prevention activities of the past year. During the meeting, coalition members will also select two persons to serve on the Leadership Team, which coordinates the activities of Impact Quincy.

The meeting is open to the public. For more information, call 472-6027.

QHS Library Clean-Up

Due to the success of the recent clean-up of the Bradford Library at Quincy High School, the library will sponsor Clean-Up 2 Saturday, June 10 from 9 a.m. to noon.

"The kids from ROTC and the peer educators did a great job in April," said Bradford Library Director Joan Gallagher, "but the task of cleaning so many dusty books and shelves was more than we expected."

Students, staff and parents are being recruited to help with the clean-up. For more information, contact the staff at the library.

Violence Prevention Awareness Week At Broad Meadows

BROAD MEADOWS MIDDLE SCHOOL recently held a Violence Prevention Assembly during its celebration of Violence Prevention Awareness Week. Candles were lit as a tribute to victims of, and rescue workers involved with, the recent bombing in Oklahoma City. From left are Andrea Rose, Jennifer Marshall, Mike Hartford and Sally Chen.

VIOLENCE PREVENTION ASSEMBLY was held during Broad Meadows Middle School's recent celebration of Violence Prevention Awareness Week. Seventh grader Amanda Loos, right, presents an award to human rights activist Paula Van Gelver who was instrumental in getting Iqbal Masih, a 12-year-old Pakistani human rights activist and former slave to speak at the school last December. Iqbal was murdered Easter Sunday in his native country for speaking out against the oppression of child labor there.

There are still a lot of choices out there as to where you can do your banking. And we're one of them. Citizens Bank.

Now more than ever, people are choosing us because of how we choose to treat our customers.

Specifically, we make life easier by offering all the products and services you want — under one roof. As well as ATMs where you're likely to need them. Including every Shaw's supermarket in Eastern Massachusetts.

What really sets us apart, though, is our commitment to old-fashioned courtesy. Meaning we hire nice people. And do thoughtful things. Like giving out dog biscuits at our drive-up windows. And increasing our lollipop budget by one hundred percent.

If you're a business customer, it means making loan decisions locally instead of in some far-flung processing center where you're an unknown entity.

We even choose to play a very active role in our customers' communities. So much so that we offer our employees paid sabbaticals to roll up their sleeves and help where the need is greatest.

One last thing: we're not perfect. Except when it comes to taking a little constructive criticism when a customer sees fit to give it.

No, you don't have to bank here at Citizens. But we're doing everything we can to make sure that you do. Including giving you our toll-free number: 1-800-222-4322.

Scooter Donated To 1000 Southern Artery Resident

City Councillors Bruce Ayers and Ted DeCristofaro and Quincy Commission on Disability Chairman Bill Murphy recently presented a Bruno three-wheeled scooter from the Quincy Swap Program to Ed McIntosh, a resident of 1000 Southern Artery in Quincy.

The scooter was a donation from the late Edward Sullivan.

Ayers and Murphy worked together to establish the program over 18 months ago. Through the program, those who no longer need equipment used by the disabled--both electric and manual--donate it to those who do.

"It's very gratifying to be able to help out Quincy residents who may not have proper funding sources, whether it's Medicaid, Medicare, or insurance coverage," said Ayers.

For more information about the program, call Ayers call 472-9877.

Morrissey, Bellotti, Ask MWRA To Clean Up Squantum Causeway

State Sen. Michael Morrissey and State Rep. Michael Bellotti recently met with officials from the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to reinforce the displeasure of Squantum residents regarding the poor condition of East Squantum St.

The MWRA recently completed the Force Main Rehabilitation and the Heath and Deerfield Streets Flooding projects in the area. Joining the meeting with Morrissey and Michael Bellotti were Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers, Quincy DPW Commissioner David Colton and Chris Carroll, chairman of the Quincy Conservation Commission, who have all been in contact with the MWRA regarding the issue.

"We are grateful that the MWRA has finally completed the tasks they set out to accomplish. These repairs were absolutely necessary for the people of Squantum", said Morrissey following an on-site inspection of the repairs.

"I'm just disappointed it took so long and that the roadway still needs cleaning and final work. We need to continue to follow through with these repairs until the roadway is completely safe for the residents of the community, to use and pass on."

A spokesperson for the MWRA confirmed that the contractor has been informed and that the causeway should be completed within the next few weeks. Morrissey and Bellotti expressed their satisfaction that the MWRA has offered to take swift action and acknowledged its co-operation with Mayor James Sheets and Colton in bringing this project to its completion.

Any resident who wants to express any concerns regarding the project should call Morrissey at 722-1494 or Bellotti at 722-2210.

Snug Harbor School Offers Junior Achievement Program

The Snug Harbor Community School recently implemented an economics program designed to educate and inspire children.

The program, known as Junior Achievement, was taught to all students in Grades 1-5.

The program teaches students about economics through hands-on activities. Students learn about the free enterprise system and gain an understanding of the correlation between school and the world of work.

The themes of the Junior Achievement program follow the same that are taught in the school's social studies program. the program therefore provided students with a compatible enrichment curriculum that supplemented their social studies lessons.

The program was funded by Clean Harbors, Environmental Companies which purchased all of the curriculum kits, instructors, manuals and materials. In addition, employees from Clean Harbors volunteered to teach the program to the school's students. The volunteers attended two training and orientation sessions, made classroom observations, and then taught the program for a five-week period.

The school first learned about the program when Principal Richard O'Brien attended a workshop where Junior Achievement was featured. Denise Flynn, marketing manager of Clean Harbors, put the school in touch with company Vice President, William Geary, to explore the possibility of a partnership between the school and Clean Harbors. After a meeting between O'Brien, Assistant Principal Allan Osborne, Geary and Flynn,, Clean Harbors agreed to sponsor the program.

Anne Marie O'Donnell from Clean Harbors' human services office recruited employees to serve as instructors and arranged for training sessions. Altogether, 16 Clean Harbors employees volunteered to serve. At the conclusion of the program, the Clean Harbors employees presented the Snug Harbor students with certificates of completion, Junior Achievement pins, and a special commemorative piggy bank.

O'Brien said the program was extremely successful. He added that teachers have commented very favorably on the quality of the curriculum and feel that having representatives from the business community in the classrooms provided the students with a valuable experience.

For further information, call Richard O'Brien, Principal, Snug Harbor Community school, 984-8763, Denise Flynn, Marketing Manager, Junior Achievement, 341-4069 or Anne Marie O'Donnell, Human Services Office, Clean Harbors, 849-1800, Ext. 4107.

Parking Lot Opening Clears Way For City Festival Carnival

"If Monarch Insurance had not agreed to open Lot 37 for parking, the Quincy City Festival Carnival would not be allowed at Marina Bay", said Quincy License Board chairman Joseph Shea, at Tuesday's meeting.

And according to Ward 6 Councillor, Bruce Ayers, who said although he was "pleased that the opening of Lot 37 will alleviate some of the traffic congestion", he nonetheless said this would be the "last year the carnival will be held at Marina Bay" if the parking problems aren't solved. to please both the residents and those attending events held there.

The 6th annual carnival will be held from June 6 through June 11. Carnival owner Eugene J. Dean assured the board that there would be no animals in the carnival

Shea said the lot will be able to accommodate some 400 cars, and he expressed hope that the lot would continue to be open for the "rest of the year".

George O'Malley, of Coastal Partners at Marina Bay said the carnival will be held in the back lot of the former Jordan Marsh warehouse. He assured the board the boats that are stored in the parking lot will be removed by the weekend.

Dental Dialogue

LOOSE DENTURE LARGE CONCERN

Q: I've had three sets of dentures in the last 10 years. My current set have been relined twice, yet by 5:00 PM they're swimming in my mouth and driving me crazy. What is wrong, and what can I do?

A: It's sad, but true, that you may never have the comfort you desire with a conventional denture. In some people, the anatomy of the mouth just doesn't allow a good, tight fit. In others, the pressure of the denture itself can actually cause the gums to "shrink," thus making the fit become loose. This appears to be what's happening in your case, with the effects becoming evident around 5:00 PM. Leaving your dentures out at night, or, as a last resort, using denture adhesive, may help. Your best bet, though, is to see your dentist; recent advances in implant or other dental technologies could be the key to losing your "loose" problem.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Correct Pricing Is Key To A Successful Home Sale

By ART FOLEY

If you're hiring a Realtor to sell your home, he has control over his marketing plan but not over the market.

When hiring a Realtor, be concerned about him as a professional, how he'll market the home and how knowledgeable he is about the market your home is located in. Picking the individual who gives you the highest price might be a big mistake. He should be able to document how he arrived at the value so that you, too, can arrive at the same conclusion.

Houses that are presently on the market, especially if they've been on for a long time, are a poor indicator of what your home is worth. If anything, they'll tell you what it's not worth. What homes have actually sold for, that are similar to yours, are the best indicator of what your home is worth. This is how the bank appraiser will also look at it.

But say you could have gotten $175,000 for your home eight or nine years ago and it now could only be worth $149,000. You want to move up to a larger home, but you'll lose all that money. Well, let's take a close look at the situation.

The sum of $175,000 versus $149,000 is a 15 percent decrease. Assuming the home you were moving up to decreased by the same 15 percent, your $250,000 home eight or nine years ago is now $212,500, a reduction of $37,500. So while you've lost $26,000 on the sale of your house, you've saved $37,500 on the purchase of the higher-priced home, a net savings of $11,500. Not such a bad move money-wise.

When a home first comes on the market the first 30 days are a critical period. It is during this time frame that a majority of potential purchasers are going to make a decision on your home.

There are more than 600 Realtors in our area. Let's say half of them have a potential prospect for your home. After your Realtor has listed your home, advertised it, put it on caravan or used one of the myriad of tools that are used in proper marketing, his prospects should be aware of your home and have made a decision on whether to view the property.

After 30 days, most of these prospects have made this decision. Now the only prospects that will be potential candidates are new buyers just entering the market and this is a much smaller pool of candidates.

When you overprice a house and it sits there for two months and then you reduce the price, you've lost the excitement of a new listing. If your Realtor can interest more than one prospect in your home, you'll undoubtedly maximize the price you get for the house. Buyers today are sophisticated, and they know the real value when they see it.

QCAP, QHA Hold Home Ownership Seminar

More than 50 residents of Quincy's public housing attended a recent seminar conducted by Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP), Inc. and Quincy Housing Authority at The Co-operative Bank.

The joint venture between the two agencies was designed to promote home ownership by providing information on the purchase process.

Kaye Wagner, a QCAP housing specialist, encouraged attendees to seek the agency's services for credit counseling, budgeting or any assistance that the agency could offer. QCAP Executive Director Rosemary Wahlberg and Quincy Housing Authority Executive Director Jake Comer spoke to participants about pursuing various programs that are available to assist first-time homebuyers.

Judy Farmer from The Co-operative Bank outlined the process of applying for a mortgage. She included in her discussion the components of a mortgage payment, the differences between fixed and adjustable rate financing, and the relaxed underwriting guidelines used for the first-time homebuyers, such as non-traditional sources of credit references.

Farmer also indicated that The Co-operative Bank participates in programs to assist first-time homebuyers such as the Quincy Soft Second Program and the Massachusetts Housing Finance Authority. After the formal presentation, a question and answer session was held.

Housing authority tenants interested in attending the next session should contact Peg McTavish of Support Services at 847-4378 or Debbie Kidd of QCAP, 479-8181.

1 P.M. Sunday Ceremonies

Television Commentator Speaker At Quincy College Commencement

Quincy College will hold its commencement exercises Sunday at 1 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium, Quincy.

More than 600 students will receive associate degrees or certificates during the ceremony. Television humorist and commentator Dick Flavin will be the commencement speaker.

Henry Bosworth, founder and publisher of The Quincy Sun, will receive an honorary degree.

"Dick Flavin is a wonderful speaker, and I know our students will enjoy what he has to say to them on this very important day," said Linda Wilson, interim college president.

Flavin is from Quincy and is a graduate of Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree and Stonehill College. He is considered one of the foremost humorists and commentators in American. A winner of seven Emmy Awards for television commentary, he has appeared on NBC-TV, CNN, and WBZ-TV in Boston.

Flavin also has written newspaper columns for USA Today and for The Boston Herald. In addition, he has written and composed special material for the Boston Pops and Boston Symphony Orchestra.

DICK FLAVIN
Speaker

HENRY BOSWORTH
Recipient

"We are honored to present Henry Bosworth with an honorary degree from Quincy College," said Sean Barry, the schools' director of public affairs. "Mr. Bosworth's career spans 50 years as a journalist and as a community leader. He is also a Navy veteran, having served in the Pacific aboard the destroyer USS Cogswell during the Second World War."

In making the selection, Wilson said she looked for an individual who has long-standing connections to the community. The Quincy College Board of Governors approved her recommendation.

Bosworth started his newspaper career with the then Quincy Patriot Ledger where he was a reporter and wrote a column. He then joined The Boston Traveler as a reporter and columnist before founding The Quincy Sun in 1968.

In recognition of the 50th anniversary of the end of World War II, commencement shall include a medley of patriotic tunes in appreciation and in memory of veterans.

Commencement day activities will begin with the Alumni Brunch held from 9:15 to 11:15 a.m. at Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center (adjacent to the college's downtown campus). Tickets may be bought at the brunch or reserved in advance by contacting the office of the college president, 984-1776.

ENC Grads Told To Be 'Morally Committed'

Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) President Ervin S. Duggan told graduates of Eastern Nazarene College Monday they must struggle to remain "morally committed" to their beliefs.

ERVIN DUGGAN

Duggan, the keynote speaker at the college's graduation ceremonies, said young Christians entering the "real world" must remain true to those beliefs even when they conflict with those of mainstream society.

"Make it clear that our (Christian) belief is that some choices are better than others and some are just flat-out wrong," he said.

Duggan, who previously worked as a reporter for The Washington Post and as chief of the Federal Communications Commission, criticized America for its "culture of relativism" in which everyone creates his or her own rules and nothing is sacred except the "precious freedom of the individual."

The ceremonies also included prayer and choral hymns.

Eastern Nazarene College is a private, Christian liberal arts institution affiliated with the Protestant Church of the Nazarene.

Quincy Sweeps Season Series

Presidents, DeLisle Edge Red Raiders, Dolbeare

By KERRY BYRNE

It wasn't pretty, but the Quincy High baseball team managed a 4-2 win over North Quincy last week to complete their sweep of the season series.

The Presidents finished the season with a 7-11 record. A scheduled double-header against Falmouth which was to close out their season on Memorial Day was not played. The Red Raiders ended with a record of 4-15.

Quincy capitalized on a series of Red Raider miscues, turning five hits into four runs in the second, third and fourth innings.

Featured in the contest were strong pitching performances by Quincy's Chris DeLisle and North Quincy's Sean Dolbeare. The seniors, each pitching in their final high school game, allowed just nine hits and one earned run between the two. They both went distance.

"It was almost an anachronism," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia. "You have two kids who gave their heart and souls to their schools. They're both seniors and both tough, tough competitors who went out and did a very good job."

Dolbeare's game was particularly impressive, in light of the fact that he pitched a masterful game the week before, going 13 innings in a 2-1 win over Silver Lake. In his final two games on the mound, he pitched an amazing 20 innings, giving up just one earned run.

However, against Quincy he was unable to get the support he needed in the field.

The Presidents struck first with two runs in the top of the second inning. John Hanafin opened the inning when he reached first following a ground ball to first baseman Dan Reynolds. Reynolds tossed the ball to Dolbeare, but the pitcher was unable to get his foot down on the bag. Hanafin then benefitted from a controversial call. The junior attempted to steal second, and the ball from catcher Ken Hannaford beat him by a country mile, but the umpire ruled that the tag was not applied.

With two outs, Mike Sheffer knocked in Hanafin with a massive triple that reached the fence in left-center field. A North Quincy error allowed Jeff Russell to drive in Sheffer with the second run of the inning.

In the third, Mark Glynn scored after reaching on an error. He moved to second when Hanafin's fly ball to the outfield was dropped, and came home when Bobby Walsh nailed a base hit. In the fourth, Bill Marchand's single drove in Sheffer with the only earned run of the game.

Sophomore Brian Beaton, who will be counted on to lead the Red Raiders for the next two years, got his team on the board in the third inning. He reached first base on an error, moved to second after Tim Sheehan laid down a sacrifice bunt, and scored when Steve Heroux found a gap in a shallow left center

Dolbeare scored the final run as North Quincy attempted a comeback bid in the bottom of the seventh. Facing two strikes, he smashed a high pitch over second base for a single. He moved to second when Reynolds reached on an error. Beaton's groundout to first allowed Dolbeare to reach third. He came across the plate when Sheehan reached on an error.

With the tying run on base, the Raiders were unable to complete the comeback effort. A pop fly to senior left fielder Steve Barrett ended the contest.

Quincy-North Split Season Series

NQ Keeps Pratt Trophy After Win Over Quincy

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

Before the North Quincy High School softball team took the field against Quincy last Thursday in the seventh Mary Pratt Classic at McCoy Field, the players promised that the trophy they brought with them as defending champions would stay with them at North Quincy.

That promise was kept as the Red Raiders sailed by the Presidents, 11-4, to keep the trophy for the third straight year.

North now holds a 5-2 advantage over Quincy in the Mary Pratt series, which is contested on the last game of each season between the two schools. The Presidents won the first meeting of the year, 12-8.

The Red Raiders were scheduled to close out their season yesterday (Wednesday) with a make-up game against Old Colony League champion Taunton. The Presidents closed the season with a double-header Tuesday against Notre Dame of Hingham.

In the win over Quincy, NQ's Kerry Ginty had one of her best games of the season, going 3 for 5 with two runs scored. She helped produce another run by taking part in a double steal with Kerry Skehan in the fourth inning.

Katie Gallagher collected three hits, all singles, to lead Quincy's hitting.

North made sure they would not be denied with two big innings that accounted for nine of their runs. Trailing 1-0 in the third, the Raiders scored four runs to take the lead for good. Ginty collected her second hit, a single, followed by a Jen Doherty walk. Ginty scored when Jen Teahan singled. Nancy Walker then singled to score Doherty and Teahan. Walker then scored the fourth run of the inning.

The Raiders sent 10 batters to the plate and scored five runs in the sixth. Denise Anderson walked, Doherty singled, and Kristen Proude was hit by a pitch which loaded the bases.

Teahan singled, scoring Anderson. Walker then singled in Doherty. Kelly Keegan delivered the best hit of the inning, a double, which plated Proude and Teahan and close out the North Quincy scoring.

"My team is now playing the way they know how to play," said North Quincy coach Carolyn Parsley. "Our hitting has been hurting us but this game boosts our confidence with the bats."

Quincy's first run came in the first when Gallagher singled and then scored when Alisha Ford nailed a base hit.

Heather Wakelin scored the Presidents' second run in the fourth after she led off with a walk and came home on a Kerri Connolly single.

The Presidents finished their scoring in the sixth

Sports Spotlight

By KERRY BYRNE

I was coaching the Quincy High freshmen football team last year. We went to Barnstable. On the first play of the game, little Danny Kane's leg is practically snapped in half.

Someone at the field had a cellular phone so we called his parents to tell them that he was being taken to Cape Cod Hospital. His parents probably would have been at the game had it not been a ridiculous 75-mile drive from Quincy.

A couple of weeks ago I went to Mitchell-McCoy Field to cover the Quincy High softball team's game against Barnstable. There was a rush-hour accident on Route 3 and the visitors were caught in the traffic.

The umpires decided to call the game if Barnstable did not show up by 4:30. As we were about to leave, the bus arrived up with the Barnstable club. What if they had come five minutes later? Everybody would have been gone and Barnstable would have made the traffic-choked, 150-mile round trip for nothing.

The game finally starts at about 5 o'clock, an hour and a half behind schedule. At 7 the game ends, and the girls from Barnstable begin the long journey home. By the time they got back to their school, changed and made it home, what time was it? Perhaps 9:30, 10 o'clock? On a Monday night?

Is this necessary? No, it is not. And, as another high school sports year comes to a close, the Quincy schools should seriously consider moving to another league.

We live in one of the most densely populated states in the most densely populated corner of the nation. Within a 75-mile radius live approximately 5 million people, translating to hundreds of high schools.

Framingham, Worcester, Fitchburg, Salem, N.H., Seabrook, N.H., Pawtucket, R.I. and Providence, R.I. are all closer to Quincy than Old Colony League towns Barnstable and Falmouth. In fact, as the crow flies, so are certain towns in Connecticut.

Get the idea? There is no reason for kids to be traveling several hours round trip for a two-hour athletic event. This is not Texas where endless miles of barren landscape might separate one population center from the next. Our young athletes do not need to make 150-mile round trips.

I know it's a pain for the football teams, which have to make only one such trip each year. I can imagine what it's like for the other sports teams that have to make the trip twice each season, and usually in the middle of the week.

High school league alignment and rivalries should be based on some sort of social, economic or geographic commonality. What does Quincy have in common with Barnstable or Falmouth, besides having the same U.S. Representative in the equally asinine 10th District that somehow includes Quincy and Provincetown but not Quincy and Milton? Nothing, that's what.

There were a number of factors that caused the Quincy schools to bolt from the former Suburban League, a league in which the farthest trip each year was a 45 minute jaunt up to Waltham. One was a supposed inability to compete against the larger schools in the league. This is unfortunate, and it makes our schools look, how should I say, wimpy.

At the time, Quincy High School in particular was in the bottom of a talent pool cycle. (I know, I started on the football team back then.) Both schools dropped almighty Brockton from the football schedule after the 1987 season, even though they were still in the same league. Then, a year or two later, the Quincy schools moved to the great geographical chasm known as the Old Colony League.

There is no doubt, that in the last couple of years, both Quincy and North Quincy could have toppled Brockton, which recently has struggled with mediocrity.

Quincy High had a long, long rivalry with Brockton; a rivalry that pre-dated by many years its rivalry with North Quincy. In terms of the aforementioned social, economic and geographic factors, Quincy and Brockton had, and have, a great deal in common. Perhaps most important is that the cities are only 20 minutes apart.

But this wasn't taken into consideration. The idea was to get into a league in which the Quincy schools could be more competitive. The last time NQ played Brockton, which at the time was ranked among the top 5 high school football teams in the nation, they lost by just two touchdowns on their way to a 5-4-1 season. This past season North Quincy finished 6-4. So did Brockton. So did Quincy. Did we gain anything with the move, other than trips to scenic Cape Cod in the dead of winter? I don't know.

Meanwhile, former Suburban League opponent Brookline plays in the Division 2 Bay State League.

Am I missing something? Or is it time to make a move before another little Danny Kane is injured miles from home; or before a team from Quincy makes a 150-mile trip for nothing?

Junior League

Kiwanis On Win Streak, Burke Explodes

The Kiwanis Club has won five straight, including a well-played 5-1 win over Jaehnig Club, in Quincy Junior League action.

Chris Doherty recorded the victory with three strong innings on the mound and helped his own cause with four hits. Jeff Butts, Pat O'Brien and Colin Chesley hit the ball well. Tom Buckley had a strong game behind the plate, throwing out one would-be base stealer.

Wayne Moynihan shined for Keohane's with two doubles and a triple. Matt Gregory doubled and had a heads-up game at catcher. Matt Mooney pitched well in relief and Chris Dolbeare made a couple of dynamite plays at second base.

South Shore Buick edged Burgin Platner, 4-2.

John Fidalgo pitched his team to victory and his bases-loaded double which drove in two was the game's decisive hit. His strikeouts accounted for 15 of BP's 18 outs.

Joe Cox reached base three times for SSB. Joey Holleran and Jason Fidalgo played well and Miah Hasson's diving catch at second base was the defensive highlight of the game.

BP pitcher Andy Mannix allowed just five hits. Max Repoff led the offense with two base hits while Ziggy Zerrigan, Chopper Walsh and Coleman McCormick had strong all-around efforts.

Selter aided his cause with two hits. Tom Hughes reached base three times for Beacon. Billy Croke, Andy Feenan and Brent Austin played well.

SSB was led by the play of Dave Centrella (three innings pitched), John Fidalgo (two hits), Eric Stanton, Neal Gavin and Kevin Holleran.

Six runs by Rotary in the third inning proved the difference as they roared past Lions, 12-9.

Matt Millerick's towering home run in the first set the tone for the Rotary batsmen. David Benn went 3 for 4 with three RBI. Joe Thorley, Jordan Virtue and Benn smashed key doubles. Ten-year-old Steve Pizzi started and pitched an outstanding game. Jackie Liuzzo picked up the save with a brilliant relief effort.

Kenny's Lock dropped a 7-1 decision to Hurley Insurance.

Hurley was paced by the one-hit pitching performance of Stephen Malone. Malone aided his cause with a 3 for 4 effort at the plate. An excellent day by catcher Mike Maloney sealed the fate of Kenny's Lock.

Reichel pitched well for Kenny's Lock. Breslin recorded the team's only hit, a double, in the sixth inning, foiling Malone's no-hit bid.

Junior Farm

Pitching, Defense Strong Throughout League

GET ON THE BALL (JOINT)

When a car's front end shimmies, vibration is felt in the steering wheel, and/or an audible clunk is heard when the brakes are applied, it may signal a worn ball joint(s). This is the part that connects the lower control arm with the steering knuckle. The lower control arm attaches the steering knuckle to the frame of the car, while the steering knuckle supports the axle assembly and the entire wheel. Before a ball joint is replaced to correct a vibration, it may be a good idea to have the front wheels balanced. Most cases of steering wheel vibration and front end shimmy are caused by improperly balanced wheels. Also bear in mind that a need to replace the ball joint on one side does not always necessarily mean that the one on the other side must also be replaced.

Hint: One of the tests to determine the health of a ball joint is the ball joint axial and radial free play test which tests for up-and-down and side-to-side looseness.

For most of your cars maintenance needs, including complete front end work, rely on our technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Too often children are familiar with and expect all the privileges of belonging to a family circle, but have not been trained in assuming the responsibilities which should always accompany privileges. Children should be expected to share in the work of the home, thereby developing a sense of responsibility and experiencing the joy of cooperative effort which will extend to their outside relationships later.

To learn what it means to submerge one's own personal interests in the larger interests of the family develops in the children a proper sense of values and reduces his natural selfishness. When a child had been deprived of the experience of taking his share of responsibility in the home, he invariably finds it difficult to make the necessary adjustments when he leaves his home and gets out into the real world on his own . . .

Funding For Yacht Clubs Dredging Proposed In Capital Outlay Bill

Senator Michael Morrissey announced the State Senate has included language in a capital outlay bond bill which provides funding for the dredging of the Wollaston and Squantum Yacht Clubs in Quincy Bay.

"The legislature approved an amendment which I sponsored to the 1994 bond authorization which provided $10 million for dredging of the Commonwealth's waterways." Morrissey said. "This language amends that bond bill to authorize and direct the Department of Environmental Management's (DEM) Division of Waterways to dredge the Wollaston and Squantum Yacht Clubs, in an attempt to move the project up on DEM's priority list."

The bill will now go to a House/Senate Conference Committee where differences in the House and Senate versions will be ironed out. The language added by Morrissey must survive the Conference Committee and the Governor's veto.

It is also important to note the Governor must authorize the project and determine that it will fit under the state's current bond cap before construction can begin, Morrissey said.

"Although this is far from a done deal, we have taken a major step towards moving forward with this project. I am hopeful that the pieces will fall in place so that we can get the channel dredged in the very near future." Morrissey said.

Rep. Michael Bellotti, whose district includes the two yacht clubs, has said that he will urge the House members of the Conference Committee to accept the Senate language on the dredging project. Bellotti also sponsored an amendment in the 1996 Fiscal Year budget in an attempt to move the project up on the priority list.

Quincy 2000 2nd Phase Signage Begins

The kick-off for Phase 2 of the Quincy 2000 Corporation's Signage Improvement Program has been launched.

The development of quality permanent business signs in Quincy's commercial districts is the goal of the endeavor's incentive grant program. Phase 2 will allow more business and property owners to participate.

Quincy 2000 Interim Executive Director Joseph Mannarino had high praise for the success of the program.

"To date, the grant program has helped 40 business and property owners purchase new signs or refurbish their existing signs," he said. "Through this program, Quincy 2000 has assisted in business development and in the removal of unsightly and unsafe signage in many parts of the city. The program will change in some ways to allow more Quincy businesses to share the available grant money."

Quincy 2000 is now offering 50 percent matching grants, up to $1,000, for a new or replacement sign. Grants will match 50 percent of the total cost of any accepted sign project, including the costs of design, construction, permitting and installation. A requirement new to the program is that each applicant obtain two cost estimates from different sign makers.

As one of the components of Quincy's continued revitalization, the Quincy 2000 Corporation has offered grants for new signs since the fall of 1993. The grants have served as an incentive for store building owners to replace or improve their external signage.

The variety of signs in Quincy funded through the program can be seen at businesses such as Hancock Convenience, Computer Workshop, Blackwood Pharmacy, Anthony Palma Hairstylist and others. Quincy 2000 will continue to give grants for all types of quality business signs, Mannarino said.

Current funding allows Quincy 2000 to provide sign grants for businesses in Quincy Center and Wollaston. Mannarino said that soon, North Quincy businesses will be eligible to receive funding as well. All businesses in those districts are encouraged to contact Quincy 2000 for details.

WHAT IS A SLIPPED DISC?

The term "slipped disc" has been used commonly, by doctors and patients alike, to generally describe an injury to one of the 23 "jelly-like" shock absorbers found between each of the bones or vertebrae of the spine. These intervertebral discs are ligaments which actually consist of a "jelly-like" middle surrounded by rings of cartilage. While these discs do not actually "slip" from between the spinal bones, they can be worn, compressed, bulged, or ruptured causing pressure on the adjacent spinal nerves. It is this bulged or ruptured disc that pressures or "pinches" the nerve which actually causes the severe back and/or leg pain that may result. Often times, muscle spasms will accompany a disc injury as the body attempts to stabilize or splint the damaged lower back or neck.

While the intervertebral discs may lose some of their height and resiliency and dry out slightly over the years, the final straw of a disc injury may be a sudden twist or slip, an improper lift, or a seemingly minor accident.

Chiropractors are well qualified in the prevention and/or treatment of disc injuries and often employ the modern technology of MRI or Catscan to ensure accurate diagnosis. Chiropractors use a drugless, non-surgical approach which may include manipulation, forms of therapy, proper exercise and bed rest.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

Salem Seen As 'Staple Tourist Attraction'

"It went extremely well considering the fact that it started out with a rainy day on a national holiday, I am really pleased. We had over 400 people," MacMullen said.

The director said the actual number of visitors was 407. That figure, he said is "amazing" for two main reasons: One, Monday's weather was overcast and rainy. Two, the short window to get the Salem ready for visitors.

"It's been basically seven months since we brought the ship up here. That's amazing in itself. We couldn't really begin working on it until it was moved in January. I am really pleased."

Besides the number of visitors, MacMullen said there was another positive sign.

"Everybody who came aboard wants to come back," he said. "It's really nice to have that kind of repeat business. If we can continue to open other spaces on the ship, more and more people will want to come see that."

The ship is open seven days a week at 10 a.m. The last tour starts at 6 p.m. and the ship is secured at 7 p.m.

For the first two weeks, group tours will be led by museum staff and volunteers. The tours will begin when groups of 10 have assembled. Smaller groups will get tours if they have waited more than 15 minutes.

Groups of 10 or more should call the museum office at 479-7900 so that special tour arrangements can be made.

After June 11, visitors will view the ship on their own. By that time, the museum will have printed maps of the tour route.

With the first tourist season underway, MacMullen said work will continue on two other fronts: planning and refurbishing.

MacMullen said a committee is being set up to devise a business plan for the museum's first year of operation.

"It will set goals and objectives of the museum for the first year as far as revenue. We're in good shape now that the ship is open, and we'll increase staff as revenues come in, set up new a accounting system, and address personnel issues," MacMullen said.

Chosen to serve on the committee are Bill Lucey, a CPA in the Quincy firm of O'Connor & Drew, P.C.; Julie Rabkin of the Bank of Boston; Dan Yeager, a tourism consultant for Quincy 2000; Joseph Mannarino, interim executive director of Quincy 2000; Kathleen Devine, the museum's financial advisor; and MacMullen.

The plan, which MacMullen said will be presented to the Board of Directors June 30, will make a projection in terms of visitation the first year. He declined to make his own projection and said the committee will come up with a figure.

MacMullen, who envisions the Salem as a modern-day Plimoth Plantation, said the ship's restoration effort will be ongoing as part of her interpretation to the public.

"We're cleaning down below, finishing off each space one by one, there's really a minimum amount of work to be done in the interior of the ship. As you look at the exterior, we are still painting port side, and working on the deck.

"The teak deck and some of the painting we'll be doing forever. But then again that's how we're showing the ship for reactivization, and this is the work you would normally see when a ship came into a shipyard for reactivization.

"It's all part of the presentation," he added.

The Salem's first visitor Monday turned out to be a neighbor. Joseph Murray of nearby DesMoines Rd., Quincy Point, arrived on board at 9:30 a.m.

"I've been watching the ship in the months since it's been here and watched it gradually get fixed up and I've been curious about what exactly was here," Murray said. "It's really nice that she's come home. It's a fitting tribute to the folks who built her and sailed on her.

"I know shipyard work is extremely dangerous and dirty and I'm sure that some men gave up parts of their bodies as well as time in manufacturing this wonderful piece of work. On Memorial Day you think about them as well as the benefits we get from this ship going around and showing the flag.

"I thought it was a good thing to come by on Memorial Day and see the old girl."

The Salem had opened on May 14 for its commissioning as a naval museum but was temporarily closed the next day by Mayor James Sheets in order for the permission paperwork to be finalized and to give the staff some time off.

Audit Of Ambulance Co. Could Begin Next Week

the Quincy residents who have paid unnecessarily for ambulance service.

Raymondi added he has been contacted by other clients with similar billing discrepancies since he first discovered the problem and said the 126 misbillings discovered by the ambulance company are likely only "the tip of the iceberg" as far as the problem is concerned.

The city began to look into the matter last after Raymondi told McGrath and The Sun that at least two of his clients have been wrongfully charged by Norfolk-Bristol. Raymondi said the clients were charged despite language in the ambulance contract which clearly indicates that their health insurance situations ensure that they should not have been billed for the company's services.

McGrath told The Sun after reviewing documents provided by Raymondi that there appeared to be a legitimate problem and subsequently contacted DiPisa. The hospital then contacted Norfolk-Bristol.

Norfolk-Bristol President Robert Zammito Jr. responded with a letter dated May 11 which stated that he had brought the matter to the company's billing office.

"I was distressed to learn that on 1-13-95 approximately 2,000 claims were sent to collection, of which 126 were Quincy claims sent in error," he wrote.

Zammito could not be reached for comment at press time, but has told The Sun that the company is open-minded about an audit. The company has served Quincy since February 1990.

State Police Patrols Begin At Wollaston Beach

Quincy Police will continue their enforcement efforts on local streets.

Morrissey, Bellotti and Cheney said they requested State Police help in an early effort to head off potential problems along Wollaston Beach.

Last year, a state delegation and the City Council received several complaints about groups of young people along the beach creating disturbances.

"That will not be tolerated this year." "We are starting early and enforcement will be sure and swift.

Wollaston Beach is for families to enjoy walking, bathing, skating, jogging, etc. People enjoying the beach have the right to be free from rowdy groups."

Public Hearing June 7 On Proposed School Budget

The Quincy School Committee will hold a public hearing on the proposed FY96 budget for the Quincy Public Schools Wednesday, June 7 at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Mayor James Sheets has included a school budget figure of $42,893,257 in his proposed $136.6 million municipal budget for the new fiscal year which begins July 1. The figure is $1,461,214 or about 2.3 percent more than last year's school budget.

All are welcome to attend the hearing.

Concourse Committee Meeting

The Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) related to the proposed Quincy Center Concourse project will meet today (Thursday) at 3:15 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The committee, which is composed of residents and the affected business community, is seeking public input on the $6 million, 1500-foot concourse project that would link part of Hancock Street with Burgin Parkway.

Woman Awarded $950,000 For Injuries Caused By MBTA Bus

A jury has awarded $950,000 to Hilda G. Galvin of Quincy for injuries she sustained in November, 1993, when she was struck by an MBTA bus as she was crossing from a pedestrian drop-off island in Quincy Center Station.

Galvin, who was 86 years old at the the time, sustained a sub-dural hematoma and a fractured skull and was taken to Boston City Hospital for emergency brain surgery.

The lawsuit against the T, brought by Attys.. Thomas M. Kiley of Boston and Bernard Hamill of Quincy, claimed that the bus operator was negligent and that the design of the station itself was unsafe because appropriate crosswalks were not provided in the area where the accident occurred. The jury found 35 percent comparative negligence on the part of the plaintiff.

MWRA Executive Director Says Waterfront Will 'Thrive' Again

Wollaston Beach Swim Shows Water Quality Improving

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

It's a warm, hazy summer afternoon and you want to cool off so you head for a swim at Wollaston Beach.

Wol*laston Beach?*

Yes, Wollaston Beach water is regarded as safe and swimmable by the agency charged with cleaning it, provided it hasn't rained for a few days. In fact, Quincy Bay and Boston Harbor are the cleanest they've been in a number of years and water quality will only get better in the near future.

That's the message officials from the MWRA and Quincy Public Works Department demonstrated last Friday with five-minute dip in the chilly but clean water off Wollaston Beach.

"It's really quite nice. It's more pleasant than I thought it would be," said a refreshed Doug MacDonald, the MWRA's executive director, emerging from the water.

"I even opened my eyes under water," said an equally impressed Public Works Commissioner David Colton.

They were joined by two other MWRA employees, Mike Connor, the agency's director of environmental quality; and Public Affairs Director Sheila McGann.

Like a "first of the season" dip, the four waded into the water together, testing the mid-50's temperature. About 20 yards from shore, they turned toward the beach and began swimming. Once they reached shallow water, they turned again and swam out another 20 yards before returning to the beach.

After his swim, MacDonald expressed confidence that Wollaston Beach and other waterfront areas in and around Boston Harbor will someday return to their "glory days" and again be popular beach destinations.

Asked how long before Quincy Bay water quality is clean and safe every summer day, even after rainy days, MacDonald replied, "Some of that's a question about how quickly Quincy can get some of the local problems fixed. Some of the so-called combined sewer overflow problems that the MWRA will be addressing won't be fixed until the early part of the 2000s.

"But . . . it's interesting. Time passes so quickly. In the four years since we started the construction on Deer Island, we've gone from nowhere to the point where it's a pleasure for us to come down and use the beach. That four years has gone very quickly and in four more years I promise this beach is going to be full of people," MacDonald told the Sun during a casual, seawall interview.

"(Wollaston Beach) was once a thriving beach area and it will be again," he added.

MacDonald, who took command of the Boston Harbor cleanup project in March, 1992, says the water quality has improved vastly and will only get better in the years to come.

"Everywhere in Boston Harbor the water is cleaner because the sludge isn't going into the harbor anymore from the treatment plants. One of the things we've learned is that there's a lot of local things that also affect the water right in your neighborhood.

"Here at Wollaston Beach one of the problems is that a lot of the local sewers and storm drains are

Cheney Proposal Has Council Interested But:

Sheets Skeptical On City Taking Over Rubbish Collection

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets and Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton have expressed reservations about a proposal to have the city assume responsibility for its own rubbish pickup and disposal.

The proposal was introduced by City Council President Michael Cheney during a council budget session last week. Some councillors expressed interest in the idea.

Sheets, however, said at press time that while he is willing to look at any such proposal, he cannot foresee the city taking that action in the future.

"I would not support that concept unless it were demonstrated there would be a tremendous amount of savings in dollars," he said. "We would have to buy trucks, hire employees. I would look at any proposal, but I'm very skeptical."

The mayor said there are also other issues, such as workers' compensation, that could become problematic if the city assumed responsibility for the rubbish.

He also expressed support of Browning-Ferris Industries, which has serviced the city since the early 1970s and has held its current contract since 1992. Efficiency of operation is as much of a consideration as cost, he said.

"BFI has done an outstanding job," said Sheets. "I just think that 'if it ain't broke, don't fix it.'"

Sheets said he will discuss the topic of rubbish collection with mayors from cities of a comparable size next week at the U.S. Conference of Mayors in Miami, Fla. But he added that he already suspects most cities use private companies.

City Solicitor Stephen McGrath said the council cannot approve any new rubbish plan without the mayor's approval.

Cheney said he did an in-depth study of the matter and is convinced the city could save $750,000 to $1 million annually if it takes over the rubbish duties. He noted that he came up with that figure by taking into consideration a number of factors, including the cost of rubbish trucks, payments over a 10-year period (the life expectancy

Final Figure $135.7 M

$863,143 FY96 Budget Cut Largest In Memory

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The City Council has slashed $863,143 from Mayor James Sheets' proposed FY96 municipal budget, the largest such reduction in recent memory.

The final budget, approved by the council Monday night, totals about $135.7 million. The mayor had proposed a budget of around $136.6 million for the next fiscal year, which begins July 1.

City Auditor Robert Foy said the reduction means there will only be a slight increase in the city's property taxes later this year, although he would not speculate on a figure.

While the council had made minor reductions in three previous budget sessions, the bulk of the money--over $600,000--was part of eight cuts Monday night. The largest of those was a 6 percent across-the-board cut that will affect all city departments except the school department, a total reduction of $327,972.

The across-the-board cut was approved 7-2. The only councillors to vote against it are the two not running for re-election: Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro and Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, who said the cut would hurt smaller departments and could possibly threaten city services.

Others, including Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill, disagreed.

"This budget (including the cuts) does not cut that service level," he said. "I want that made clear."

Supporters of the cut said departments can apply it to resources such as office supplies instead of personnel or other areas.

The second highest cut made Monday night was $150,000 for employee health benefits, since the city expects a $200,000 surplus this year and only a slight increase next year. The rest were considerably less.

Councillors said the main reason they went for such a high budget reduction was because they were trying to keep property taxes down. Although the city was able to pass a tax-free budget last year, Sheets said earlier this year that would not again be possible.

"The mayor's going to have to make some tough decisions," said Councillor-at-Large Joseph LaRaia. "But will the city have enough money? I'd

Neighbors Want Restrictions On Dunkin Donuts Shop

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Disappointed that no cause was found to rescind the license granted to Dunkin Donuts for a shop at 825 Southern Artery, neighbors submitted a list of proposed restrictions to the License Board Tuesday for consideration.

Last week, City Solicitor Steven J. McGrath said the board may not reverse its decision and cited not having probable "cause"

Abutters had a chance to question Mr. McGrath at length with William LaRaia addressing McGrath's letter,calling it a "smoke screen".

McGrath told the audience that the "letter speaks for itself". However, in explaining "cause", he said if the company misrepresented or had a criminal record or covered up information, that would be "cause", but added, none of these came into pass.

The list of restrictions submitted by abutter Denis Rush, contained several contingencies to the operating of the license from limited hours from 6 a.m. to 6 p..m. (not 11 p.m.) as requested to restricted dumpster placement.

Other restrictions were"

•No cooking ever.

•No drive-up window. This will address safety, traffic, noise and quality of life issues.

•Install and maintain a visual and sound barrier along southern Artery and a neighbor,, Fran Donahoe's property. (Mrs. Donahoe's house is about 10-15 feet away from the Donut shop.

•No entrance or exit onto Southern Artery near Donohoe's property. Install curbing.

•Police detail during week for school children and nights and weekends during church events.(Quincy Point Congregational Church owns the property that the Donut shop is on)

•Signs on Washington St. only, which will promote entrance and exit onto Washington St.

•No truck (overnight parking), equipment storage at site. minimizing impact to the neighborhood.

•Restrict parking behind the building to church services (Sundays, Holidays) only. No customer parking behind the building minimizing impact to abutters.

•Landlord and Tenant must notify neighbors and abutters about licenses and permits via timely posted letter.

•Quarterly cleaning parking lot and ground

•Alley/driveways to Abbey Rd. blocked.

Neighbors also voiced concerns over the safety of children at the church child care center and walking to St. Joseph's school.

During the long meeting, Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, who abutters criticized for not notifying them about the donut shop, apologized to the audience and told of his recent illness and the fact that he was "remiss in doing what I should've done" He added "Don't lose faith in me", and said "I've done a good job for Ward 2 for many years". He promised the abutters that "everything will be done" as the list of restrictions is examined.

A meeting will be held next Tuesday after the license board meeting to dicuss the restrictions.

Bomb Defusers To Be Tested On Moon Island Saturday

The City of Boston's Bomb Squad will test new bomb defusing and detonating equipment at the Moon Island gun range Saturday from noon to 4 p.m.

The action will be a test of new equipment by the Boston Police Department. No bombs will be transported through Quincy streets.

Quincy officials have said that residents may wish to adjust their schedules for the day, as there may be some noise resulting from the testing.

Boston officials said they are giving the advance notice of the testing as part of their stated intention of improving relationships with the City of Quincy. Officials from both cities have been working together to determine the usage of the island, which is owned by Boston but falls within Quincy city limits in Squantum.

Board Sets Restrictions At Marina Parking Lot

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Quincy License Board chairman Joseph Shea, expressing concerns over the parking at Marina Bay, lauded the Monarch Insurance Co., for agreeing to open Lot 37 for this week's carnival.

The controversial lot, which can hold up to 400 cars, has been closed to the public causing huge parking problems at Marina Bay. Shea said he hopes that Monarch will "continue to keep Lot 37 open all year" and added he was "keeping his fingers crossed".

Acknowledging the fact that the lines of communication between Marina Bay and the License Board had improved greatly over last summer, Shea nonetheless gave George O'Malley, of Coastal Partners, part owner of Marina Bay a list of restrictions

They are as follows:

•New signage strategically placed on Victory Road clearly designating all parking areas.

•Repaint all fire lanes and crosswalk immediately. No parking is allowed in fire lanes and crosswalks.

•Replace all broken lights on Victory Road and Seaport Drive and repair all potholes at rotary. These access roads should remain safe and well lit. Shea also added the problem of sewerage be addressed.

•A copy of any agreement regarding parking on any MWRA or MDC lots should be provided to the city.

•A bituminous concrete walk should be provided from the front of the tent area around the periphery of the lot to the boardwalk. This walk should also be supplemented with a fence to protect pedestrians from falling into the docking area. A crossing area should be delineated between the MDC/MWRA lot and the terminus of the newly paved sidewalk. Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers emphasized that the concrete walk should be flush to be handicapped accessible.

•Coastal Partners/O'Connell Companies should record parking demands within the tent lot for the rest of the year. The above reference lot known as the Tent Lot should be reconstructed and arranged in a more professional manner.

•Removal of all boats and cradles from all proposed parking areas. It is strongly suggested not to park boats in front of the tent.

•Police and Traffic Attendants should be stationed at key points at exits of Marina at closing time on busy evenings.

•The proponents have two weeks to file revisal plans of all parking and current corrections and improvements. This plan should also include a construction schedule for all improvement suggested in this memo.

•A copy of recorded orders and plans from Conservation Commission showing permits to complete other work should be submitted to License Board.

•License Board members and the traffic engineer will be asked to make periodic checks of Marina activities throughout Summer and Fall of 1995.

•Councillor Ayers and License Board members and proponents will work together to strengthen lines of communication among all interested parties at Marina.

•And finally, in the fall of 1995, a completed detailed plan to the Marina improvements and future projects should be provided to the License Board.

Number Of Salem Visitors Approaching 1000

The number of visitors to the USS Salem is approaching 1000 since the centerpiece of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum opened for tours 10 days ago, according to museum officials.

The most up-to-date admissions figures show 720 visitors have toured the ship during the Memorial Day holiday and first weekend. Also, an estimated 200 toured the ship during the first week.

The museum opened on Monday, May 29 with 407 visitors. During this past weekend, 125 people on Saturday and another 185 people on Sunday visited the Quincy-built cruiser at the museum located at the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy Point, museum officials said.

They estimated 30 to 40 people are visiting the ship on the weekdays.

Executive Director William MacMullen said he is pleased with the turnout to date.

""We had some minor trouble meeting our initial opening date, however, the kinks have been worked out and we're thrilled to have 'lowered the gangplank,'" he said. "We're especially pleased with the enthusiastic turnout on Memorial Day.

"The public has been patient and supportive, and due to the hard work of our staff and community officials, we now have something truly special to offer," MacMullen added.

Guided tours aboard the USS Salem begin at 10 a.m. and continue throughout the day until 6 p.m., with the ship closing at 7 p.m. The USS Salem is docked at the Fore River Shipyard, located on Wharf St. in Quincy Point.

Admission is $5 for adults, $3 for senior citizens and youngsters. Children under age 3 are free.

ANOTHER TICKING TIME BOMB

There is one more good reason to check yourself for ticks if you spend any time in tick-friendly, wooded areas: ehrlichiosis. Pronounced ur-lik-ee-OH-sis, this newly emerging disease is spread in the same way as Lyme disease and Rocky Mountain spotted fever - by tick bites. Symptoms include headache, fever, muscle ache, and joint pain. As with the other tick-borne illnesses, ehrlichiosis can have serious health consequences if left untreated. Take precautions when entering possible tick-infested areas, especially by wearing long-sleeve shirts and pants. After leaving the area, check you body carefully for the presence of any ticks, being particularly wary of ticks with one white spot on their backs.

P.S. Once the disease is identified, treatment for a tick-borne illness is usually through use of antibiotics.

Tick-borne diseases often exhibit symptoms that are difficult to recognize as deriving from a simple bite. If you are experiencing any persistent symptoms, see your doctor. Harold, McCauley Take Papers

Two former Quincy political heavyweights have taken a major step toward this year's city election ring.

Former Mayor Francis McCauley and former state Senator Paul Harold both took out nomination papers this week.

McCAULEY

HAROLD

McCauley picked them up for School Committee and Harold for City Councillor at-large. McCauley has served on the School Committee and Harold on the City Council.

McCauley, who retired in January, 1990 after four terms as mayor, is now executive director of the State Retirement Board under Treasurer Joseph Malone.

Harold has been teaching here and overseas since 1992 when he lost a Congressional bid to Gerry Studs although he carried Quincy by a large margin. Harold gave up his senate seat to make the Congressional run.

Both McCauley and Harold have been top vote-getters and their names on the ballot would have considerable impact in this year's election.

Harold served in the City Council from 1976 to 1978 and holds the city's record for the most votes ever given a city councillor at-large candidate. That was 21,246 in 1977.

Harold appears to be more certain of the two that he will run.

"I've taken the nomination papers out with the intention of being a candidate," he says. "I plan to make an official announcement within a couple of weeks."

McCauley, who just returned with his wife, Sandra, from a vacation in Italy, is not yet certain that he will run.

"I have not made a final decision," he says. "If I do run, it will definitely be for the two-year term and not for one of the two vacant four-year seats."

McCauley says he plans to circulate the papers personally in all sections of the city.

"I want to find out what the people are thinking," he says. "I only need 50 names on the nomination papers but I plan to talk to more people than that."

He says he will make a final decision right after the Fourth of July and in plenty of time to file the papers if he decides to run. Deadline for filing is July 11.

RALPH MAHER, the city's Chief Plumbing and Gas Inspector, says he has decided "after considerable thought" not to run for city councillor at-large this year.

"There are circumstances beyond my control that force me to make this decision at this time," he says. Including his belief a city-wide campaign this year "would place an undue burden" on his family.

But he leaves the door open for a run in the future.

Maher adds he sees no reason for replacing incumbents Michael Cheney, Tim Cahill and Joseph LaRaia who he feels "have done an excellent job."

OOPS! In mentioning the Ward 5 City Council field here last week we inadvertently omitted the name of Steve Durkin as one of the candidates. Durkin definitely is running and, in fact, was the first to announce after Charles Phelan announced he would not seek re-election. Sorry, Steve.

DURKIN

SHEETS

Sheets who is always on the go as mayor has dropped 20 pounds since taking office.

BARRY

MICHAEL LARKIN says he will announce his candidacy for the Ward 4 City Council seat Thursday, June 15, 7 p.m., at the Hollow Restaurant, Adams St. Larkin, 50, a juvenile parole caseworker for the Massachusetts Department of Youth Services, lives on Alrick Rd. This will be his first bid for elected office.

Larkin says he has collected 500 signatures on his nomination papers. Only 50 are needed.

DENNIS DOCKHAM kicks off his campaign for the Ward 5 City Council seat Saturday, 1 to 5 p.m., at Quincy Legion Post on Mechanic St. Tickets are $10 in advance or $12 at the door.

QHS Junior Air Force ROTC Group Named Honor Unit

Quincy High School was recently named an Air Force Junior ROTC Honor Unit by Brig. Gen. Susan L. Parmerleau, Air Force ROTC Commandant.

The award recognizes diligent work and outstanding achievement from among 506 high schools nationwide and at Department of Defense school overseas.

Units are evaluated on a multitude of criteria ranging from percentage of school population in the corps, to facilities upkeep and program administration. Competing units must then be selected at a regional level before competing at the national level. The top 20 percent are selected as honor units.

The Air Force Junior ROTC at Quincy High School was selected based not only on the previously mentioned criteria, but because of their commitment to citizenship involvement. As an example, Quincy High School Air Force Junior ROTC Cadets have volunteered their time to assist the Quincy Emergency Management Agency during local disasters and crises.

The award was presented at a recent unit award banquet. Air Force Junior ROTC Northeast Area Manager Capt. Matt Avery presented to Lloyd Hill, Quincy High School principal, a citation, plaque and flag streamer recognizing the unit's achievement for the second consecutive year, the only high school in New England to be so honored.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS POSTCARD WAS sold by McKay's Drug Store in Norfolk Downs and was postmarked in 1924 when the original Sacred Heart Church was located at the corner of Hunt and Hancock Streets. This is now the site of the Merit gas station. Some old timers recall a small cemetery in the rear of the church but no records can be found of it's existence or relocation. The parish was founded in 1901 and with frugal beginnings had to heat this building with a pot belly stove. Later a new church was built at it's present site on Hancock Street at Glover Avenue.

Will Success Cause Republican Party Downfall?

Editor, The Quincy Sun

Might not the success of the Republican Congress become translated into a devastation and an abomination to the middle class?

By heaping cuts into Medicaire and Medicaid, we are asking the middle class to pay considerably more from people who are presently struggling to cling to this economic ladder. These ravaging and excoriating cuts, scheduled for the following seven years could also be proportioned over a longer period, such as 12 years, making these cuts more palatable in the process. Does sagacity dictate a time frame of seven years versus 12 years to be any better or smarter in reaching this exalted goal?

We had a chance to pass a single payer health care plan last fall, but the health care insurance industry lobby killed this impetus through their monied largesse catering to our open-handed legislators.

A tax-cut, at the present time, being diametrically opposite the stated goal or reducing the budget deficit, is augmenting and compounding the problem, making the stated goal that harder to resolve. If we are serious about reducing the deficit, shouldn"t we forget the tax-cuts for the immediate present?

In my estimation, our Republican legislators, blinded by their imminent elan and success, coupled with their accompanying ardent desire to succeed, will heap such havoc and shortcomings on the middle class, that they will again find themselves the minority party at the next election. Wouldn't it be ironic that in their finest hour, in accomplishing so much so soon, that they will automatically create their own downfall?

Only time will tell!

Metal Fragment Hits West Quincy Home

By PAUL HAROLD

June 8 - 14
1963
32 Years Ago

A strange red hot metal fragment fell through the porch steps of the Ballou St. home of Mr. and Mrs. James McDonald in West Quincy.

The 5-by-8 inch, 5-8 pound metal piece was sent to the South Weymouth Naval Air Base for analysis. Lt. Commander Charles Costanza, legal and security officer at the base, said they were not sure if it came from an airplane. Further tests were planned, but they did not discount the possibility that it came from a disintergrating satellite.

Luckily, the McDonald children, Joanne, age 7; James, age 5; Sheila, age 2 and Jack, age 2 months, were not playing on the porch at the time of the crash.

49 GRADUATE FROM APPRENTICE SCHOOL

Sam Wakeman, general manager of the Bethlehem Steel Company's Fore River Shipyard, presented diplomas and rings to the 49 graduates of the apprentice program at ceremonies at the Neighborhood Club.

Gary DeMole was valedictorian. Frank Trubiano, president of the Graduate Apprentice Association and Thomas Tobin, president of the Long Service Club, made awards on behalf of the two associations.

The class represented 13 of the 15 courses offered by the apprentice school.

836 GRADUATE IN COMBINED CEREMONY

Some 836 students from QHS and NQHS graduated in ceremonies this week with Atty. General Edward Brooke as the main speaker.

Among those receiving diplomas was retiring school Supt. Paul Gossard who was presented diplomas from both schools.

The 486 QHS graduates received their diplomas only after an all-night effort by the printer and calligrapher. The 486 diplomas were invalid and had to be reprinted and hand lettered when it was discovered that the model diploma originally sent to the printer showed the name of retired Principal George Wilson. At the last minute printers W.B. White and Son of Abington reprinted them with Principal Edmund King's name and calligrapher Philip Wexler relettered the names in time for the ceremonies.

John's Prima Rigatoni

Last Sunday, my husband and I spent most of the day working out in the yard, which is what I'm sure many other people were doing.

After that, we visited my brother John and sister-in-law Anita, who also spent the day doing yard work, and we wanted to compare notes.

When we arrived, they were sitting down to dinner eating a delicious-looking pasta dish. We had already eaten, but it looked so good, I decided to try some and use it for today's recipe. I was excited because it's practically fat-free, and it's all done in one pan!

John's Prima Rigatoni
1 pound rigatoni
1 cup broccoli florets
1 cup ricotta cheese (skim milk kind)
1/2 cup grated parmesan or romano cheese
1/2 cup green salad olives
8 ounces skim milk

In a dutch oven type pan, cook the rigatoni reducing the water. Add the broccoli and cook for a few minutes. Then add the ricotta, the grated cheese, the olives and the milk.

Simmer until pasta is set (thickened) and then serve hot with added grated cheese. Absolutely delicious without guilt!

By the way, after viewing John's beautiful landscaped yard, I went home and did some more weeding.

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

Safe Haven For Quincy Youth

First Year A Success For 'Teen Get-Away'

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Now in its second year, the successful Teen Get-Away program, founded by Quincy School Committee member JoAnn Bragg, has provided a safe, enjoyable environment for hundreds of Quincy teenagers as an alternative to hanging out on city street corners.

Three years ago, Bragg decided to form a committee of adults and students in the Quincy area to find a solution to the growing problem of teens hanging on corners. The committee's work resulted in the creation of the Teen Get-Away.

"We came to the resolution that we wanted to open a teen center in Quincy, something that hadn't been done in Quincy in 20 years, since I was a teenager," said Bragg, who serves as the program's executive director. "So we spent two years building support in the community and neighborhoods and finally found a place, actually two places, where we could invite teenagers to come off the street corners and have fun Friday and Saturday nights.

"They are places to keep kids off the street where they can still chat and socialize with their friends and do whatever they want to do."

Bragg also noted that in addition to the recreational activities it provides, the program has raised $2,500 through a Walk-a-Thon for teens last year.

Funding for the program was derived from Community Development Block Grant funds and donations from Impact Quincy, Harold Brooks Foundation and other sources.

The smoke-free, alcohol-free, drug-free and violence-free program has become a great success in a short period of time, mainly due to the contributions of Quincy Community United Methodist Church and the South Shore YMCA, which provide the safe environment for the teenagers two nights a week.

With membership currently over 200 and growing weekly, it shows a program is needed in the community, Bragg said. The rapid increase in membership has also led to an expansion of hours on Fridays--from the former 8 to 10 p.m. to the current 7 to 10 p.m.--at the Methodist church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

At the church, teenagers can participate in numerous activities, including basketball, watching movies and playing video arcade games. In addition, they can play bumper pool, listen to music on the jukebox or relax in the teen lounge.

The teenagers, Bragg said, enjoy the fact that they have a place to gather with their friends. For a $5 annual fee and $1 each night, teenagers can escape the streets and enjoy their friends' company.

Members must also agree to be alcohol, drug, smoke and violence-free.

On Saturdays from 8 to 10 p.m., teenagers gather at the YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy Center, where the pool is open and a certified lifeguard is on duty, Bragg said.

She added that those who go to the YMCA Saturdays can also play basketball, floor hockey, volleyball, ping pong, pool, work out, listen to music or relax in the teen lounge.

Teenagers who participate in the program had nothing but strong words of praise for the Teen Get Away.

"A couple of friends told me about it, and I've gone there for almost a year," said Billy O'Neil, adding that he enjoys being with his friends and participating in the various events the program offers.

"It's a place to go Friday and Saturday nights and hang out with my friends," said Dave Klingstein, who has attended tsince the program began in April 1994. "I like going to the pool at the Y on Saturday nights, since all my friends go too."

Kim Garwarthe, who has gone for about a year, noted that she enjoys playing basketball with her friends.

"I enjoy going because a lot of my friends do, and the people there are nice," she said.

The program's executive director also expressed gratitude for the generosity of the Methodist church and the YMCA, without which the kids would have no center at all.

"Without their assistance, which we're very thankful for, we never would have been able to get this thing off the ground," Bragg said.

The Teen Get-Away program also holds special events on a monthly basis. The next one is a basketball tournament set for June 24 at the YMCA which will be coordinated by the Quincy Police Athletic League.

Cheney Plays Key Role In Donation For Subdivision

Habitat Plans To Build 10 Houses In Quincy Point

South Shore Habitat for Humanity plans to build up to 10 houses in Quincy Point following a donation of three-and-a-half acres of land located off the end of Bower Road to the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition.

The donation was made by Atlantic Development of Hingham, which is planning to build a Wal-Mart store in Quincy Point. The 10 houses would be built behind the store. City Council President Michael Cheney helped secure the donation.

Cheney estimated that approximately 10 single-family homes will be constructed on the site. The homes will be sold to Quincy residents at the approximate cost of $50,000 per house to qualified families.

Cheney has been negotiating with Habitat For Humanity for approximately three months on the details of the land transfer. The land was transferred to the interfaith sheltering coalition from Atlantic Development, the developer of the Wal-Mart project in Quincy Point.

"We were able to convince Atlantic Development to donate this land so that we could build affordable housing for Quincy residents," said Cheney. "Habitat For Humanity" is not a government program --- it is people helping people. Too many of our own young residents cannot afford to buy a house and raise their families in our community. this will enable families an opportunity to stay in the City of Quincy.

"Unlike government programs, the families who are eligible for these homes will come from this community and will have a mortgage to pay."

The deed transfer is expected to take place sometime within the next two weeks.

Cheney said he is appreciative of Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro's cooperation in allowing this program to take place in his ward.

"Ted has been very supportive of this project," said Cheney.

Cheney said the city looks forward to giving local residents the dignity of living and owning a single-family home in Quincy. Groundbreaking is expected to take place on the infrastructure work as soon as a subdivision plan is approved by the Planning Board, he added.

Cheney also noted that an invitation will be extended to former President Jimmy Carter in the hopes that he will attend the ground-breaking ceremony in the fall. President Carter is the founder of the program and a strong supporter of people helping people, he said.

Cheney said Habitat For Humanity is fashioned after the old barn-raising neighbors-helping-neighbors premise because they rely on donations from corporations and individuals alike.

"One of the qualifications to be selected is that a family must participate in some way in the construction of these homes. Quincy is a strong community with hundreds of volunteers and an ideal place for this," said Cheney.

QUINCY CITY FESTIVAL

Steven Reilly Candidate For Ward 5 Councillor

Speaking before over 200 friends and supporters, Reilly, 38, of 148 East Elm Ave., said the people of Ward 5 have an opportunity to elect "a family person who was born in Ward 5 and has chosen to raise his family there." Reilly stressed his connection and dedication to the Ward 5 community as he outlined the goals and priorities he would pursue if elected Ward 5 councillor.

"Keeping tabs on the development of Ward 5 will be a priority of mine," Reilly said, noting the Howard Johnson and Grass Instruments buildings on Old Colony Ave. are vacant. "We need to work with neighborhood residents and potential buyers to strive to obtain a development that will blend with the community.

"I will also monitor the Shaw's Supermarket project closely and make sure that they adhere to the agreements they negotiated with the City. I have seen first-hand the impact that unregulated growth has had on the traffic in our neighborhoods.

STEVEN REILLY

"I have already presented the mayor with several measures which will improve traffic safety throughout the city and I will continue to make traffic safety and improvements a top priority of mine as the Ward 5 councillor," he said.

Reilly said improving public education in Quincy is another priority.

"As a parent of school age children and a member of the board of Education Life Management Skills, I am well aware how important a quality education is to our children and their future. Teachers and students must be provided with the resources necessary to succeed in educating and in being educated. Anything less is unacceptable," he said.

"We have to work with our state officials to maintain the services the MBTA provides our citizens, especially the senior citizens who depend on public transportation to get around. We need to hold the MDC commissioner accountable for the promises he had made concerning our beaches, bathhouses and recreational areas. We also have to work with other MWRA community leaders to get a fair, equitable rate system for ratepayers of Quincy and the South Shore while fighting for additional state and federal dollars to keep the ratepayers share of the total project cost down."

Reilly said he also wants to improve the city's infrastructure within the Ward 5 neighborhoods. "As I spoke with residents while knocking doors, some stated that their sidewalks have not been worked on in 30 years.

"We need to develop a comprehensive plan to make sure that all sidewalks in need of repair get fixed and that you do not have to wait 30 years or more to get the job done. It also should not take a 10-year-old boy to have to enter his street in a Rocky Road ice cream contest to get his street repaved, which recently occurred on East Elm Ave., where I once lived.

"I will work with the Public Works Department to make sure that no other street in Ward 5 is known as the rockiest road in Quincy."

Finally, Reilly emphasized he would continue to support efforts and programs designed to improve the safety of the citizens of Quincy. "The DARE program, Citizens Police Academy, and Neighborhood Crime Watch program are all vital programs in our campaign against crime. When we all pitch in to fight crime, our police can be even more effective as they work to protect us," he said.

Cheney Candidate For Re-Election to City Council

Cheney was to officially make the announcement Wednesday at a 6 to 10 p.m. reception held at the Quincy Lodge of Elks, 254 Quarry St.

Cheney has served five years as Ward 1 city councilor and six years as councillor-at-large. He is the current City Council president and has served as acting mayor on several occasions.

Cheney is founder and chairman of First Night Quincy, a celebration of the arts held on New Year's Eve for the past three years. The theme of non-alcoholic family entertainment will be carried out this summer under a new program created by Cheney called the "Arts In The Parks" program. The concept is to allow families and neighbors to gather at a local playground or park during the early evening hours and enjoy an evening of entertainment together.

MICHAEL CHENEY

Cheney noted that he has taken a leadership role in negotiations and resolutions relative to permits issued for Wal-Mart, Roche Bros., Stop & Shop, Shaw's and Twin Rivers Technologies at the Proctor & Gamble facility.

"Working with my colleagues on the City Council in taking this positive action has resulted in the creation of over 1,500 union construction jobs and approximately 1,800 to 2,000 permanent jobs," he said.

Cheney added that he has been negotiating with Habitat For Humanity on a transfer of land to make it possible for single-family dwellings to be constructed to provide an opportunity for ten Quincy families to afford a home of their own.

"The dream of owning a home in which to raise your children can be realized by Quincy residents who would not otherwise be eligible," said Cheney, "and providing affordable housing to families is one of the most rewarding fulfillments a city councillor can realize."

Recently, while serving as acting mayor, Cheney said he worked with Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Michael Bellotti and Stephen Tobin to put together an early action plan for extra police patrols on Wollaston Beach. Cheney said he would work with Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers all summer to see that the highly visible patrols are effectively maintained.

Cheney noted that he has also successfully streamlined the process to amend city traffic regulations,and instead of the procedure taking 90 days or more, it will only be a two-week process to have traffic signs and signals approved and installed.

Cheney appointed the Snow Removal Task Force which he said recommended several positive steps to improve snow plowing in the city of Quincy. The improvements were an overwhelming success last winter and will be further improved next winter, he said.

Most recently, Cheney filed a $2 billion law suit against the federal government for failure to fund the Harbor cleanup.

"Although much has been accomplished, much remains to be done," he said.

Cheney has made the commitment to voters to be accessible and to respond to the needs of the citizens of the City of Quincy. If allowed to continue to serve, he added, he will continue his efforts to promote economic development, protect the environment, and improve the quality of life for all citizens.

Tickets to the reception will be available at the door at $15 per person, $25 per couple.

Maher Receives $250,000 Settlement

The City Council has agreed to pay Quincy Plumbing Inspector Ralph Maher a settlement of $250,000 for about five years in back pay.

The council voted 8-1 Monday night to approve the payment. Ward 3 Chretien Lawrence Chretien voted in opposition because "there were no arguments put forth as to why the longstanding position held by Frank McCauley and Jim Sheets was reversed."

Some councillors also expressed concern that the settlement may not be the end of the city's legal battles with Maher. The council voted 5-4 to pass a measure aimed at protecting past and present city officials should Maher file any more lawsuits.

Supporting that measure were Chretien, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers. Voting in opposition were Council President Michael Cheney, Councillors-at-Large Timothy Cahill and Joseph LaRaia and Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio.

LaRaia said it was wrong to hold the city "hostage" for an unknown sum, and others who voted against the measure expressed similar sentiments.

Maher attended Monday night's meeting but had no comment on the settlement or his future plans regarding any lawsuits.

Maher was fired in 1989 by then-Mayor Francis McCauley in connection with ethics charges. He was rehired last summer when Mayor James Sheets chose not to appeal a Civil Service Commission ruling reinstating him "without loss of compensation."

In December, after settlement negotiations reached a standstill, Maher took the city to court again seeking $255,378 in wages and $43,037 in benefits, plus interest. Last month, the city ironed out the $250,000 settlement with Maher instead of going to court.

In 1989, the city charged Maher with nine conflict of interest violations, saying they constituted "acts of moral turpitude" on the job. Seven of the charges were later dropped.

The first of the two remaining charges was that in 1988, Maher inspected plumbing the basement of a house being constructed on property he was selling. The second involved granting a plumbing permit for another property in 1986.

Two years ago, a Boston Municipal Court judge ruled that Maher had committed only a technical violation of the state ethic law on one of the counts.

Departed Officers Honored On Police Memorial Sunday

Deceased members of the Quincy Police Department were honored over the weekend during ceremonies marking Police Memorial Sunday.

The following is the text of the speech read by Police Chief Francis Mullen at the event:

"On behalf of our departed officers who we are honoring here today, I want to thank and welcome Quincy Police Chaplain Fr. James DiPerri, Mayor James Sheets, officers of the Mutual Aid Association, guest speaker Honorable Judge Charles Black, city, state and county officials; traffic supervisors, retired brother officers, families, friends and officers of the Quincy Police Department.

"In most cities, people are fearful and concerned that their public authorities are not taking care of their problems. To a large degree, this fear is fueled by the media. Too much emphasis is placed on violent and negative issues rather than on nonviolent and positive matters. Present trends indicate that the crime rate is leveling off and violent crimes are showing a recent decline.

"If we continue our efforts in crime prevention, working with families and community leaders, I believe that Quincy residents will enjoy a peaceful, crime-free way of life.

"On this Police Memorial Sunday, as we honor those brave officers who worked so hard to make this department what it is today, we are reminded of the sacrifices made by all law enforcement officers as they perform their duties. We should also honor victims of crime and keep them in our memory as well.

"Today, when we complete our ceremonies here, the traffic supervisors will place a plaque at the entrance to the police station, as they have planted a small tree in memory of the innocent children who died in the Oklahoma bombing disaster.

"I commend these traffic supervisors, who have already proven their commitment to the children of Quincy. And now they have adopted the plot of land outside the entrance to the station. When our gathering marches to the Bryan Post, we will pause the the traffic supervisors leave our ranks to place the plaque, and dedicate the tree in memory of the innocent little victims who perished in Oklahoma.

"It is truly rewarding for me to stand here today to remember and thank our departed members for their service to the community. And I personally want to thank each of our for your loyal attendance here today."

Pre-School Lottery To Begin Sept. 13

The Quincy Public Schools are seeking seven children without special needs who turn 4 on or before Dec. 31, to attend an integrated pre-school program at the Snug Harbor School.

Atlantic School Celebrates A 'World Of Difference'

Students at Atlantic Middle School in North Quincy recently held three "World of Difference" assemblies as part of a week-long Celebration of Diversity.

Guest speakers at the student events included Jon Jennings, director of basketball development for the Boston Celtics and Lenny Zakim, director of the Anti-Defamation League of New England. A t-shirt autographed by Celtic Dominique Wilkins was presented to the students for their efforts in fighting racism and prejudice.

Atlantic's World of Difference Day was kicked off by Atlantic's Student Alliance Against Racism.

During the assemblies, a student body of over 450 took the official pledge to stop racism and prejudice, and later signed a huge "pledge" mural in the lobby of the school. Students and teachers wore Atlantic's custom-made "Celebrating Diversity" t-shirts which featured the flags of all nations.

Each assembly celebrated diversity through speeches, essays, poems, song, color guard presentation, and dance performances. Students also addressed many issues, such as stereotyping, name-calling, rumors, prejudice and racism. They performed a variety of skits depicting situations, problems, and solutions.

Following an International Pot Luck Dinner, an evening assembly was held for parents and community members. The evening show featured Chinese, Spanish, Irish and modern jazz dance performances.

Don't Let Your Family Go Down The Tube

Using Television Wisely:

•Set limits on what children can watch. Homework and meals with the family take priority.

•Watch TV with your children and talk about what each of you liked and didn't like.

•Set an example. Carefully choose your own programs and the amount of time you watch television.

•Make one room a TV-free zone, a comfortable place to read, talk, listen, with no television set.

•Don't use TV as a babysitter.

•Encourage your children to spend their free time in activities such as sports, hobbies, playing with friends, or reading rather than sitting in front of the tube.

•Limit video games to a half-hour a day. Use a kitchen timer.

•Look for TV programs that encourage kids to do something: build a treehouse, start a hobby, help out at home, volunteer to help someone. Look for your TV programs that relate to a book, something your child is studying, an experience from your own childhood or that of a relative.

•Don't use TV as a reward or punishment.

Lawn Recycling Tips For Home Owners

Summertime's warm weather and sunshine brings another season of mowing and maintaining your lawn.

The Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors would like to share with you some tips on how you can use those grass and other yard clippings as a source of nutrients for gardening and landscaping around your home.

"Mowing, bagging, and disposing of lawn clippings have been recurring cycles for years in this community and our landfills cannot continue to absorb the waste," said James N. Stamos, president of the Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors.

The board recommends recycling yard clippings for the good of both your lawn and the environment.

"Creating a compost pile is an ideal way to recycle your lawn wastes, while simultaneously providing you with a source of nutrients for gardening and landscaping," said Stamos. "Anything growing in your yard is potential compost material."

Although ideally you should begin your compost pile in late spring for use in the fall and in the fall for use in the spring, it's never too late to begin the process.

To begin, first remove any grass and sod cover from the area where you plan to construct a compost pile. Create a bin to enclose the compost. Prefabricated snow fencing, woven wire, wood pallets or bricks can serve as inexpensive compost bins. Be sure to allow easy access through the top or sides for turning the compost.

For best results, the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors recommends the following "recipe:"

•1st Layer: 3 to 4 inches of chopped brush or other coarse material.

•2nd Layer: 6 to 8 inches of leaves, grass clippings, sawdust, etc. Materials should be "sponge damp." You may want to sprinkle sulfur over the heap to increase its acidity.

•3rd Layer: 1 inch of soil (to speed up the process).

•4th Layer: 2 to 3 inches of manure or a handful of commercial fertilizer to provide the nitrogen needed. Add water if the manure is dry.

•5th Layer: Repeat the first four steps until the bin is almost full. Top off heap with a 4 to 6 inch layer of straw and scoop out a "basin" at the top to catch rain water.

A property-made heap will reach a temperature of 140 to 160 degrees Fahrenheit in four to five days. At this time, you'll notice a settling, a good sign that your heap is working properly.

After five to six weeks, fork the materials into a pile, turning the outside of the old heap into the center of the new pile. Add water if necessary. It shouldn't be necessary to turn your heap a second time. The compost should be ready to use within three to four months.

Compost is ready when it is dark brown, crumbly and earthy smelling. For best results, turn your soil, apply 1 to 3 inch layers of compost and work it in well.

"Fertilizing your garden and lawn with compost can improve the overall landscape and beauty of your home," Stamos said.

"In addition to saving landfill space, recycling your lawn reduces your water usage and the need to purchase soil conditioners and trash bags," he added. "That's good for you and good for the environment."

You can find out more about caring for your lawn and about composts by contacting your local nursery.

The Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors is one of more than 1,800 local boards and associations of Realtors nationwide that comprise the National Association of Realtors. As the nation's largest trade association, NAR is "The Voice for Real Estate," representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Radon In Homes Causes Cancer Deaths

Radon in homes may cause up to one tenth of the lung cancer deaths in the United States.

The Associated Press reports that estimate is based on an analysis of how radioactive gas affects miners.

Radon, seeping into homes from the ground, may cause about 14,000 lung cancer deaths and about 30 percent of lung cancer cases among non-smokers, according to a study in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute.

But the report said the estimate should be interpreted with caution because miners are exposed to other chemicals that could affect cancer rates.

The Environmental Protection Agency recommends that homeowners vent areas where radon concentrations reach four picocuries per liter of air.

Radon, a radioactive gas, escapes from underground rocks and soils and can seep into homes.

Jay Lubin, a researcher for the National Cancer Institute, said radioactive gas in homes causes about 4,700 lung cancer deaths among non-smokers and 9,700 among smokers.

Dental Dialogue

DYING TEETH CAN BE SAVED

Q: What is a root canal treatment?

A: Root canal, or endodontic, treatment, is used when the nerve of a tooth dies. First, the dentist removes the infected tissue from the pulp or nerve chamber of the tooth. He or she then replaces it with a non-irritating material. The final step is to protect the tooth, at times with a filling, but more commonly with a crown. Most infected or abcessed teeth can be saved this way. The only alternative treatment is extraction-not a very good alternative! Although most dentists can and do perform root canals, those who specialize in this area of dentistry are called endodontists.

DEBORAH BOTELHO of Plymouth, a profile in courage and determination, is escorted after receiving her degree Sunday. She graduated although she is blind and has been waging a fight against multiple sclerosis, cancer and kidney disease.

Graduates Urged To Set Goals, Utilize Humor

By WAYNE FITZPATRICK

Dick Flavin, award-winning television personality and humorist, urged Quincy College's 36th and largest graduating class Sunday to use their sense of humor in a positive--not poisonous--manner as they go through life.

The commencement speaker, a Quincy native and seven-time Emmy award-winning satirist, told the 763 graduates at Quincy Veterans Memorial Stadium ceremonies that humor can open the door to people's minds.

Flavin suggested the remedy to relieve stress may not lie in a bottle or drug but rather within an individual's sense of humor.

"Medical studies show that humor is the single strongest anecdote we have for stress," he said. "The great curse of living in the 1990s is stress. But humor can override stress."

Flavin, however, warned the graduates to avoid the "poisonous" nature of some humor which hurts people.

"Humor is such a powerful force for good that it can be an equally dangerous weapon of destruction. Using humor for negative purposes, sexist humor, racial humor, ethnic humor, is far more poisonous that we are led to believe."

Daniel Raymondi, chairman of the Quincy College Board of Governors, praised the graduates for their hard work and urged them to "aim high."

"This day signifies the culmination of one phase of your hard work and it signifies that you have made a grand beginning to build all that you can upon the knowledge that you have earned," he said.

Presiding over her first commencement at Quincy College, Interim President Dr. Linda Wilson urged the graduates to reflect on their accomplishments and to set new goals.

"Think back a bit to that first day that you stepped in a college class. Now you may have been a bit timid initially, some of you might honestly say that you were petrified. But you did it. You completed your post program and accomplished your desired end.

"Savor these moments right now," Wilson told the graduates. "Enjoy every minute of this graduation day so that the memories will be vivid for you years from now. But, let this be the one period of stasis you allow yourself. Just as you are who and where you are today, because of choices that you made yesterday, realize that who and were you are tomorrow will be result of the choices you make today.

"You cannot afford to stay put without setting new goals."

Mayor James Sheets, who has been associated with Quincy College for 35 years as an instructor and as chairman of the history and government department, said the institution has helped many find their place in life.

"There have been a legion of young people who have come to Quincy College and found there place in life. . . There are young people all over this city, this state, this country and this world who you have followed as graduates, who have found their place because they have come to Quincy College.

"I want to congratulate you on this occasion of your graduation and wish you God's best."

DANIEL RAYMONDI, chairman of the Board of Governors, urges Quincy College graduates to "aim high" in life.

MAYOR James Sheets notes that Quincy College has helped many students find their place in life.

Henry Bosworth, founder and publisher of The Quincy Sun was presented an honorary Associate of Arts degree as "An outstanding community leader who has provided leadership, innovation and integrity in the field of journalism for over 40 years."

Bosworth congratulated the graduating class for "sticking with it to earn your degrees" and urged:

"Don't put off goals you hope to accomplish. Time really does fly. The years rush by. And, before you know it, you suddenly realize you have had more yesterdays than you are going to have tomorrows. And then it may be too late to do what you had hoped to do. Don't wait. Do it now."

Bosworth thanked President Wilson and the College Board of Governors for selecting him for the honor and said: "I shall cherish this honorary degree and this day always."

Bosworth said Quincy College has come a long way in a relatively short time. In the school's first year in 1958, he noted, the total enrollment was only 35 students while this year's student population is over 6,000.

The first graduating class had nine members, he said, compared to this year's 763.

"That's a real success story," he said. "And many more good chapters, I am sure, are to come."

Cheryl Jones, secretary of Phi Theta Kappa, the college's National Honor Society, declared that although they do share some differences, the graduates are all quite similar in one way.

"As I look out into the vast number of graduates, I can't help but think of how different we all are, yet I believe we are all the same.

"We all chose to come to Quincy College, we've made friends while we've been here, we've joined and participated in student activities, we have studied in groups when the big exam was around the corner. Yes, we are different, but we are all the same. We have all made it happen."

On behalf of Erin Manning, president of the Student Government Association, Jones presented the class gift of $2,900 to purchase computer software equipment for the Quincy College Anselmo Library.

Manning was unable to attend the graduation.

Graduate Debbie Botehlo was recognized by Carmen Mariano, associate dean of the Plymouth campus, for her efforts in graduating with her classmates despite being blind, suffering from multiple sclerosis and having cancer and kidney disease.

"Three years ago, Debbie came to college," Mariano said. "She had plenty of reasons not to come or to quit somewhere along the way, but Debbie had no time to quit; she was too busy believing in herself. That belief makes her special."

Mariano also awarded Botelho's best friend Jenna with a certificate of merit. Jenna was Botehlo's seeing eye dog. She died Easter Sunday.

Also recognized for her efforts in the learning process was Mary Francis Allen, a member of Phi Theta Kappa and recipient of the Chancellor's Scholarship.

NQ Enters Tourney With Long Win Streak

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

After finishing the regular season with a school-record 12-match winning streak, the North Quincy High School boys' volleyball team is set to begin competition in the state tournament.

The fifth seeded Red Raiders (17-3) were scheduled to face Cambridge Rindge & Latin in the first round last night (Wednesday) at North. Cambridge handed Milford a 3-0 loss in preliminary round action over the weekend. A win against Cambridge will give North Quincy a berth in the second round, with a match possible this Friday or Saturday night.

The Red Raiders beat Cambridge, 2-0, on May 4.

Undefeated New Bedford is the top seed once again, followed by Andover (19-1), Catholic Memorial (18-2) and Natick (18-2). Natick beat North Quincy in the second match of the season and eliminated them from the tournament in the second round last year.

The Red Raiders closed the regular season last week in spectacular fashion with a come-from-behind victory over Latin Academy. Latin came in with a 17-2 record that included a win over previously undefeated Andover.

After dropping the first game to Latin, 15-3, North got off to a rough start in the second game, trailing 9-2. It was at this point that Jim Rendle came up with a big dig off a Patrick Munroe hit (Munroe, one of the hardest hitters in the state, will be a force in the tournament) that led to a sideout. North went to scored the next 13 points and win the game, 15-9.

Samson Lee served the last six points to seal the win.

North took a 5-0 lead in the third game, again due to the strong serving of Lee, on their way to a 15-8 victory.

"This was the biggest come-from-behind in the school's history," said head coach John Perkins. "The key to the game was the very strong serving of Samson Lee."

Rendle and Jacky Lei ended the match with nine kills apiece. Ken Goon had eight blocks, bringing his school-record total to 122.

Rendle, a junior who will be counted on for leadership next year, ended the season as the team's leading hitter with a total of 110 kills. Rendle averaged seven kills per match.

Lei, a senior who is headed to Ohio State next year and will try out for the volleyball team as a walk-on, averaged six kills a match and led the team by calling offensive plays in the backcourt. Lei averaged six serving points per match.

Another player having an excellent season is sophomore Mike Johnston. At the start of the season, coach Perkins felt Johnston would see some time up front. But once North had their first scrimmage, he never came off the court.

Other Red Raiders getting ready for the tournament are Wing Lau, David Lee, Sidney Ma and Frankie Zhi.

North will also have the services of three players who led the JV team to a 16-4 record: Ruelas Man, Eddie Tan and Nick Shea.

Perkins thanked his two assistant coaches, Kipp Caldwell and Matt Groom, for an excellent job this season.

The first of what could be many post-season honors came last week when it was announced that Lei, Goon and Rendle were named to the South Alliance all-star team.

LET'S SHIFT GEARS

Owners of automobiles with automatic transmissions are sometimes afflicted with transmissions that do not upshift at the proper speed or no longer go into passing gear with the throttle wide open. If so, they should not automatically despair over an expensive repair. The solution to the problem may rest with a simple ten-minute adjustment. The throttle valve cable or linkage connects the gas pedal to a pressure valve on the transmission that influences shift speed and engagement of passing gear. If the cable is bent or improperly adjusted, shifts can occur at wrong speeds and the transmission may be unable to get into passing gear. Some cars use a detent cable or linkage that affects passing gear but does not influence shift speeds. Either may simply need adjustment.

LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO invites your inquiries about most anything connected with the care of your car. Our technicians are highly skilled, so they can do most everything necessary to keep your car in excellent condition, whether you are having a problem with your transmission or perhaps your brakes. Wollaston Begins Season With Split

Morrisette, Quincy Legion Open This Week

Play in the re-aligned format among the Quincy American Legion baseball teams begins this week.

The city of Quincy will field two Legion teams, Morrisette and Quincy, while Wollaston has become a Senior Babe Ruth team for 16-year-olds.

Morrisette Legion was scheduled to open its 51st season yesterday (Wednesday) against Milton at Adams Field. They host Canton tonight (Thursday) and travel to Randolph Friday. Both home games are at 8 p.m. The Randolph game is scheduled for 6 p.m.

Quincy Legion was scheduled to travel to Weymouth yesterday for a 5:45 game.

Morrisette and Quincy will play an early-season double-header this Sunday, June 11, beginning at 5 p.m.

Wollaston opened the season last week with an impressive 15-0 win over Braintree. They followed with a 12-2 loss to Milton Monday night. Wollaston was scheduled to play last night (Wednesday) at Hyde Park's Kelly Field at 5:45. They host Canton Friday at 8:15 p.m.

Perdios, who is in his ninth year with Morrisette, hopes to improve over last year's third place finish in Zone 6. Although his club was ousted last year with two losses in the regional tournament, they slipped into the state tournament as the host team. It was there they put on an impressive show, knocking out three teams and placing third in the state. In the state tourney, they lost only to eventual champion Walpole and runner-up New Bedford.

Perdios has 10 players returning. They will be led by pitcher Tom Malvesti, who now plays at Stonehill College, and the hard-hitting Jim Sapienza, who attends Merrimack College.

Helping the team will be pitching coach Tom Malvesti, assistant Larry Taglieri, manager Ray Cattaneo and scorekeeper Richard (Berger) Ryan. Ryan retired at the end of last season, but was asked to come back.

Morrisette suffered a great loss in the recent passing of Frank Osborne, who was a familiar site next to the Morrisette dugout for decades. Osborne and his wife, Ellenor, have for many years put together a program/ad book that has helped give the team financial stability.

Said Berger Ryan: "Men like Frank can never be replaced. He will be missed, but never forgotten."

Det. Hussey Memorial Race To Be Held Sunday

Hundreds of runners and walkers will take part in the first annual Quincy Police Detective Paul Hussey Memorial Walk and Run on Sunday, June 11.

The race is sponsored by Shaw's Supermarket and Citizens Bank.

The first 500 pre-registered entrants will receive an official race t-shirt. All participants will be treated to complimentary refreshments and raffle prizes. Awards will be given to the top three overall male and female winners, and the top three male and female finishers in age-group categories (30-39, 40-49, 50-59, 60-69, 70-plus).

The official post-race party, with live entertainment, will be held at Shooter's Cafe.

Race proceeds will benefit Detective Paul Hussey's memorial fund, which will support a scholarship at Boston College High School, the 590 Fund for the Homeless and the Quincy Police Athletic League.

Hussey has been described as an outstanding father, friend, relative and detective. His contributions to the community include being a Quincy Youth Hockey coach, commissioner of the Quincy Executive League, Quincy Youth Hockey referee and supporter of many community service projects. He was an avid runner and lover of life.

NQ Season Ends After Second Tourney Showing

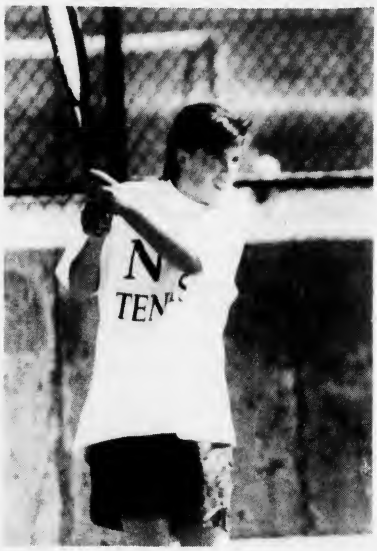
The 1995 season came to a halt last week as the North Quincy girls' tennis team lost, 5-0, to Needham in preliminary round tournament action.

It was the second consecutive tournament appearance by the Red Raiders, who went 11-5 in this campaign. Before last year, the program had never before made it to the post-season.

Although disappointed by the outcome, coach Doug MacFarlane hopes North Quincy can build upon the back-to-back tournament seasons and begin to parlay those appearances into victories.

"We've steadily improved, which I'm pleased with," said MacFarlane. "I'm disappointed to lose, but not upset. I don't think we played as well [against Needham] as we had all season."

Only NQ's third single, sophomore Yun Yu, was able to take her match to three sets. She fell, 6-1, 5-7, 6-3 to Janna Simone. Yu had an impressive season, going 11-3 in singles play and 1-0 in a doubles appearance.



NORTH QUINCY'S all-star sophomore, Wendy Trafton, follows through on a shot against Needham. Trafton had an off day, but will be one of the leaders for the Red Raiders for the next two years.

The coach said that Yu was instrumental in helping to lead the Red Raiders to the tournament.

"At the beginning of the season, I thought we'd be competitive but we had question marks," said MacFarlane. "Yun Yu really came along, as you can see by her record, which is beyond our expectations."

ALL (STARS) IN The Family. North Quincy's first doubles tandem of Ngan, left, and Kim Ho posted an 11-5 record during a campaign in which they were named to the Old Colony League all-star team. Against Needham the sisters suffered their only straight-set loss of the year.

First single Wendy Trafton, who was named an Old Colony League all-star, fell to Kelli Gardner, 6-4, 7-5, after posting a 9-4 record during the regular season.

North Quincy's other OCL all-stars, first doubles Kim and Ngan Ho, were swept, 6-2, 6-2. The Ho sisters recorded an 11-4 record before the loss to Needham.

"Some days you have it and today we didn't have it," said MacFarlane. "My first doubles never lose in two sets. It's just not like them. But take nothing away from Needham. They did a very good job and they're a very good team. Needham is solid all the way through, which is unusual for a high school team."

Red Raiders second single, Vivian Kam, fell, 6-3, 7-5. Second doubles, Wai Lau and Catherine Chin, were bested, 6-1, 6-2.

For Kam, Lau, Chin and the Ho sisters, this was their last high school tennis match. MacFarlane feels they have been instrumental in helping raise the North Quincy tennis program to a new level, a level in which post-season appearances are now expected.

"Every time we've needed it, someone has stepped up with a win," said the coach. "I have nothing negative to say about anything. Our girls have worked hard, and it's starting to pay off. We're right were I wanted to be at this point in time.

"When I took over, we only had one girl playing in the off-season. Now we have five. That is the key to tennis. We'll be very competitive next year."

In First-Ever Volleyball Tourney Game

Quincy Boys Cruise In Upset

By KERRY BYRNE

Quincy High posted a 3-1 upset win over Medfield in the first-ever tournament game by the school's boys' volleyball team.

The Presidents entered the match with a 10-10 record, barely making the post-season with the 21st seed. The Warriors captured the title in the West Alliance with a 9-6 record, good enough for the 13th seed.

As a reward for their victory, Quincy was scheduled to take on No. 2 seed Natick last night (Wednesday). Natick marched through the season with a 19-1 record, losing only to undefeated state champion New Bedford.

It has been a five-year project by coach Jim Rendle to build his team into a tournament club. When the Medfield match began, it looked like it would be a short-lived post-season run. The Warriors cruised easily in the first game, 15-9. The teams battled closely, with Quincy trailing 10-9 before Medfield ripped off five quick points to ice the game.

The next three games were marked by the dominance of Quincy, due to the emergence of Dave Sawan, Tony Wu and Jason and Jared Downey. The Presidents cruised, 15-6, 15-7, 15-6.

"Every game a couple of different players pick us up," said Rendle. "Tonight it was [Sawan and Jason Downey]. I also thought Tony Wu hit the ball very well. And we had players like Don McCarthy who went in for a short while and did a very good job."

Sawan and Jason Downey stepped up their play around the net, leading Quincy with a number of kills and blocks. It appeared that they were able to intimidate the Warriors with their size and power, forcing them to make mistakes. Through the final three games, the Presidents got most of their points from cross-court kills to the open floor or spikes that the defenders were unable to handle.

"Once [Medfield] made a few mistakes you knew that they were getting frustrated," said Rendle.

Geoff King was also huge around the net, combining with Sawan for several blocks. Huong Xiang and Hong Lei picked up a number of kills while Sine Tupe stepped in in the match's later stages to provide effective support.

But it may have been the play of Jared Downey that had the biggest impact on the contest. The freshman setter started all season. However, he missed the first game with Medfield, having gone to the hospital an hour before the match due to breathing difficulty. He returned in time to lead Quincy to wins in the final three games.

"When you have been playing all year with a certain team and a certain rotation, you expect to play a certain way," said Rendle. "Without [Jared] back there, we were a little confused."

Besides setting up the big men, Downey posted 18 service points, including several aces.

Senior Hockey Team Wins Silver At Senior Games

The Quincy Youth Arena-sponsored over-60 hockey team recently took a silver medal in the first Massachusetts Senior Games at the Wallace Civic Center in Fitchburg.

In the three-game series, the Quincy team tied twice and lost one game. Goal scorers for the Quincy club were Arthur Boyle and Jim Bell with two each and Gene Leahy and Fred Vorderer with one apiece. Among the top playmakers were Bill (Bibby) Lewis and Sumner Smith, who, at 74, is the oldest player on the team.

Senior Games Director Sayler Smith is hoping to expand the senior hockey tournament next year to as many as eight teams.

The gold medal winner at the Senior Games, the Springfield Speed Limits, recently visited Quincy for an exhibition game. All proceeds were donated to the Quincy Youth Hockey Scholarship Fund, in memory of Dick Wilson, Charles Watt and Paul Hussey, who were instrumental in forming the Quincy Executive League.

Quincy's over 60 team was formed in December of 1994. Since then they have expanded from 12 to 22 players. The players come from a wide range of backgrounds, including retired teachers, doctors, businessmen and blue-collar workers, and are united by their common love of hockey.

The team was invited to play in the tournament by Senior Games director Smith, who praised the Quincy players for their enthusiasm and cited the work of John Noonan and Brian Buckley of the Quincy Council on Aging for helping to rally athletes from among Quincy's seniors.

The Quincy senior team plays at Quincy Youth Arena on Tuesdays at 9 a.m. Anyone interested in joining "just for the fun of it" can call Beverly Reinhardt at the Quincy Youth Arena at 479-8371. Players do not have to be from Quincy to be eligible.

Babe Ruth

Ross, Shaw, Croall Dominate On The Mound

Brian Ross spun a no-hitter last week as he led Local 1139 to a 7-0 win over Quincy Police.

Ross fanned 16 men and walked two. A diving catch in shallow right field by second baseman Jeff Russo helped keep alive the no-hit bid.

Maze posted eight strikeouts and held Morrisette scoreless in all but the fourth inning. Maze, Ross, Junkovic and Peter Dawidow did the job at the plate.

Morrisette's Dave Centrella struck out seven batters.

In a battle of power pitchers, Mike Shaw and Manny Vasques combined for 29 strikeouts as Shaw's Bryan Post club topped Fire Department, 8-5.

Shaw edged Vasques in the K category, 16-13. BP took an early 4-0 lead thanks to key at-bats by Brian Gates, Steve Wiltshire, Mark Kelly, Kevin Cellucci and Shawn Manning.

With the game tied 5-5 in the bottom of the seventh, Shaw reached back and struck out the side with the bases loaded to set up an extra inning.

Bryan Post topped Houghs Neck, 10-3, behind the outstanding pitching of McCann and Boostrom.

Wiltshire led the attack with a triple and a home run. Boostrom nailed a triple and Didier Alther clubbed three singles. Infielders Wiltshire, Cooper, Cellucci and Gates combined for an excellent defensive game.

Mike Devin and Matt Gibbons paced Houghs Neck.

Shaw whiffed 11, including the final three outs in the seventh, with the tying run at the plate. Shaw has 45 K's in 29 innings of work.

Brian Deptula pitched very well for Golden Print. Ryan Barrett had two singles and John Sullivan anchored the defense.

Brad Croall spun a masterful one-hitter to lead Granite City to a 7-1 win over Sons of Italy.

Croall's no-hit bid was foiled in the seventh inning when Jon Caliri cracked a base hit, leading to SOI's only run.

Granite City's offensive support came from Matt Nicklas, Jason Oriola, Paul McCarthy and Josh Echelle. Croall was backed by the outstanding play of Joe Flynn, Paul Markarian and Brian Linskey.

SOI catcher Adam Delorey had a stellar game, throwing out four players attempting to steal second.

Bobby Johnston upped his record to 4-0 as the undefeated (8-0) Elks topped Tirrell Services, 11-4.

Johnston struck out five and allowed six hits in six innings of work. Chris Bregoli fanned two in the final inning.

A two-run single by Kevin Shaw in the third put the Elks up for good. Matt McLoughlin doubled in Rusty Corner with their first run. Also hitting the ball well for the Elks were Danny Hamilton, Steve Clarke and Jack Daly.

Johnston also worked the mound in the Elks' 15-2 win over Golden Print.

Johnston started and went four innings, striking out four. Daly mopped up with seven K's in three innings.

Bregoli (four hits, three doubles, five RBI), McLoughlin (four hits, home run, four runs) and Shaw (three hits) were the top batsmen for the Elks.

Shaw also played well behind the plate. Clarke added two hits and three RBI.

Bregoli allowed just one hit and K'd 10 in a 10-1 win over Sons of Italy.

Hamilton and Corner made great fielding plays for the Elks.

St. John's

Bocce Club Rolls Through Schedule

The South Quincy Bocce Club has rolled through the St. John's schedule in defense of their title.

Three pitchers combined for a no-hitter as the South Quincy Bocce Club knocked off Presidents Pharmacy, 15-1.

Chris Doherty, Wayne Larsen and Tom Callahan each worked the mound for Bocce Club, with Doherty recording the win. They combined for 13 K's.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

We learn the words to the "Pledge of Allegiance" early in our lives. Yet many Americans do not know the history of the heritage of our flag. They are unaware that the first Flag Day was in 1777. On June 14 of that year, the Continental Congress passed a resolution, legally establishing the "stars and stripes." As a young nation, our new flag proved to be a symbol of strength and victory. We all link the name of Francis Scott Key and the then poem "The Star Spangled Banner." Key was held prisoner aboard a British man-of-war in Baltimore Harbor during the War of 1812. The British were confident they would capture the Fort before sunrise. All through the night with the "rockets red glare" and bursting bombs the stars and stripes held fast. The Americans had been victorious.

In some cases, one flag can have many histories. Did you know that the same flag that flew over the U.S. Capitol in Washington on Dec. 7, 1941, at the beginning of World War II, was also flown from the mast of the USS Missouri during the final Japanese surrender on Sept. 2, 1945?

Let us on June 14 take time to remember our flag and be proud of what it represents to all of us . . .

Sheets Skeptical On Rubbish Proposal

When told about Sheets' comments, Cheney said a $1 million savings is too good to pass up, since a sum that large could be used to build a new school, hire more police and/or put money back into the pockets of the city's taxpayers.

"I don't agree with the mayor at all," he said. "I think he's being very short-sighted."

Cheney added that he has spoken to the Braintree-based trash disposal/waste-to-energy company Sea-Mass about the city using its landfill for disposal and received an enthusiastic response about the possibility. Using that company would save wear and tear on the trucks, which currently travel to BFI's landfill in East Bridgewater, and ultimately result in more savings for the city, he said.

Cheney stressed he thinks "BFI has done a great job" and he is only looking out for the best interests of the city.

Colton said he will look into the feasibility of Cheney's proposal out of courtesy but noted that he feels the same way as Sheets.

"I'm opposed to the idea of the city doing it," he said. "We've been very successful with privatized service. Competition tends to keep the price down, and it's (rubbish) a very competitive industry."

Colton said BFI's current contract with the city will expire June 30, 1996 the last day of the new fiscal year that begins next month. The company is paid about $2.4 million annually for rubbish pickup and transportation and $47.50 per ton or approximately $1.6 million a year for disposal at its landfill.

"When you think about it, that's really a small price to pay considering what they have to pick up," he said

Colton noted that Quincy annually generates about 42,000 tons of waste--33,000 tons of rubbish and 9,000 tons of recyclables--that BFI is responsible for handling.

"Overall, I think they (BFI) do a great job," he said.

Colton said the main reason he favors the privatization of rubbish collection is, like Sheets, is that it results in an efficient operation.

"The bottom line for me is getting the job done," he said. "The last thing I want to see is a decrease in the level of service."

Cheney said he is convinced the city could maintain the same, if not a better, level of service than a private company.

Colton said the Department of Public Works will begin a three-fold plan of action in the fall: it will begin negotiating with BFI, send out requests for proposals to attract offers from other companies interested in the rubbish contract, and look into Cheney's suggestion.

"All to get the best deal we can," he said.

Wollaston Beach Water Quality Improving

not in as good a condition as they should be. That's something Quincy is working on hard."

Colton said the city's water improvement focuses primarily on the storm water, the water that runs off from the streets into the drainage system through pipes out into Quincy Bay.

"The quality of that water is not always good, especially after a rain storm and the rain water flushes through the system and gets all the bad stuff out in the flush. One of the reasons we felt comfortable today coming to the beach is that it hasn't rained in a couple of days and that's something people should watch," Colton said.

Quincy has spent $1.3 million during the last three to four years in an effort to improve the storm drain system.

"The quality of that run-off is really what I've been focusing on for the last three to four years. It's getting better and better and we're getting to know more and more about the sources of the contamination.

"We've focused the last few years on the underground pipes. Now we're starting to focus on the quality of the water as it runs into the drainage system to try to keep that clean," Colton said.

At the local level, Colton said residents can be a major factor in keeping beach water clean.

"I can't emphasize it more that (people) should clean up after their pets," Colton said. "A dog creates twice as much fecal bacteria as a human being a day. For every one dog that's two people. That's a direct source of contamination to the beach. People can really help by paying attention to that and cleaning up after their pets."

MacDonald said swimmers should be aware that pollution problems can return after a bad rain storm. The water is tested regularly during the summer and if the fecal coliform count is unsafe, beach closings are posted.

"After a bad rain storm, you may have stuff washed almost right here in the water and that means that wouldn't be a good day to swim," the director said. "But the sun helps and the wind helps and we've had two nice warm days and people should feel that on a nice day like today and it hasn't rained for a couple of days that they should come and feel the water is inviting them in."

MacDonald has swam in Boston Harbor each of the last three summers since he took over as executive director. "I did it mostly so there wouldn't be a first time," he grinned. "I swam in South Boston and many of those improvements were already in place so the improvement in water quality has been progressive over the last three to four years.

"But," he emphasized, "you're beginning to see people appreciate that now because they're hearing about it from word-of-mouth. These people on the beach today," MacDonald said, pointing to two walkers at the water's edge, "they're going to go home and say they were on the beach today. Somebody else will be down here tomorrow.

"You hear a lot about it from the boaters, people who fish or get out on the water and coming back and telling their neighbors that there's something very special going on in Boston Harbor. And the media has picked it up."

Colton said the MWRA and Quincy have worked together on improving the water quality and identifying pollution sources.

"The MWRA has been very helpful to us with providing television inspection crews which come out and inspect the insides of the sewers for us, helping us with the analytical testing and coming up with a methodology to do the testing and to trace what's going on.

"We've found here at Wollaston Beach that one of the main factors in when a beach is going to close is wind direction because the water is so shallow. If there is a plume of dirty water coming in from out of pipes, the wind really pushes it around so that affects the quality and the dilution rate isn't very great because the water is so shallow.

"We've got some plans on the drawing board to look at various alternatives for treating that or extending the outfalls into deeper water so that they're not as affected by wind and the shallowness of the water."

Colton said the city has two separate sewer systems. One takes sanitary waste into the MWRA system. The other takes run-off from the street and other paved areas like parking lots and empties into Quincy Bay.

"It's important that we spend some money to make sure those (run-off) pipes are in good shape because the more they're cracked or in disrepair the more chance there is for stuff from the dirty pipe to leak into the clean pipe," Colton said.

"We also have to focus on the quality of the water running into those pipes off the street. If we keep our streets clean, and people don't put things down the catch basins they're not supposed to put, the water quality coming out to the beach will be good."

Improving water quality is only part of the equation. The MDC, which maintains Wolla-ston Beach, has embarked on an ambitious beach restoration project.

The most immediate plans, scheduled to begin this summer, include assigning a full-time manager at the beach, and a lifeguard staff at several points along the two-mile stretch of sand.

In addition, cleanup crews will be dispatched every morning to remove garbage from one end of the beach to the other. Water fountains and beaches on the sidewalk along the beach's perimeter on Quincy Shore Dr. will be repaired, and toilets will be installed.

Long-range plans call for a new bathhouse on the beach, tons of new sand along the waterfront, and landscaped shad trees in the area.

According to the MWRA, there are other indications that the harbor is becoming cleaner. Beach closures in 1993 remained below the incidence of the late 1980s, evidence of reduced bacterial contamination in the harbor. Figures for 1994 and 1995 were unavailable from the MDC at press time.

Also, the amount of sewage-borne litter remains much lower than only a few years ago, and, in some areas, water clarity has improved by nearly two feet of visibility.

The progress of the harbor's quality improvement is monitored by MWRA scientists, MacDonald said.

"The scientists look at it all the time and they're able to track the health of the critters and it's improving but we still have a long way to go. This job isn't finished.

"We didn't go from the dirtiest harbor in the world to the cleanest in the world yet. We went from a very dirty harbor to a harbor whose promise we can begin to re-envision and we just have to keep working at it because even this summer, this beach won't be fine for swimming every day and until it is, we have to keep going."

MacDonald said clean water helps make the cleanup project more palatable for ratepayers who are shouldering 78 percent of the $3.5 billion price tag.

"If you're in an audience of 15 people almost anywhere in the service area, and somebody brings up the rates, somebody else is going to say, I don't have to say it, somebody else says, 'It's really wonderful what's happening.'

"If government is going to spend money to do something, isn't it great if you see the government get the result and I think people themselves are answering the question that a better Boston Harbor is something that is worth our doing."

The federal govern-ment, which mandated the project in the mid-1980s, is financing about 18 percent of the project while the state is picking up the rest. MacDonald said the MWRA is budget conscious.

"We have to be careful about spending the money very cost effectively but if the money is spent well, I think people like to see the dividend."

MWRA officials say the cleanup project is a misnomer. The harbor is not being "cleaned" by the MWRA. Instead, the agency is constructing new sewage treatment facilities for 43 Massachusetts communities and to control pollution in Boston Harbor.

The project's centerpiece is a new $1.3 billion-gallon-capacity primary and secondary plant on Deer Island that will treat waste-water generated by 2.5 million people and 5,500 businesses in the Boston area. The new facilities will replace outmoded primary treatment plants on Deer and Nut Islands and allow the MWRA to meet standards set by the the federal Clean Water Act.

The project also includes a 9.5 mile outfall tunnel that will convey twice-treated effluent to the deep waters off Massachusetts Bay, a 5-mile tunnel connecting Deer Island to a new headworks on Nut Island and a sludge processing plant that is already converting sewage sludge to fertilizer pellets at the Fore River staging area in Quincy.

The primary treatment plant was phased into operation in January. Next year, the first portion of the secondary treatment plant will begin to treat much of the area's dry weather wastewater flow. The entire project is scheduled for completion by 1999.

But, MacDonald emphasized, communities like Quincy also have to do their share to keep Boston Harbor pollution-free by repairing antiquated sewer, water and outfall pipes.

"When we get done doing the project out there (at Deer Island), a lot of the local communities have got to finish the kind of work Quincy has been doing in this neighborhood. We've got to look to our drinking water system which has it's own needs because water is so important to people and not just on the beach but that they have good, safe drinking water and we need to get that system in shape too."

With a Republican Congress in power and a sharpened focus on trimming and balancing the federal budget, MacDonald sees an uphill fight for more federal assistance.

"I think the changes in Washington are making it tougher and tougher to get money for projects like this because of the basic budgetary limitations. But . . . all the polling and survey data which we see from around the country suggests that people really do care about the environment.

"They don't want environmental regulations that they can't understand but they do want a safe and pleasant place in which to live and they want themselves to recycle and the government to have programs. They want that to happen.

"We can't walk away from the projects like this, whether in Boston or anywhere else around the country because people insist on them. The basic environmental improvements are being driven because people want to come back to this beach."

The Quincy 2000 Corporation has announced the appointment of Joseph Mannarino as executive director.

Mannarino replaces Chuck D'Aprix who had served as executive director since the co-operation's foundation in January, 1993. D'Aprix resigned in March for a position in Florida. Mannarino has served as acting executive director since his departure.

Quincy 2000 Chairman Charles R. Simpson Jr. said Mannarino "brings a new perspective to the executive director position and will enable Quincy 2000 to sustain and expand its mission of economic development and job creation".

Simpson and Mannarino worked closely while establishing Quincy 2000's Loan Pool and also during the interim period following the departure of D'Arix.

Mannarino said, "I am delighted to be offered the opportunity to direct the economic development initiatives for the Quincy 200 Cooperation. My extensive community planning and area development experience in both the public and private sectors will support my abilities to make a difference in Quincy's future".

JOSEPH MANNARINO

Mayor James Sheets said of Mannarinos; past contributions, "Many of Quincy 2000's accomplishments were achieved in part, through the diligent and effective style that he brought to the organization. Joe will bring stability and maturity to the cooperation as it advances and contributes to development projects such as the potential of a Quincy Center hotel, the Loan Pool, the re-development of the Hancock Lot, and others".

Mannarino said he looks forward to continuing and expanding the partnership role that Quincy 2000 has forged between city officials and the business community.

"I believe Quincy 2000 is positioned to tackle the many challenges in expanding Quincy's employment base and increasing business opportunities. I am fortunate to have the opportunity to work closely with Mayor Sheets and Charles Simpson".

Mannarino brings 15 years of planning and economic development experience to the position. Before joining Quincy 2000, he was a principal in the firm of JSM Planning. Prior positions included vice president of operations at Dunn Engineering and director of planning and development for the cities of Mansfield and North Kingstown. He holds a bachelor's degree in economic geography from Framingham State and a master's degree in community planning from the university of Rhode Island.

bet my mortgage on it."

Cahill, who said the $863,143 is easily the biggest budget cut made in his four terms as a councillor, agreed.

"You can't keep going back to the taxpayers and saying 'give us more money,'" he said.

No layoffs are called for in the budget, and the council kept salary raises for several department heads and union workers. However, several requests for new employees in various departments were rejected, which resulted in about $100,000 being cut from the budget.

All labor contracts are up at the end of this month. Foy said giving even a 1 percent increase to city employees across the board would result in a cost of about $700,000.

Sheets' proposal to spend $168,058 to hire people to run the city's parking system--part of his plan to have the city assume management of the system--was not cut from the budget despite consideration opposition. Cahill's proposal to have it cut was supported by LaRaia, Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, but the other five councilors opposed it.

A total of $22,919 for a graffiti remover was also approved, despite opposition from Cahill and Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien who said they feel graffiti removal could be done in-house without hiring additional personnel.

Another proposed budget cut that the council decided to do away with was a total of $38,050 for out-of-state travel. Council President Michael Cheney, who serves as acting mayor whenever Sheets is out of town, brought the house down when he explained why his decision to support the cut was a "painful" one.

"No one likes to see the mayor go out of town more than me," he said.

Sheets said the budget reduction is the largest he can remember in many years. He said he respects the council's decision to make so many cuts and looks forward to administering the reduced budget.

"It will be a good challenge," said Sheets.

Sheets Sees Chance For Second Year

No New Tax Hike Possible

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets is going to attempt what he believes no Quincy mayor has been able to do before-to propose no property tax increase for the second consecutive year.

The mayor, who held the line on taxes last year, said earlier this year he was almost certain there would be an increase when the matter comes up in the fall. At press time, however, he said there is a chance of another "no new taxes" year.

"It's not beyond the realm of possibility," he said.

Last year marked the first time since the early 1980s that a mayor called for no tax increase.

Sheets stressed that he cannot promise taxes again will not be raised. But he said the following factors make it possible:

•State education and lottery funds for the city in the new Massachusetts budget total just over $2 million. The figure, which was announced Monday by state Sen. Michael Morrissey, is about $300,000 more than was expected, according to Sheets.

•There will be no increase for Massachusetts

City Council Divided

$3.7M Bond Faces Fight

Mayor James Sheets plans to send a bond package for school and other matters totaling about $3.7 million to the City Council, but the proposal could face an uphill battle as the council is divided on the matter.

Sheets said at press time that nearly half the package--about $1.7 to $1.8 million--would fund construction of a computer network for all the city's schools. Among the other items in the package:

•$500,000 for repairs to sidewalks and roadwork.

The council must approve any bonding before it can happen. Two-thirds of the nine councillors must support the bond package, meaning that the opposition of four councillors would stop it from happening.

The city currently has about $32.5 million in bonds outstanding, which is the main reason some councillors oppose the new bond package. Councillor-at-Large Joseph LaRaia said Tuesday he would need a lot of proof that such action is necessary.

"I'd have to see some data on it to even justify considering it," he said. "I am not going to commit to a bond unless there's an extreme necessity."

Last week, Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill said he does not plan to vote for any bond in the near future other than one that will likely total about $8 million for an addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center. The schools have received plenty of support from the council, he said, and now it is the library that should be a priority.

Council President Michael Cheney said last week he is "skeptical" about the need for the bond and questioned the wisdom of passing it after the council worked hard to shave more than $800,000 from Sheets' proposed budget for the new fiscal year last week.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson said Tuesday he presently does not plan to vote for the bonding but

Board Shortens Hours At New Dunkin Donuts

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Although Atty. Robert Fleming said Dunkin Donuts could "not agree to any change of hours" at its controversial Quincy Point location, the License Board Tuesday cut the operating hours from 5 a.m.-11 p.m. to 5 a.m.-9 p.m.

Board member and building inspector Matt Mulvey voted against the change stating that the hours were stated in the original license as being 5 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Most of the discussion at the meeting focused on whether or not the donut shop would have a planned drive-up window.

According to Fleming, the drive-up window was the motivating reason for choosing the site and is one of the purposes for satellite stores.

In addressing traffic concerns by neighbors of the donut shop, Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon presented a plan to alleviate some of the traffic problems.

Back in April, when the donut shop was proposed, Rev. Fred Atwood-Lyon pastor of Quincy Point Congregational Church, owners of the property which houses the Donut Shop promised abutters that on Sundays, church ushers from Quincy Point Congregational Church would assist in supervising traffic in the parking lot.

At Tuesday's meeting, however, head usher Robert Gohl of the church which abutts the donut shop presented a letter to the board stating he was never contacted about such as proposal.

Gohl said he polled 12 ushers, and said not one voiced support for standing in the parking area watching traffic.

In his letter, Gohl said he didn't believe an usher's job was monitoring traffic, watching out for speeders, and preventing littering. He said these are the duties of Dunkin Donuts Management to oversee.There was no comment from Atwood-Lyon who was also in attendance at

Museum Volunteer Killed In Highway Accident

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A member of a Naval Reserve Unit that helped prepare the USS Salem at the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum at the Fore River shipyard for tourists was killed in an automobile accident Sunday.

Dennis Little, 40, of Chicopee was traveling westbound on the Massachusetts Turnpike near Natick around 5 p.m. when a tire dislodged from a tractor-trailer traveling in the opposite direction, bounced off a guardrail, crashed through his windshield and killed him.

A second man in Little's car was injured in the accident. Steve Bursmith, 25, a resident of Feeding Hills and a volunteer at the museum, was treated and released for minor injuries at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Mayor James Sheets, chairman of the museum's board of directors, said Little was a member of the Ships Intermediate Maintenance Activity (SIMA) Group of Rhode Island, the Naval Reserve Unit that helped restore the ship. Little was driving home after an appreciation cookout for museum staff and volunteers, he added.

"It's tragic," said Sheets. "He was still very young. I know from talking with others that he enjoyed working on this (Salem) project. We're all deeply saddened."

Museum Executive Director William MacMullen could not be reached for comment.

State Police are investigating the cause of the accident. At press time, no charges had been filed against the driver of the tractor-trailer.

Sheets Sees $350,000 Surplus At End Of FY95

The city will end up with a surplus of about $350,000 at the end of the fiscal year (FY95), according to Mayor James Sheets.

The mayor said Tuesday that Quincy currently has a total of about $975,000 in reserve monies, although about $625,000 of that will be used to balance the city's books before the new fiscal year (FY96) begins July 1.

Sheets said he is undecided at this point what will happen with the remaining $350,000, although some of it may be used to take care of Chapter 1 and special needs issues related to the Quincy Public Schools.

Funds left over at the end of the month will automatically be rolled into the city's free cash account, the mayor said.

Confident About Quincy Center's Future

Ryder's Renews Five Year Lease

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Longtime business owner Charles Ryder is confident about Quincy Center's future as a retail shopping district.

Confident enough that he has renewed the lease for another five years for his Ryder's Curtains and Draperies store at 1489 Hancock St.

Ryder, 59, said he is also planning to sell his other store at North River Plaza in Pembroke by the end of July--when the lease there expires--so he can concentrate more fully on his Quincy Center business.

"We were very successful down there (Pembroke) for about 10 years, but the pie has gotten smaller," he said. "We've struggled the last two years or so down there.

"Rather than deplete the assets of the corporation and hurt Quincy, we decided to cut the thread. Quincy is where we started. Quincy has been good to us."

Ryder handles the operation of the two stores and his wife buys the merchandise. The business has been located in Quincy Center since 1976 and Pembroke since 1982.

Times have been tough in recent years for downtown businesses, but Ryder expressed optimism when he was asked if he thinks things will improve in the future.

"Absolutely," he said. "Quincy is one of the cleanest cities around, and the population is stable. The problem is that the retail base has eroded in the last 15 years. There's a lot of potential in the downtown; the only catalyst we don't have are the other retailers."

As examples of the "potential" he sees, Ryder cited the planned construction of the Quincy Center Concourse which will link Burgin Parkway with Hancock Street in the downtown as well as the eventual development of the Hancock Parking Lot which Mayor James Sheets hopes to use for commercial or retail development.

Ryder said he also hopes the mayor's hopes for a downtown hotel will soon become a reality and that nearby Quincy College can somehow move closer to the shopping district to create more of a college atmosphere there.

While the downtown has been filling up in recent years with "service" businesses such as hair salons and restaurants, more retailers are needed if Quincy Center is to to survive, Ryder said. He applauded the efforts of Sheets, the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) and Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation in trying to attract major retailers to the city.

Like other downtown merchants, Ryder said he was disappointed when he first heard that negotiations between Quincy 2000 and Decelle, a Braintree-based clothier apparently have broken down in recent months. Although Decelle signed a letter of intent to open a store at the site of the former Child World and Cummings stores (part of the Adams Arcade Building) late last year, a formal lease was never signed.

Still, he remains upbeat about the future.

"Things will get better," he said. "We wouldn't have signed a lease if we thought otherwise."

And how is business today at Ryder's?

"We're doing okay, but we could be doing a lot better," he said. "We're going to be working hard to ensure that we're going to drag some of those customers up here from Pembroke. I am willing to work actively to pursue this.

"The City of Quincy has afforded me a wonderful living, but you have to put something back

Committee Passes Anti-Graffiti Laws

The City Council Ordinance Committee Monday night approved two measures to help reduce the amount of graffiti in the city.

The committee unanimously backed a law that would fine vandals $200 for defacing public property and make them responsible for reimbursing the city for any damage.

A ban on the sale of spray paint to youths under the age of 18, however, only passed by a 4-3 vote. The proposed ordinance would also make it illegal for youths to carry spray paint in a public place, and the ban would punish both the spray paint carrier and seller with a $100 fine.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio proposed the spray paint ban. He was supported by Councillors-at-Large Timothy Cahill and Joseph LaRaia and Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson.

Those who voted against the ban because they felt it went too far included Council President Michael Cheney, Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro and Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien did not attend Monday night's meeting.

The council as a whole will vote on both matters at a future meeting and could do so as soon as next week.

A PRIMER ON PAINKILLERS

Ads for painkillers are everywhere, providing a dizzying array of choices for consumers. Actually, there are only two major types of painkillers: narcotic and nonnarcotic. Narcotics are the natural or artificial forms of opium, usually prescribed for limited periods to counter the severe pain of cancer, serious injury or surgery. Examples of narcotics include morphine, codeine, propoxyphene and meperidine. Nonnarcotics include aspirin and other "salicylates," acetaminophen and non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs, such as ibuprofen. Many prescription painkillers offer combinations of narcotics and nonnarcotics. All of these painkillers have strengths to recommend them and side effects to consider. Discuss them with your doctor.

P.S. "Analgesic" is the term for substances that relieve pain without causing loss of consciousness.

Don't be afraid to ask for the medications you need when you are ill. Consult your physician for all the options. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I recommend you consult the experts when you are having physical symptoms. We are conveniently located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. Too Much Counselling?

Are we enroute to the day when future generations will need a counsellor at their side like a golfer's caddy to help them cope with the ups and downs of life?

Those who grew up in the 1930's and 1940's and fought in or lived through World War II seemed to have a pretty good handle on emotions, anxiety, distress, etc. on their own.

But more and more nowadays people seem to be turning to counsellors to help face the problems of life.

Jim MacGregor, of West Quincy, former long-time chaplain of the Quincy Lodge of Elks, has sent along a copy of a column that recently appeared in the Sunday Post in his native Scotland.

He thinks Quincy Sun readers might find it interesting and wonders if the day will come when everyone needs a counsellor to deal with life.

The column, written by Barbara Bruce, is entitled: "Is counselling getting out of hand?" It follows:

As we prepare to celebrate VE Day, there's one question I'd like to ask the men, women and children who lived through World War Two—how did you do it without counselling?

Maybe there's something you could teach us, because today it seems as if we've lost the knack of dealing with our own problems.

We rely on counsellors to get us through everything from divorce to national disaster and death.

Isn't it almost inevitable that in the aftermath of the Oklahoma tragedy we hear of droves of counsellors helping Americans come to terms with their grief?

By telling people—especially children—they need a counsellor are we sending a message that we're anticipating they'll feel devastated?

Children cope with their emotions in their own way and at their own pace. Grown-ups too.

Grieve

There's no right or wrong way to grieve. Pain and grief are as natural as breathing.

As far as I'm aware we haven't yet felt the need of someone showing us how to do that. We just get on with it.

Now I know many dedicated counsellors who bring real help into people's lives and I'm not knocking the valuable work they do.

But if we begin to feel we always need an expert to help us handle distress will we lose the ability to deal with difficulties ourselves?

People in wartime faced deprivation, appalling injuries, bombing and years of anxiety for loved ones overseas.

They lived with the constant threat of invasion and the private fear of a telegram bringing bad news.

Yet through it all men, women and children stubbornly refused to be beaten.

I don't for a moment believe they were any braver than we are or made of sterner stuff.

Fundamentally human nature doesn't change.

Sometimes we feel vulnerable and alone just as people did 50 years ago. Then there was the next door neighbor to talk to, or a friend, or auntie down the road. Someone who'd listen, let you cry and then make a cup of tea.

Maybe that's what we need most. Each other.

Because in the dark days of war and through the horror of Oklahoma one thing endures. The resilience of the human spirit. The capacity in the face of danger, death and despair to hold on.

I hope VE Day is a celebration of life. A triumph not for the winning of a war but for the courage of ordinary men and women who got by, quietly and without counsellors.

The Rental Casket Question

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

In response to recent articles on rental caskets I would like to offer a funeral director's perspective.

Our concern is not whether a family purchases or rents a casket. Our role is to provide as many options in order to serve the many faiths, and customs of the community we serve.

There are major differences to consider before a family chooses a funeral home. The quality of service, appearance of the facility and professional staff available must be considered. Do they support their community, and are they directly involved in its activities?

There is a growing trend in funeral service towards conglomerates that purchase funeral homes and control them from out of state or even out of the country. Do you know who owns the funeral homes in your community? The family or independently-owned funeral home's primary focus is on the families we serve and the communities in which we live. The conglomerates focus is on their shareholders and the bottom line.

Our opinion is that whether a family desires to rent a casket, purchase a casket, consider cremation, or a traditional service, we exist to serve families in any capacity that they feel is important.

A Doctor's Advice For Congress

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Heart disease remains the nation;s number 1 killer, but thanks to research, doctors have more tools to fight back, including drugs to control high blood pressure and defibrillators and pacemakers to correct abnormal heart rhythms.

And now, scientists are on the cusp of major breakthroughs in understanding and treating the genetic defects that lead to heart disease and stroke.

We sometimes take for granted the benefits available to us from scientific breakthroughs, but we can't imagine life without them. And when push comes to shove, Americans will go to bat in support of biomedical research. A recent Harris poll found that nine in 10 Americans believe that more money should be spent on medical research to better diagnose, treat and prevent disease.

We believe that Congress, like most Americans, accepts that a strong federally-funded bio-medical research program is critical to developing cures for diseases. Yet, amidst the cost-cutting frenzy on Capital Hill, the National Institutes of Health faces a potential 25 percent cut in funding over the next seven years. This threatens NIH-sponsored heart and stroke research, such as clinical trials to reduce deaths and hospitalizations from congestive heart failure, or using aspirin and drug treatment to reduce strokes.

A federal funding drought also threatens the ability of researchers to take risks necessary for the kind of cutting-edge research that makes the US the world leader in science and technology. If the federal biomedical research budget is cut, proposals considered a "long shot" won't be funded. But as scientists know, it's the long shots that often produce the most dramatic medical breakthroughs.

Research is our best defense against diseases that threaten our families and children. We can't afford to become soft and cautious in the face of killers like heart disease, cancer and AIDS. The public, including the families who suffer from these diseases, believe that biomedical research should be a top priority. Congress, take a doctor's advice, listen to your constituents.

Germantown Beach Clean-up Backfires

1961

By PAUL HAROLD

An experiment with chemicals in the clean-up of oil from the Riverbank Rd. Beach in Germantown backfired. The oil dislodged from Germantown floated across Town River and landed on Avalon Beach in Quincy Point.

"I'm through with chemicals," Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa said after inspecting the new oil deposits in Quincy Point.

The experiment was done by a Boston firm whose employees sprayed a small section of the Riverbank Rd. beach and then used a fire hose to wash it off.

McINTYRE HITS VOLPE FOR ATTACK ON JFK

Rep. James McIntyre criticized Governor John Volpe for a speech he made in New York attacking President Kennedy's foreign policy.

"I am disturbed that Governor Volpe has chosen to go out of state to attack our native son President," McIntyre said. He also pointed out that in the area of foreign affairs, the President has almost universal bipartisan support.

"I believe that it would be in the best interest of Massachusetts if the governor would spend more time in state, trying to straighten out the disgraceful condition of the various divisions of his former department, the DPW, and pay more attention to solving transportation problems in a less dictatorial and autocratic manner than he approached the South Shore problem."

MORRISETTE DEFEATS QUINCY, 4-0

Bill Devine pitched a two-hitter for the winning team, striking out 13. Even though he was on the losing side, pitcher Phil Crowley was outstanding, striking out eight.

Sterling Seventh Graders Perform In Drama Showcase

The show included "Curtains Up!," an original dramatic piece written by the students in honor of their teachers and supporters, as well as musical, dramatic and comedic performances from shows such as "Man of La Mancha," "The Wiz," "Romeo and Juliet," "Dracula," "The Odd Couple" and others.

The event was the result of the comprehensive drama course ever offered at the school. Officials said Sterling is the first Quincy school to offer the program in its curriculum.

English teacher Deborah Ali, who is involved in professional theatre, turned her study class into a full-credit comprehensive drama course last September.

Students were required to keep their grades up in other classes and audition for the show before they could perform. They were graded in the drama course every semester.

The seventh graders learned many aspects of theatre, including improvisation, method acting, characterization study, theatre games, movement, blocking, scene study, musical theatre, comedy, drama and classical theatre.

In addition, students learned the areas of production. They managed the stage and took care of sound, lights and curtains.

Seven Central Middle School Students Honored For Essays

The young writers were among 39 students from 15 Massachusetts communities who received praise and awards from the MWRA and legislative and local officials at a ceremony held at the John F. Kennedy Library.

The local students are:

Elizabeth Quinn, seventh grade, first place; BaoNgoc Trannguyen, sixth grade, second place; Maya Barahona, eighth grade, second place; Amy Cheung, seventh grade, third place; Maggie Ketcham, sixth grade, honorable mention; Andrea Leahy, sixth grade, honorable mention; and Lauren Pizzi, seventh grade, honorable mention.

"Each of the winners here today is helping the MWRA to create a climate of public support for the Boston Harbor Project by explaining that the Authority is not 'cleaning-up' Boston Harbor, but rather building modern sewerage treatment plants, so that we can protect the public health and marine environment for generations to come," said MWRA Associate Director Elisa Speranza.

Jennifer Seamans-Johnson Co-Curator At Milton Art Museum

Jennifer Seamans-Johnson, an artist and substitute teacher in Quincy, has curated the collection at the Milton Art Museum under the direction of Elizabeth Egan-Neville.

Johnson said of the event, "It was a fascinating experience, especially working with the Chinese Ceramics and Picasso Prints."

The project was voluntary and ran from Oct. 1994 until May, 1995.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

Farmers' Market Opens Friday

The Quincy Farmers Market will begin its 13th season Friday at 11:30 a.m. at the John Hancock Parking Lot across from Quincy District Court, Chestnut St.

The market will continue through the summer every Friday at the parking lot. Many of last year's farmers plan to return this season.

Among the foods that will be available include pea, swish card, sweet beets, herbs, melons, blueberries, cranberries, sweet corn, tomatoes, sweet potatoes and other fruits and vegetables.

The Quincy Farmers' Market is supported by the mayor's office, the Planning and Community Development Department, local media, Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and area residents.

Produce is picked ripe and sold that day. There are unusual varieties of fruits and vegetables bred for flavor, not for uniform size or ability to travel.

Farmers' Markets put more money in the farmers' pockets, and buying from the farmer assures consumers the availability of local produce. Working farms also help preserve open space.

How To Survive The Stresses Of Sitting Down To Work

The fastest growing on-the-job injury in the United States is Cumulative Trauma Disorder, e.g. Carpal Tunnel Syndrome. In fact, even in our high-tech society, human performance remains a key factor. Rising health care costs and continuous training and replacement in high turnover jobs are forcing businesses to consider methods and programs designed to develop healthy workplaces and healthy workers.

All across the country companies are implementing programs to help workers become healthier and more productive. None will achieve greater success than those organizations who strive to improve the work environment by providing proper equipment and ongoing education and training on how to become a healthier, more productive worker.

Many of the common complaints in the workplace are: wrist, hand and finger pain; eye strain; headaches; neck and shoulder pain, back pain and fatigue.

Dr. Freedman provides workshops on sitting fit and carpal tunnel syndrome in order to set up the office workspace for optimum comfort and productivity. His workshops also focus on nutrition.

If you are working in an office that can benefit by Dr. Freedman's expertise, please contact Eileen at 472-4220

Beer, Wine License Request Withdrawn After Opposition

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Owners of the D & C Quincy market, 33 Washington St. who requested a wine and malt beverage license, were told to withdraw without prejudice because the support "just wasn't there."

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said this procedure would allow the owners to apply at some later date.

However, board chairman Joseph Shea said when the license was issued three years ago to the previous owners, it was stipulated that no liquor would be sold at the site. He added that the traffic problems in driving around the corner of the store were not conducive to a business of that nature.

Douglas Bruce, moderator of the Central Baptist church located at 65 Washington St. presented a letter of opposition to the board.

In the letter he said as a fellowship of Baptists, "we strongly oppose the use and distribution of alcohol as a beverage."

He said the Quincy School system and the Quincy Police Department have made significant progress with the youth of the city regarding alcohol and drug awareness. He said the location of the store is within the "drug free zone" of the Quincy High School and the issuance of such as license would send the wrong message to the young people who attend Quincy High School

John Mahoney, social health coordinator for the Quincy Schools said the license to sell beer and wine there would "definitely have an impact on educational programs at the school." Mahoney said he was concerned with the "availability to the store so close to the school."

Marilan Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association said although the QCBPA is "pro business", she said they had "strong concerns some from observation in general, the traffic flow, parking concerns and limited experience. She said the corner of Temple and Washington Streets where the store is located is looked upon as a "historic district" and the proximity to the school, college and library were too close.

She said the QCBPA would vote negative to the proposal at this time.

MARION MACDONALD, a resident of the Rice Eventide Home in Quincy, recently celebrated her 100th birthday. Among those on hand was Framingham State College Director of Annual Giving and Alumni Relations Rose Dixon, who presented as a gift a sweatshirt from Macdonald's alma mater.

Marion Macdonald Honored On 100th Birthday

Though she's 100 years old, Marion Macdonald is definitely a woman of the 90s.

When she recently celebrated her 100th birthday, her alma mater wanted to be a part of the special event. As a result, Framingham State College Director of Annual Giving and Alumni Relations Rose Dixon visited Macdonald at the Rice Eventide Home in Quincy and presented a school sweatshirt to the centenarian.

Macdonald said she was delighted by the visit and the gift.

"Not only will the sweatshirt keep me warm, but it will let everyone know how proud I am of Framingham State and what it has accomplished," she said.

Macdonald is a woman who understands accomplishments. A native of Mattapan, she was elected president of her senior class at a time when Framingham State was still known as Framingham Normal School. She went on to earn a master's degree in chemistry, and then to teach at Boston University, Harvard Medical School and Framingham State.

During Prohibition, Macdonald worked for the federal government analyzing bootleg liquor.

"We worked nights in a small lab, which was kept under lock and key," she recalled. "You hear the phrase 'bathtub gin.' Well, that pretty much sums it up. Some for that home-made liquor was very crude, just a step above the alcohol used in paints.

"It had a strong odor, which stuck to our clothes. Commuting home on the trolley, I got some strange looks. I guess people assumed that I'd been on a bender in some speakeasy!"

In 1960, state laws mandated retirement at age 65. The industrious Macdonald, however, soon secured another position speaking at Simmons College, where she spent the next 10 years.

Macdonald, who attended President William H. Taft's inauguration when she was 12, occupies herself now with handcrafts and keeping up with current events.

Schedule Announced For Arts In The Parks Program

City Council President and First Night Quincy Chairman Michael Cheney announces the schedule for the Arts In the Parks program.

Arts In The Parks is a newly created alcohol and other drug-free family entertainment series that will be held in eight locations this summer. The series, which begins July 6 at 1000 Southern Artery, will be held July 11 at Ruth Gordon Ampitheater, July 18 at Labrecque Field, July 25 at Fore River Field, Aug. 1 at Bishop Playground, Aug. 8 at Kincaide Park, Aug. 15 at Wendell Moses Playground and concludes Aug. 22 at the Granite Workers Memorial on Copeland St.

The event is being hosted by First Night Quincy and sponsored by the City of Quincy and major sponsors including South Boston Savings Bank and a host of other financial supporters.

The concept of family entertainment during the summer at various local parks came as a result of comments made at First Night Quincy last New Year's Eve.

"Many families requested that we provide family entertainment during the warmer months as a chance or families and neighbors to get together within their own neighborhoods for an early evening of fun and entertainment. Arts In The Parks will provide just chat, " said Cheney.

Mark Leighton, artistic director of First Night, will also serve as artistic director for Arts In The Parks.

"We have an exciting program lined up for families to enjoy," he said. "We are going to great lengths to ensure that there is a variety of family entertainment. Because we want the entire community to participate, all performances are free and people of all ages are invited."

Leighton also announces the selection of two of the four performing groups, the Quincy Alumni Band and Made In The Shade, a four piece Dixieland band. He also indicated two other groups will be hired. Selection is expected to be finalized this week.

"Acts are selected from many individual entertainment group that fall into categories of folk, children's music and musical theater," said Leighton.

Cheney added, "It is not too late for any business or individual who wishes their name mentioned in the program to contact First Night Quincy for advertising information."

All programs will begin at 6 p.m. and end at 8 p.m. People are encouraged to bring a lounge chair or blanket to sit on. Refreshments will be available at a modest cost. Admission is free.

"In the event the first annual Arts In The Parks is a success, next summer the number of parks chosen for entertainment will double," said Cheney.

In the event of rain for any Tuesday performance, the rain date will be Thursday of the same week. For more information, call 376-1071.

Public Hearing On Shaw's Rezoning June 19

The City Council will hold a public hearing Monday, June 19 at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center, regarding the rezoning of land on the Wollaston-North Quincy line.

The rezoning is the result of an agreement between the city and Shaw's Supermarket which plans to build a new store in the neighborhood. The land, located between 480 and 488 Hancock St., 2 and 8 Albion Rd. and 5 and 7 Albion Rd., is to be rezoned from Business "B" to Residence "A."

All are welcome to attend the hearing.

Public Forum June 20 On Concourse Project

A Speakout Public Forum for Quincy residents will be held Tuesday, June 20 at 7 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room in City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The event is being sponsored by the Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) relative to the proposed Quincy Center Concourse which would link Burgin Parkway with Hancock Street in the downtown area.

CAC Chairman David Ezickson said the purpose of the meeting is to allow residents from all sections of Quincy to present oral or written comments concerning the $6 million 900-foot roadway. The public forum agenda will include group discussions and a question-and-answer period. Light refreshments will be available.

Ezickson stressed that the project is not for Quincy Center only. Residents from all parts of the city will make use of the concourse.

A recent traffic study indicated that steps must be taken to eliminate possible gridlock of motor vehicles at certain times of the day at several intersections which have been termed unacceptable for the flow of traffic that now exists.

The study said the concourse will make it safer for individuals and the elderly and handicapped who shop in the Granite Plaza area.

The CAC is composed of representatives of the business community, homeowners, and senior citizens.

Gay-Straight Alliance Conference Saturday

Building Bridges of Respect, a community conference to create greater understanding and alliance building among gay and straight community members, will be held Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

The conference will take place at Christ Church Episcopal in Quincy Center, at Hancock St., School St., and Quincy Ave.

The conference is sponsored by the Impact Quincy Gay-Straight Alliance and is co-sponsored by over fifteen Quincy clergypersons, businesses, social service providers, and private citizens.

"Our hope is that this conference will help all of our citizens feel valued and appreciated within our community," said Deanna White-Herbert, chairwoman of the IQ Alliance. "We know that by affirming all people, we help to create a healthier community."

The IQ Gay-Straight Alliance was formed one year ago to address the growing rates of substance abuse and suicide among youths dealing with or concerned about their sexual orientation. The group has identified the need for the entire community to be supportive of all people in order to prevent these trends.

The conference will open with a keynote address by a speaker from PFLAG: Parents, Families and Friends of Lesbians and Gays, an international organization that promotes understanding and support for families of gays. The address will be followed by two workshop sessions, a wrap-up and planning session, and a community lunch.

A suggested voluntary donation of $5 for professionals and adults will be accepted, although no one will be turned away due to inability to pay. Youth and elders are encouraged to attend without making a donation. Attendees may order a box lunch on the morning of the conference for an additional $5.

The workshop topics include: "What Causes It?," an exploration of the connection between human sexual development and substance abuse; "The Church's Response," a discussion of the varied responses of organized religion to homosexuality throughout history; "What Our Youth Need," a panel discussion featuring high school youth from Quincy; "Through Our Own Barriers," a guided journey to explore each person's own experiences of prejudice and oppression; Straight From The Heart," a moving documentary about the struggles faced by adolescents dealing with their sexuality; and an introductory workshop on PFLAG.

"We want every member of the community to feel welcome at this conference in a spirit of respect and appreciation," said White-Herbert. "This conference is for straight people, gay, lesbian, and bisexual people, parents, youth - anyone who wants to gain some greater understanding."

Co-sponsors of the conference include: Bay State Community Services Inc., Petar's Automotive Inc., Manet Community Health Center, Richard Malmquist, Quincy Visiting Nurses Association, Rev. Alicia Corea, Eric's Autobody Repair, Paul Graham, Rev. Harry Soper, Rev. Sheldon Bennett, One-Stop-Gas, Faxon House, Rebecca Black-Graham, Rev. Jim Riihimaki, Rev. James Campbell-Young, South Shore Coalition for Human Rights, and Christ Church Episcopal.

Pre-registration is encouraged by today (Thursday), but walk-in registrations will be welcomed on the day of the conference. For more information or to obtain a registration form, call 472-6027.

NATURE WALK was held recently by Squantum School students at Moswetuset Hummock across the street from Beechwood on the Bay in Squantum. The hummock, a formation of rock and marsh left over from melting glaciers centuries ago, is named after the Moswetuset Indians from whom the name of Massachusetts was eventually derived. Checking a pool of water for sea life are, from left, Stephanie Busher, Gina Mazzulli and Kevin Mackey.

Quincy Preschool Programs Receive National Accreditation

The preschool program in the Quincy Public Schools are among the growing number of early childhood programs in the United States to be accredited by the National Academy of Early Childhood programs.

The academy recognizes outstanding early childhood programs which meet national standards of quality. The preschool programs, located at the Snug Harbor and Point-Webster Schools and the Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center, serve children from ages 3 to 6.

"Accreditation helps answer the question, 'What is a quality pre-school program?'" said Dr. Marilyn Smith, executive director of the National Association for the Education of Young Children, the nation's oldest and largest association of early childhood professionals, which sponsors the academy. "Most parents want to find the highest quality program for their young children; however, few parents know how to access whether a program meets more than just the minimum standards required by state licensing.

"Accreditation is not meant to replace parents' on-site visits to centers as a means of selecting the program that best meets their child's needs, but accreditation does help parents recognize the varied components that should be present in a quality program."

To become accredited, Quincy's preschool programs had to meet a variety of strict criteria related to providing a developmentally appropriate program for young children. The criteria range from having a well qualified and trained staff to meeting stringent health and safety standards. In addition, the program must provide opportunities for parental involvement.

Accreditation includes an on-site study of the program by professional validators and a final review by experts in the field of early childhood education. The nationwide accreditation of early childhood programs, such as those in the Quincy schools, benefits parents, children, program personnel, and society.

School Supt. Eugene Creedon and Quincy Public Schools Early Childhood Education Coordinator Nancy Harvey commended the following members of the preschool staff for their assistance in attaining the accreditation and for their ongoing devotion to the education of young children: Veronica Bowler, Kerry Kelly, Helene King, Ann Wetherby, Patricia Hickey, Marla Landis, Karen Kidder, Kathleen Bakis, Joan Filippone, and Emily LaMont.

Creedon also cited the awarding the accreditation status to Quincy's programs as confirmation of the excellence of the city's programs.

Home Buyers Should Understand Bank Loans

By ART FOLEY

There's another whole language to banking today: arms, points, 5-year two step, 15-year jumbo.

As a borrower today, it's hard to decide which bank, which program, when to lock in, how many points to pay. When buying a home, it makes a lot of sense to understand all the complexities of obtaining a loan.

First time buyers would be well served to take an in-depth workshop offered by Quincy Community Action by calling 479-8181. The program takes you through the step-by-step process of making the most important purchase of your life.

ART FOLEY

Aside from all the complexities and changes in banking, there have been some major changes on the Quincy banking landscape. The number of old local banks is quickly shrinking. Boston Five and Quincy Savings are now Citizens, Bank of New England is now Fleet, South Shore is now Bank of Boston. Remember 1st American on Granite St.? It became Boston Five and subsequently Citizens.

Naturally, there's apprehension on the part of a lot of people concerned about the lack of the personal, face-to-face contact they had originally with the local banks. One great organization that I had the pleasure to be associated with is Quincy Neighborhood Housing. This private-public partnership is historically one of the most productive, successful programs ever. Naturally, since their operating budget is largely supported by the local banking community, they were concerned about this future support.

Happily, most of the new banks--Citizens, Bank of Boston (along with longtime supporter The Cooperative Bank), newcomers South Boston and State Street Foundation--continue to support this effective institution, Neighborhood Housing.

So while the banking landscapers may continue to trim the edges and pluck the weeds, hopefully they will remember that you can't continue to take from the community without giving some of it back.

Home Inspection Contingency

Must a seller allow a potential buyer to have a home inspection?

The answer is "No," according to the Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors monthly newsletter "Memo" which states:

"Although Massachusetts General Law C, 111, S 197 A (b) (1) requires a seller to allow a buyer a period of at least 10 days in which to conduct a lead paint inspection, a seller is not legally required to allow a buyer to conduct a general home inspection.

"However, it is generally in the seller's best interest to allow a home inspection in order to avoid a future lawsuit."

QHS ESL Students Create Quadri-Lingual Health Care Booklet

Quincy High School English-as-a-Second Language (ESL) students, under the guidance of ESL teacher Helen Flaherty, recently completed a Community Service Learning Project in conjunction with the Asian American Service Association headed by Rev. Richard Law.

They created a Quadri-Lingual Health Care Booklet (English, Chinese, Vietnamese, Spanish) to aid health care agencies with communication needs of new immigrants.

The booklet originated with a request to the Asian American Service Association from a local nursing home.

Funding for the project was provided by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, Lincoln-Filene Center, Tufts University partnership with Quincy High School and by the Aid Association for Lutherans.

Community Service Learning is a partnership between the schools and social service agencies enabling students to learn academic skills while providing service to their community.

Michael Larkin Candidate For Ward 4 Councillor

Michael Larkin of 89 Alrick Rd., plans to announce his candidacy for Ward 4 city councillor tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Hollow Restaurant on Adams St.

Larkin, 50, is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts, Boston, where he earned a bachelor of arts degree in human services at the College of Community and Public Services. He has worked for the Massachusetts Department of Youth Services for six years as a juvenile parole caseworker.

Larkin has been involved in local, city and state politics for many years, but not as a candidate. This will be Larkin's first run for elected office.

MICHAEL LARKIN

While going door-to-door, collecting more than 500 nomination paper signatures, Larkin said his awareness that residents of Ward 4 want a change in the way that their neighborhood is represented in government, was reinforced.

"My neighbors made it very clear that they want to be better informed about business at City Hall," he said. "They want a say in plans and decisions that will directly affect them."

Larkin said his candidacy will strive to bring the concerns of Ward 4 residents to the forefront of the campaign.

"My goal is to be strong, concerned voice for the neighborhoods of Ward 4. By making issue of the desires, goals and concerns of my neighbors, I plan to open the lines of communication between Ward 4 residents and City Hall," he added.

Larkin said he will detail his campaign platform and plan of action while officially announcing his candidacy for Ward 4 city councillor tonight at the Hollow. He invites all Ward 4 residents to attend the announcement.

Dental Dialogue

DENTAL SLEUTH NEEDS X-RAYS

Q: I go to the dentist every six months to have my teeth cleaned and X-rayed. Why does the dentist X-ray my teeth so often, and is it harmful?

A: X-rays are invaluable in detecting dental problems not visible to the naked eye. They are one of the dentist's most useful diagnostic aids. Probably the most common problem they can help find is early decay, but it is by no means the only one. X-rays can also detect diseases of the gum, as well as certain kinds of bone cancer-problems that can arise suddenly, and which often are symptomless until well advanced. With modern methods and safeguards there is no reason for you to be concerned about periodic X-rays. As Sherlock Holmes would say, "Elementary, my dear Watson!"

Durkin Voices Support Of Public Works Project

Stephen Durkin, candidate for Ward 5 city councillor, addressed Wollaston residents at a recent coffee house and voiced support for a proposed public works project designed to alleviate chronic flooding conditions in the Wollaston area.

"Wollaston residents who live in close proximity to the beach, on Watkins Street, Sachem Street, Cleaves Street, the Strand and neighboring streets have endured flooding problems for years, and I think it's about time the city addressed this problem."

Durkin noted that the proposed project, currently in the planning stage, will likely include regrading and drainage work and rerouting of the sewer system with new sewer connections. He said the project would likely be funded primarily through bonding and that it would get underway next year.

"Hopefully, residents who live in this area can look forward to finally having this problem resolved, and I support this project 100 percent," Durkin said.

Committee Approves 'Pooper Scooper' Law

A proposed "pooper scooper" law has been approved by the City Council Ordinance Committee.

The committee voted 6-1 Monday night to approve the law. Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill voted against the proposal, saying that it would be almost impossible to enforce such an ordinance. Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro and Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien did not attend Monday night's meeting.

The council plans to take a final vote on the matter next week.

The law would require dog and cat owners to pick up their pets' droppings on streets, sidewalks, parks, beaches and other public places in the city. Violators would receive a warning for a first offense, a $20 fine for the second within a calendar year, $25 for the third, and $50 for subsequent offenses.

Mayor James Sheets proposed the ordinance last month as a way to make Wollaston Beach clean enough for swimming and to beautify city parks now covered with dog droppings.

Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton has said recent tests show that storm water runoff is contaminated with high levels of fecal material, most likely from animal waste, even before it reaches storm drains. The runoff is so polluted that it could be responsible for one in three rain-related beach closings every summer, he added.

Colton said it could also explain why Wollaston Beach has remained polluted despite the fact that Quincy Bay has been getting cleaner since the Boston Harbor Cleanup started, and added that a "pooper scooper" law is less expensive than treating the storm runoff, which would cause tens of millions of dollars.

Increases In Most City Permit Fees Approved

The City Council Ordinance Committee Monday night approved the increase of fees for most city permits.

The committee approved increases in the fees charged building, gas, health, plumbing and wiring departments for various services as well as food related permits. Michael McFarland, executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets said many fees had not gone up since 1978 and the new figures are more comparable with what other local communities charge.

However, councillors put on hold indefinitely Sheets' plan to increase the minimum parking ticket from $5 to $15, saying such a raise is unwarranted.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers lobbied for an increase in the fine for illegal parking in a handicapped spot from $50 to $100. While that suggestion received some support, it was eventually held with the rest of the parking increases.

The council must still take a final vote on the fees and will likely do so at its meeting next week.

Copley Lecture At Adams Site

The Adams National Historic Site will host a lecture on John Singleton Copley, one of the most famous painters of the 18th Century, Wednesday, June 21 from 10 to 11:30 a.m. at the National Park Service Visitor Center, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The lecture will be presented by Rosemary S. Cancian of the Cape Cod Museum of Fine Arts and Sandwich Glass Museum, a distinguished lecturer in the field of American decorative arts and paintings.

The free lecture is open to the public. Validated parking will be available.

Chretien Urges Residents To Recycle

Ward 3 City Councillor Lawrence Chretien has urged Quincy residents to begin recycling as many materials as possible, saying now is the best time to do so.

Chretien, chairperson of the Quincy Recycling Committee, made his comments while speaking on the status of the city's recycling and composting programs at Tuesday night's meeting of the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association.

Chretien, a candidate for councillor-at-large, explained to those in attendance that there is no better time than the present for residents to recycle.

"When we started the program in 1989, the city was paying about $90 per ton to dispose of our trash," he said. "But once communities started to recycle and compost, that cost fell dramatically--primarily because landfill and incinerator owners had competition for the first time ever. Since recycling and composting costs a lot less than disposal, we were able to save hundreds of thousands of dollars per year."

Chretien added, "Today the situation is a bit different. Because of recycling and composting, landfill owners are not able to charge as much for disposal. We now pay BFI (Browning-Ferris Industries) $47.50 to dispose of our trash in the East Bridgewater landfill. So, we have saved an enormous amount of money on disposal.

"We are required by the state Department of Environmental Protection to "cap" our old landfill on Ricciuti Drive. This coming year, we will save $125,000 on the cost of capping because we will use compost we have as a result of the leaf collection program.

"So, we have been getting a two-for-one deal with leaf composting. First, we save $47.50 on the disposal. Second, we save on the cost of capping the landfill."

Chretien concluded by saying, "The contract we have with BFI for recycling says they must share the revenue they get from selling recyclable materials. Fortunately, the market for recycled paper has been booming! As a result, in the last few months alone, BFI has paid us $86,000 for the value of our paper.

"Again, we have a two-for-one deal. We have $47.50 on the cost of disposal and then we make money on the sale of recycled paper, glass, plastic and metal. More than ever, now is the time to recycle."

For more information about the city's recycling and composting programs, call 770-BINS.

Morrisette Opens With 3 Wins

After being rained out of its first two games, the Morrisette Legion baseball team opened its 51st season with a 9-1 win at Randolph.

Ace Tom Malvesti went six innings and did not allow a run as he struckout eight, walked two and gave up three hits.

Joe McCarthy took the mound in the seventh, giving up an unearned run on an infield error, two walks and a wild pitch.

Chris Cotter drew a bases-loaded walk to drive in the first run in the second inning. An RBI single by Jim Sapienza in the fifth scored what proved to be the game-winning run.

Morrisette broke the game open in the sixth with six runs. They capitalized on four Randolph errors and sent nine men to the plate. Featured in the barrage were a perfectly-executed squeeze play by Cotter which scored Mike Sheffer and a two-run homer by Sapienza to deep center.

Also recording hits were Tim Zaniboni (double), Brian Beaton, Mike Santoro, Joey Biagini, Mike Sheffer, Jeff Russell and Cotter.

Morrisette began the season with five players still involved in high school tournaments and unavailable for Legion play. Four are with BC High and one is with Archbishop Williams.

Morrisette took both games of a double-header with Quincy on Sunday, 13-2 and 13-5.

Jeff Russell picked up the win in the first game as he went six innings, allowed one earned run and fanned three.

Steve Roberts suffered the loss.

Morrisette got three hits from Sapienza, including a triple and an RBI. Joe Biagini pounded two hits with a triple and two RBI. Jeff Marnikovic rounded out a trio of three-baggers.

Mike Kenney stroked a pinch-hit single to drive in two.

Quincy's Brendan Ridge had two hits and an RBI while Dan Donahue clubbed three singles. Steve Koch hit a double.

Kenney picked up the win in the second game. He struck out eight in five innings.

Sapienza had another strong game at the plate as he tripled and drove in three runs. Zaniboni hit a run-producing double. McGann's single drove in two, and Malvesti was on base four times with a single and a walk and was twice hit by a pitch.

Ridge nailed four hits for Quincy, including a triple and an RBI, as he closed the double-header with six hits. Jesse Casler had a single and a triple, driving in three.

QUINCY QUINTET - The Suffolk University baseball team enjoyed their finest season ever, thanks to the work of five Quincy residents. Standing, from left, catcher Mark Kelleher, who batted .323.; Steve Loud, who recorded a 5-1 record pitching and hit .295 as an outfielder; and Scott Dunn, an All-New England pitcher who posted a 9-2 record. Kneeling are pitcher Dan Burke, left, who worked seven games in relief, and first baseman Mark Swirbalus, who batted . 378. The Rams went 26-11 and advanced to the finals of the Eastern College Athletic Conference finals.

Babe Ruth

Elks Undefeated In Quest For Title

The Elks continue to march through the schedule on their quest for a second consecutive Babe Ruth League title.

The Elks doused Fire Dept., 8-1.

Jackie Daly posted the win with five innings of work. he fanned six and allowed two hits. Chris Bregoli walked in the only run in relief, but struck out six in two innings. Kevin Shaw went 2 for 3 with an RBI, but had his biggest impact from behind the plate as the threw out three runners. Scott Staiti and Matt McLoughlin recorded two hits each.

In his first outing of the season, the Elks' Rusty Corner went the distance and outdueled Local's hard-throwing Steve Maze, 3-2.

Corner posted nine K's, before tiring in the seventh and giving up both Local runs.

Maze gave up just three hits, but struggled in the first inning as the Elks scored all three of their runs. Maze also clubbed two hits off Corner.

Corner, Staiti and Bregoli cracked the Elks' hits.

Kevin Cellucci and Matt Norton had strong weeks as they led Bryan Post to two wins.

In a 5-2 victory over Sons of Italy, Cellucci's double in the fifth helped break open a 2-2 tie.

Other key hits were recorded by Steve Wiltshire, Shawn Manning and Matt McCann. Bryan Post scored their first run thanks to the fine base-running of John Cooper and Brian Gates.

Under 12 Boys Win Title, Other Teams Close Season

The Quincy boys Under 12 Div. 1 travel team captured the South Shore Soccer League title with a 3-0 win over Weymouth on Saturday.

Scoring the first goal - the only one Quincy would need thanks to rock-solid defense - was scored by Michael Roach after taking a terrific pass from Chris Wilson.

Chris Roach netted the second goal when he fired a bullet from 40-feet that went just under the crossbar. The goalie never had a chance.

Michael Campanale blasted in the third goal, beating the netminder to the right, after a perfect pass from midfielder Matt Joyce.

Ryan Graeber was outstanding between the pipes, making a number of key stops that held Weymouth scoreless. His aggressive netminding philosophy was in evidence as he came out several times to cover up loose balls.

The defense of Steven Marinilli, Shaun Jafarzadeh and Dan Cabral swarmed the Weymouth attackers, giving them little time to set up in the Quincy zone.

Quincy, which is undefeated at 9-0, will play in the Bridgewater Challenge Cup this weekend and will represent the South Shore Soccer League at the state tournament at Fort Devens on June 24 and 25.

GETTING STARTED

Think you have a tough time getting started in the morning? Here is what you car's engine goes through: According to estimates, 90 to 95 percent of an engine's mechanical wear occurs during the first ten seconds of running. Why? Depending upon conditions, it takes several seconds for the oil pump to produce a normal flow of oil throughout the engine. Until then, some of the components inside the engine operate with direct metal-to-metal contact, which serves to wear them down. To make matters worse, the engine does not completely burn fuel during warm-up, which allows unburned residues to mix with oil to create harmful acids. Help your engine by keeping ignition and starting systems in good condition to assure quick starts, and use a grade of oil that is season appropriate.

HINT: Moving an engine from cold start to street subjects it to the equivalent of 500 miles of highway driving wear.

LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO should be your full service auto care center for most every system in your car. Whether you need regular maintenance such as oil change or suspect a problem with your brakes, our service technicians have the skills to handle it. You'll find us located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree, (843-1550). Hours: Mon-Fri 6am-9pm, Sat 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Happy Father's Day to All Dads!

Matt Holt pitched well in a relief effort for South Shore Buick. He also cracked a long double. John Fidalgo hit a double and made a diving catch in center field. Ryan Casey slapped an RBI single, while Joe Holleran and Joe Cox were steady defensively.

Burke's Craig Royce crushed a triple which was one of the hardest-hit balls by a Burke player this season. Ryan Hutchings and Pat Bregoli had two hits each while Dan Duggan roped two RBI.

Hutchings suffered the loss and was victimized by unsteady play in the field.

Keith Doherty fanned 10 batters as he led Kiwanis to an 11-5 win over the Elks.

Dan Kennedy led the winning offense by reaching base safely in all five trips to the plate, including three hits.

Other players with strong offensive efforts were James Mateu, Dan Walker, Mike McCarthy, Greg Shields, Joe Duffy, Eric Ranstrom and John Mateu. Doherty, Walter Perry and Erik Maginnis reached base safely.

Pineo Second In Track All-States

Jen Pineo, who has emerged as an awesome force in the shot put for the North Quincy girls' track & field team, closed out her junior season with a second-place finish in the Mass. All-State championships.

Pineo was narrowly edged in the All-States by Luanna Botelho of Oliver Ames High School. Both throwers warmed up with tosses near the 40-foot line. Pineo held a tenuous lead going into the fifth and next to last round, when Botelho popped off a 39 foot, 8 3/4 inch heave to take the lead and the win.

Coaches Geoff Hennessy and Maureen Roche were pleased with her effort.

"She put the pressure on early with good throws," said Hennessy. "She did what she had to do - she made Botelho earn it."

Pineo had swept into the showdown without losing one meet during the season. Two weeks ago she won the Old Colony League championships with a league-record throw of 39-8.

She followed that with a first-place performance (a 36-11 1/4 throw) in the Eastern Mass. Class B championships which set up the much-anticipated battle against Botelho.

Earlier in the year, Pineo captured first in the South Shore Principals meet at Norwell High School with a throw of 38-4 1/4.

Pineo was not the only Red Raider to make a strong showing during the Old Colony League championships. Phyllis Poon and Suk Ng placed third and fourth, respectively, in the 100-meter hurdles. Poon narrowly edged Ng with a time of 16.8 seconds to 17.0 seconds. The two were also members of the 4x100 relay team which placed third. Casey Ngo and Jasmine Gonzalez were the other members of the unit.

Christy Deptula (101-4) and Erica Crawford (94-9) placed fifth and sixth, respectively, in the javelin.

As for the record-setting Pineo, she hopes to continue her dominance in the shot put next season. Her skills will be honed over the summer as she takes part in the Bay State Games and Junior Olympics and coaches aspiring young record breakers in the Quincy Track Club.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

When is a Father just 'Dad?' H.C. Chatfield answers this question this way: "If he's wealthy and prominent, and you stand in awe of him, call him 'Father.' If he sits in his shirt sleeves and suspenders at ball games and picnics, call him 'Pop.' If he tills the land or labors in overalls, call him 'Pa.' If he wheels the baby carriage and carries bundles meekly, call him 'Papa,' with the accent on the first syllable. If he belongs to a literary circle and writes cultured papers, call him 'Papa,' with the accent on the last syllable. If, however, he makes a pal of you when you're good, and is too wise to let you pull the wool over his loving eyes when you're not; if, moreover, you're sure no one else you know has quite so fine a father, you may call him 'Dad'...

Regardless of what you are called . . . Father . . . Pop . . . Pa . . . Papa . . . or just plain Dad . . . Have a Happy Day!

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Granted a permit to Fort Square United Presbyterian Church, 16 Pleasant St. to hold concerts Sunday, Aug. 6 and Sunday, Aug. 27 from 6:30 to 7:45 p.m. The concerts will be held in front of the church extending to the lawn across from the church.

When asked by board members if there would be a rain date, Rev. Richard F. Brondyke, pastor of the church said although he "operates on faith", he still picked the Sundays following each date as alternate dates.

•Continued until next week a request from Newport Liquors, Inc., at 66-68 Newbury Ave., for an extension of their liquor license from 1770 square feet to 2460 square feet of space.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers requested a vote be postponed a week until he meets with the Atlantic Neighborhood Association Thursday.

Abutter Dr. William Charlotte who lives near the building spoke of visible trash and "jungle like" grounds.

Owner Richard Racette said most of the complaints have been addressed.

•Gave one more week to Leo Martin, owner of a Lodging House on 191 Burgin Pkwy. to either install a sprinkler system or cut back his occupancy from 7 to 5 persons. Martin said he was having trouble finding a place for two tenants to live.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman told Martin that a fire watch be in effect immediately from 8 p.m. to 8 a.m. until Martin abides by the occupancy law.

•Continued to an uncertain date, a hearing regarding a request from Woodbine Garage, 471 Rear Hancock St. for permission to change the location of his automotive repair shop license to 105 Federal Ave. Albert Cline told the board that a new Shaw's Supermarket is proposed for the area.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio said it would be easy to get 50 people who oppose any type automotive business in the area. He said they have already made it clear to him when others have proposed moving their businesses there.

Gorman suggested Cline walk the neighborhood and try to convince them.

•Board gave new owner Tom Westerfield a cease and desist order for operating Tino's Towing at 61 Copeland St. until he receives all necessary approvals and variances.

•A request for a flea market at Marina Bay on weekends was permanently withdrawn from Hassan Haydar. The proposed flea market would be in boat storage building on Victory Road.

•Fabrizio addressed problems regarding a cement company on Liberty St. and the fact the material used was being piled up so high, it was hazardous to children in the area. The board plans to place the matter on next week's agenda.

• Also on next week's agenda is a proposed department store at the old TJ Maxx site on 126 Parking Way called Savers Thrift Department Store. It will sell new and used clothing.

Peter Belsito, representative of the store will present a set of drawings and assured Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue, the company will meet all policies on cleaning the clothes before they are resold.

No New Tax Hike Possible

•The City Council, in an effort to keep property taxes down as much as possible, slashed the mayor's proposed FY96 $136.6 million budget down to about $135.7 last week, the largest such cut in recent memory. The new fiscal year begins July 1.

•The council's Ordinance Committee also voted Monday night to raise most city fees, which the mayor said will be an additional benefit for the taxpayer. The council will likely take a final vote on the matter at its meeting next week.

"This gives us a major opportunity to keep the tax rate down," said Sheets.

Still, the mayor said the city is now in a very stable fiscal condition and he doesn't want to do anything to jeopardize it financially. He added that all city union contracts are up at the end of the month, and the salary increases that result from current negotiations are something that must be considered when the tax rate is set.

"I'm not going to propose no increase in property taxes just for the sake of doing so," said Sheets. "But I'm very optimistic that we can set a tax rate that will be very reasonable.

"My goal is to not have a tax increase. If the numbers allow it, then we won't have a tax increase, and if they don't allow it, then we will. But even at worst, there will only be a smaller tax increase, smaller than the usual 2.5 percent."

Sheets said if there were no tax increase, he believes it would be the first time in the city's history. City Auditor Robert Foy could not be reached for comment.

Last fall, the mayor's "no new taxes" proposal actually called for a one-cent increase in residential property taxes--from $14.57 (per $1,000) the previous year to $14.58--but no increase in the commercial, industrial and personal property (CIPP) rate, which remained at $30.58.

The one-cent residential increase last year resulted in a minimal increase of $3 on the average Quincy homeowners' tax bill. The previous year, the increase was $154.

Commercial property accounts for about 22 percent of the total value of Quincy real estate.

Last year, homeowners ended up paying only about 63 percent of the tax levy, despite the fact that residential property accounts for about 78 percent of the total value of real estate in the city.

Property taxes are the largest single source of revenue for the city's budget. Other sources are local receipts--which include sewer and water bills, excise taxes and other fees--and state aid.

has not made a final decision and reserves the right to change his mind after he receives more information on the matter.

Other councillors, however, favor the bond package. Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, who has worked on the computer network plan and Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro said they plan to support it. Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers said they are leaning in favor.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio could not be reached for comment.

Board Shortens Hours At New Dunkin Donuts

the meeting.

However, a letter from Louise Moline, chairman of the board of trustees of the Quincy Point Congregational Church stated that Mr. Gohl never came to a board meeting to disucuss his concerns.

She said the board was very surprised at Mr. Gohl's letter, and said he was not acting as a respresentative of the board and not presenting their viewpoints.

Abutters to the donut shop who attended the meeting were still expressing concern about traffic and the effect on children in the area attending a nearby day care center. Neighbors of the donut shop suggested a crossing guard, a plan which Police Chief Frank Mullen said he would address this week.

If the traffic plan and the drive-up window do not meet the requirements and the neighbors have reason to complain, the issue of the license will be taken up within six months.

Board chairman Joseph Shea said he wanted to try "to go forward and get the paper work done by next week".

QUINCY-WEYMOUTH CONSORTIUM
SUMMARY OF CONSOLIDATED PLAN FOR HOUSING, HOMELESS AND SPECIAL NEEDS
FY 1995-96 TO FY 1999-2000

For FY 1995-96, the Quincy-Weymouth Consortium is eligible to receive federal funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) as follows: Community Development Block Grant (CDBG)-$2,639,000 for Quincy and $859,000 for Weymouth; HOME $651,000; and Emergency Shelter Grant (ESG)-$90,000.

The Consortium's Consolidated Plan is available for review at the Department of Planning and Community Development (PCD) and Office of Housing Rehabilitation, both at 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy; the Office of Planning and Community Development (OPCD), 75 Middle Street, Weymouth; the Tufts Library, 46 Broad Street, Weymouth; and the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington Street, Quincy. Comments on these plans should be sent to PCD/OPCD on or before June 25, 1995. These plans would be given in a format accessible to persons with disabilities, upon request. A brief summary of the plan follows:

I. CITIZEN PARTICIPATION AND CONSULTATION

The Consortium: a) consulted/met with non-profit and private organizations and public agencies to identify housing and community development needs, strategies and programs; b) participated in needs assessment activities undertaken of other organizations; c) conducted a survey to generate additional needs data; d) issued Request for Proposal (RFP) packages; and e) conducted a windshield survey in CDBG target areas.

The Consortium adopted and implemented a citizen participation plan to encourage local citizen participation, (particularly of low and moderate-income persons, those living in slum and blighted areas, those with disabilities, minorities and non-English speaking residents) in the development of the Consolidated Plan, any substantial amendments, and the performance report. The Consortium held public hearings to obtain citizens' views and proposals for potential activities and projects. Citizens are given a period of thirty (30) days, from May 25-June 25, 1995 to comment on the Consolidated Plan. Citizens will be given reasonable notice and opportunity to comment on any substantial amendment before any amendment is implemented. CDBG, HOME and ESG projects are not expected to cause displacement of persons.

II. HOUSING, HOMELESS, AND SPECIAL NEEDS

General Characteristics -The Consortium is composed of the City of Quincy and the Town of Weymouth. As of 1990, the Consortium had a total population of 139,048 persons. Quincy's population has been relatively stable, although a recent City census shows an increase from 85,000 in 1990 to 87,500 in 1994. Weymouth's population declined by 3% from 55,601 persons in 1980 to 54,063 persons in 1990. The Consortium's demographic characteristics changed dramatically between 1980 and 1990 with the influx of Asian and other minorities.

Affordable Housing - Additional affordable rental units are needed to ease housing cost burdens, particularly for extremely low-income families. Moderate-income families find it difficult to make the jump to ownership, and moderate-income renters are stymied by a decrease in housing subsidies and tight threshold income amounts. Homeowners in most income and demographic categories face significant challenges of maintaining their property, lead-paint abatement and/or energy-efficiency improvements.

Homeless Needs - Significant homelessness exists in the Consortium. A recent survey revealed a total of 142 homeless individuals and 61 homeless families (representing an additional 171 persons). Homelessness and the threat of homelessness are reportedly serious problems among low-income persons. Emergency Shelter continues to be a great need because a fully-developed "continuum of care" does not currently exist in the Consortium. More recovery home beds are needed. Homeless children are also in need of pre-school and after-school care for their safety, education and recreation. Permanent Supportive Housing is also a critical need. Most directly threatened with homelessness are: households with incomes below 50% of median, particularly female-headed; low-income households with severe housing cost burdens; victims of domestic violence; low-income elderly, especially frail elderly; developmentally disabled individuals, persons with mental illness no longer living in group settings; unemployed households who can no longer meet shelter costs; drug/alcohol-addicted individuals; and female-headed households.

Other Special Needs - a) Some 10,420 Consortium residents (7.5% of total population) had either a mobility or self-care limitation as of 1990, 40% of whom are over age 65. The mobility-impaired elderly need additional rental housing and increased support services to maintain their independence. b) Some 1,400 persons (1% of total population) are estimated to be severely mentally ill. Upon discharge, 200 persons (14.6%) of these persons are estimated to be in danger of homelessness. c) About 2.3% (about 166 persons) of the Consortium's population is developmentally disabled. Small permanent group homes are needed, especially for adult children of aging parents. d) About 7,787 people or 5.6% of the Consortium population, is physically disabled. About 18% (1,400 people) need help with activities of daily life. Homes of many handicapped persons are not accessible; e) About 8,590 people have moderate to severe alcohol or other drug addiction. About one-third of those who are treated in residential programs are in need of housing upon discharge. f) As of May 1, 1995, 180 cases of AIDS had been reported within the Consortium. One-third of this number are estimated to be in danger of becoming homeless.

Lead-Based Paint Hazards - About 65.5% of Quincy's housing stock (33,459 housing units built before 1980) is likely to contain lead paint. Some 5,772 units (or 17.33%) are assumed to house children under age seven. Weymouth has a total of 14,219 units with suspected lead paint, consisting of 2,651 rental and 533 owner units occupied by extremely low and low-income households.

Barriers to Affordable Housing - The Consortium communities are densely-developed and high-priced housing sub-markets within the Boston metropolitan area. The lack of sites suitable for development, and the high cost of land and improvements in the area, act as major constraints to affordable housing production. Average single family home price is $150,000 in the Consortium, which is far beyond the means of many low and moderate-income families.

III. FIVE-YEAR STRATEGIC PLAN

The Consortium's priorities are: a) Increase the supply of affordable rental units for low and moderate-income people; b) Continue to support and develop special needs housing and supportive services to help the homeless; c) Continue programs to provide handicapped access and lead paint removal to private and public buildings as appropriate; d) Continue to provide and expand programs for first time homebuyers; e) Continue to apply for and administer Federal and state subsidy rental vouchers and certificates; f) Expand the base of affordable homeownership through development of new housing units where appropriate; g) Continue housing rehabilitation efforts to preserve existing affordable housing; h) Work with Fair Housing Commissions and local housing advocates to educate the public as to the need for all forms of affordable housing.

Affordable Housing - a) offer CDBG and State funded assistance and harness private resources to low/moderate income first-time homebuyers; b) offer rehabilitation grant and below-market loans to loan/moderate income homeowners; c) in the moderate-income category, promote the creation/maintenance of affordable rental housing to help families to save toward the purchase of starter homes, advocate for more rent subsidy programs at the state and federal levels, and support grant applications for transitional housing for the homeless, or residential facilities for special needs populations, supplemented by CDBG or HOME funds, as available; d) provide supportive services such as the Shelter plus Care program.

Homelessness - a) place people into the existing housing stock, through housing search and rental assistance programs for the working homeless; b) for recovering substance abusers and battered women, promote more transitional group facilities to assist with education, job placement, and permanent housing search; c) continue to support the following organizations that assist the homeless and those threatened with homelessness: Quincy Community Action Program; Weymouth Youth & Family Services; Friends of the Homeless; Quincy Interfaith Sheltering; Atlantic House; and Quincy and Weymouth Housing Authorities; d) work with Father Bill's Place to establish additional transitional housing opportunities for families and individuals; e) QISC/QHA to implement the Shelter plus Care and Section VIII homeless voucher program; f) QISC and DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) are interested in providing transitional housing for appropriate clients of their respective shelters.

Other Special Needs - a) strengthen the network of service providers providing child care, elderly services, drug/alcohol rehabilitation, job training and housing for the developmentally disabled, the mentally ill, and people with addictions; c) support appropriately sited projects for special needs; d) help make the homes of handicapped persons more accessible.

Lead-based Paint Hazards - Quincy and Weymouth will continue to implement deleading programs, using state-funded and local programs as appropriate.

Anti-Poverty Strategy - The Consortium will continue to provide technical and financial assistance to community-based, non-profit organizations such as Quincy Community Action Program, and Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services.

Institutional Structure - a) utilize a partnership approach to join local public-sector agencies and departments, non-profit service providers, and other advocacy groups in addressing its affordable housing, homelessness, and special needs; b) PCD/OPCD to administer the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program under the direction of elected officials; c) Quincy PCD as lead agency for the HOME Consortium; d) CHDOs to play significant roles in the acquisition, development, and management of affordable rental housing; e) Planning staff will work closely with affordable housing developers to enhance their capacity; f) the PCD and OPCD to continue to be assisted by local banks and the state first-time homebuyer programs and work with private banks to maximize community lending for both owner and rental housing; g) the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition will manage the Emergency Shelter Grant for Father Bill's Place, with technical and financial services by the Quincy PCD.

Public Housing Resident Initiatives - a) active develop programs to assist residents to become more self-reliant, with a long-term goal of skills development and financial self-sufficiency; b) encourage residents to take part in developing policies and procedures; c) working with the Fair Housing Commission and Town Boards, as well as other government agencies, strive to expand housing options for low and moderate-income families; d) support active tenant associations in both elderly and family buildings which attend Authority board meetings, conduct grievance hearings, produce newsletters and serve as liaison to the supportive services staff.

V. ACTION PLAN: FY1995-1996

Rental Development Program - HOME funds will be spent for CHDOs, for-profit, or non-profit developers, to acquire and rehabilitate existing buildings as affordable housing for extremely low and low-income renters. Single-parent families and homeless families will also be targeted. HOME funds will be used as deferred loans with deed restrictions and with rent and occupancy provisions. HOME and CDBG funds together with private and other programs will be used for rehabilitation cost.

First Time Homebuyer Program - HOME funds will be used for down payment and closing cost assistance. The communities contributes up to 2% for down payment assistance and 1% towards closing costs. Massachusetts Housing Partnership soft second funds are also used to subsidize interest payments for 10 years and provide a loan loss reserve. Deed riders and promissory notes are recorded.

Handicapped Access Program - Grants and low interest loans will be awarded to owner and renter occupied homes and apartments to make them accessible. Many public facilities will be made accessible through CDBG funds. Where possible, financial assistance will be given to other non-homeless special needs housing. The Consortium will support applications to any suitable source for funds to provide more special needs housing with appropriate supportive services.

Emergency Shelter Grant - The ESG program will support the area's largest homeless shelter, Father Bill's Place.

Shelter Plus Care/Section 8 - If this program is awarded, it will provide project-based Section 8 rent subsidies and supportive services to homeless individuals.

Homeowner Rehabilitation - This program will supply grants or low interest loans to rehabilitate the homes of households with incomes below 80% of MFI. The program also provides lead paint removal to both owner and renter-occupied buildings.

Homeless and Other Special Needs Activities - a) work with the existing providers in the area; b) extremely low and low-income renters will be a priority target for rental housing assistance and support services; c) support the goal of finding permanent housing and independent living for members of the homeless community; d) support other programs such as housing rehab loan programs, weatherization and heating system grants by QCAP, as well as lead paint abatement.

Other Actions - Quincy and Weymouth are also active participants in the MHFA Get the Lead Out lead paint abatement program.

QUINCY RECYCLING PROGRAM PAYS OFF

Quincy's recycling and leaf composting programs are great for several reasons.

First of all , recycling and composting preserve precious natural resources.

Second, several recyclable items and leaves are now BANNED by state law from Massachusetts landfills and incinerators.

Third, every ton we recycle and compost saves the city $47.50! That's how much the city pays Browning-Ferris Industries (B.F.I.) for trash disposal.

Fourth, the leaves we have been composting are being used to cover the city's old landfill. THIS YEAR ALONE we will save $125,000 because we won't have to buy as much loam.

Fifth, the city's contract with B.F.I. requires B.F.I. to share with us the revenue they receive from the sale of recycled items. In just the last three months alone, Quincy has earned $86,000! This is because the value of recycled paper is currently very high.

To take advantage of all these benefits, Quincy residents are STRONGLY encouraged to participate in the city's recycling program. Please do what you can for the environment and to save Quincy a great amount of money. For more information about the Quincy recycling program, please call 770-BINS.

Council Endorses Flag Amendment

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The City Council, for the second time, has voiced its support of a proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution that would prohibit the burning or physical desecration of the nation's flag.

The council voted 7-1 Monday night to pass a resolution urging lawmakers to support the amendment, which would give Congress and individual states the right to make desecrating the flag a crime.

The council passed a similar resolution in 1990.

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien was the only council member to vote against the resolution. Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, co-sponsor of the resolution, suffered a mild seizure last week and is resting in Florida with his wife, Betty.

Two others sponsored the resolution: Council President Michael Cheney and Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson.

Quincy Housing Authority Executive Director John "Jake" Comer, former national commander of the American Legion, spoke in favor of the proposed amendment, saying all U.S. citizens should be given a voice on the matter.

"Let's bring it back to the people," said Comer. "The people want to be heard."

Comer also called a recent Patriot Ledger editorial on the subject "a slap in the face" to flag supporters.

But Chretien, who also opposed the 1990 council resolution, said he did not see the reason for the proposed amendment, saying that flag-burning is not a major problem in this country.

"Anyone who burns a flag is an idiot, but I'm not sure why we need an amendment," he said.

Chretien said his reason for opposing the resolution is three-fold: the flag represents democracy and freedom of speech, it is more suitably honored on Flag Day and at other patriotic events, and he feels that the amendment is an attempt by Washington officials "to take the heat off themselves for cutting veterans' programs."

The U.S. Supreme Court in 1989 ruled that flag-burning is a protected form of free speech.

Other councillors, though, said free speech is not the issue and that the resolution merely shows support for the flag.

"It's an easy vote for me," said Cheney. "Many veterans in this city and this country all fought under the American flag."

"We've tread upon and trashed a lot of our symbols in this country.

Mullen Cool To Keno In Variety Stores

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Police Chief Francis Mullen told the Quincy License Board at Tuesday's meeting that it was time he "made a statement" about the Keno operation in the City of Quincy.

Saying he was more than "concerned" because in addition to Keno sending the "wrong message to children watching adults play the game," Keno has changed the "whole atmosphere of a variety store" as we knew it.

He said the operation of Keno in these small convenience stores has people watching the Keno screen for hours instead of buying food and then leaving the establishment.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said variety stores were originally designed to pick up last minute items sometimes forgotten in the supermarket and that the small stores should "not be in the gambling business."

Mullen said although Keno was initially put in small stores by legislation by the State, he suggested that the City of Quincy "come back to home rule".

Chairman Joseph Shea noted that although the board has "no control" over people going to the corner stores, he nonetheless said a letter to State Treasurer Joseph Malone would be sent immediately.

Mullen also addressed the issue of booze cruises and proposed that the Quincy Police Department and liquor inspector must be notified in advance of sailing dates and time of departure and arrival.

Mullen said this will safe guard safety on city streets by monitoring the condition of persons exiting the ship.

Mullen said "it's great to have a good time, but everybody is on notice to be responsible". He suggested writing a letter to the dockmaster and boat captains..

George O'Malley of Coastal Partners at Marina Bay assured Mullen and the board that he would notify them on a weekly basis regarding the schedule of the cruises, and also meet with the dockmaster and boat captains.

Ayers To Hold Neighborhood Meeting In Squantum June 29

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers announces he will conduct a neighborhood meeting Thursday, June 29 at 7:30 p.m. at the Robert I. Nickerson Post on Moon Island Rd., Squantum.

Ayers said the meeting will give residents the opportunity to hear the applicant's plans and to discuss the proposal coming before the Zoning Board of Appeals to construct a two-story wood frame building at 2-4 Newland St., Squantum. The primary tenant would be David Barron, D.D.

"It has been my practice to inform residents as to matters of interest before they come before the Zoning Board of Appeals," Ayers said.

Junk Yard Owes City $219,476,25 In Taxes

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

City Treasurer Dana Childs told the Quincy License board at Tuesday's meeting that the owners of a business on 175 Intervale St., owe the City of Quincy $219,476.25 in back taxes and that the city will take the owners to land court for foreclosure.

Childs said the owner Henry Gregoire owns two parcels of land. In one parcel, taxes have not been paid since the 1977 and on the other parcel not since 1988.

According to Childs, the city could not issue a citation until a law which had put the city in the position of cleaning up hazardous waste was eliminated. The law was in accordance with the Environmental Law. under Chapter 252.

Childs said the law now exempts the city and towns of clean up costs and so action can now be taken.

Gregoire was represented by Atty. Lewis Whitman who said some of the other problems were being addressed and that there was still a lot of "stuff" around the area that had to be cleaned.

License Board chairman Joseph Shea said he would send another copy of the junk yard ordinance" to the owner and said to say we are "upset" about the conditions and the taxes is putting it mildly and said he expects to "keep the heat on".

David Gregoire the owner's son said he hoped to have the area fully cleaned by July 6.

Shea said the matter will be taken up the next time the board meets on the July 18.

Quincy Center Beer And Wine License Denied

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License voted 4-0 Tuesday against giving a wine and malt beverage license to Yolanda K. Vu from D & C Quincy Market, 33 Washington St.

Board member Matthias Mulvey did not attend the meeting.

Quincy High School Principal Lloyd Hill said he strongly opposed the issuance of the license because of the "close proximity to the school" and the store being in a commuter path for those getting off the at the local MBTA station and going to school.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson voiced his opposition, saying it showed "good common sense to deny the license." Kolson said although the store is not in his area, the influence on students at Quincy High School affects everyone.

Also speaking in opposition was City Council President Michael Cheney who said he does not believe it is a "proper location" for such as business.

City Clerk Joseph Shea, the License Board chairman, read a letter from United First Parish Church opposing the license because it is across the street from the store. Shea added the problem was "location, location, location."

We Apologize For Late Delivery

A number of readers who receive their Quincy Sun by mail on Thursdays got them late last week.

The problem was that a mail bag of Suns inadvertently got shipped to the Boston Post Office from the Quincy Post Office. This caused the delivery delay.

Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth and William O'Malley, Manager of Customer Services at the Quincy Post Office, extended apologies for the inconvenience and said steps would be taken to keep it from happening again.

and that's (supporting the proposed amendment) the least we can do," said Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill, who added that passage of the resolution "shows our enemies what we stand for" and that people who burn the flag should be put in jail.

"There's certain things in this country we ought to hold in high esteem," added Councillor-at-Large Joseph LaRaia.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan said the issue is not about flag burning as much as giving the people a voice to do something about it.

"We're supporting the right of the people to vote," he said.

Cheney, who is acting mayor while Mayor James Sheets is out of town, signed the resolution Tuesday. He noted that he planned to send copies to the city's State House delegation, U.S. senators and congressmen, and President Bill Clinton.

Cheney also authorized Comer to travel to the nation's capital next week to support the proposed amendment on behalf of the city. Comer will lobby for the amendment as a representative of Citizens' Flag Alliance Inc.

Several local trade unions have expressed their support for the proposed amendment and Comer's and other city officials' actions on behalf of it.

City Summer Jobs May Be By Lottery Next Year

Summer jobs provided to high school and college students or recent graduates by the city may be provided through a lottery system beginning next year.

The City Council unanimously passed a resolution in support of the concept Monday night.

Council President Michael Cheney, who introduced the resolution, said there were over 800 applicants this year for about 80 jobs. He added that many hard-working young people are unable to find summer employment because they do not receive recommendations from local officials.

"I've submitted many names for summer jobs," he said. "Those who don't know someone often are left out, and that's not fair. The summer job programs have never been coordinated to give everyone a fair shake."

In addition to conducting a lottery to determine who gets the jobs, Cheney said he would like to see the job programs extended to private industry to create a "summertime job pool" that would provide local businesses with "hundreds of able-bodied young men and women."

Cheney said since this year's summer jobs have already been taken, the city will be unable to begin any lottery system until next year. He added that he hopes to have the council discuss the matter at length in the fall.

At least two solar eclipses and as many as three lunar eclipses may be seen each year from various places on the earth.

THE LOWDOWN ON "GOOD CHOLESTEROL"

One of the first challenges for a heart attack survivor is often the doctor's order to lower the blood cholesterol level. A high cholesterol reading has long been recognized as a major risk factor for having another heart attack. However, researchers at the John Hopkins Medical Institutions have found another, perhaps more accurate predictor of heart problems: The high-density lipoprotein (HDL) level. HDL is sometimes called the "good cholesterol," and if there isn't enough of it in the blood - even if the overall cholesterol reading is fine - the patient is highly likely to experience further heart problems. HDL levels can be raised by weight loss, exercise, medication, and stopping smoking.

P.S. HDL levels can vary, so it is important to be tested more than once to get an accurate result.

Good health starts with eating the right foods and getting enough exercise. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, we focus on prevention as well as treatment. We specialize in treating heart problems, hypertension and cholesterol. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Hours by appointment. We are conveniently located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli with questions at 472-2550. Convenient parking. We're here to serve you!

Old Glory Deserves Better

Old Glory deserves better.

Protesters, for six years now, have had the right to burn and abuse the American flag as an expression of freedom of speech.

They were given that right by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1989 on a whisker-close 5-4 vote ruling that a Texas law against flag burning violated the First Amendment's guarantee of freedom of speech and expression.

The case involved a protester who tore an American flag down from a building and burned it in the street.

By a single vote, protesters and/or abusers actually got more than just the right to burn the flag. They can now do almost anything they want to do to it. If they get tired of burning it, they can spit on it, stomp on it, rip it to shreds, wrap garbage in it or wear a version of it on the seat of their pants.

It may be a right, but it just doesn't seem right.

We have come a long way—in the wrong direction, I think—since the days when Americans wouldn't let their flag even touch the ground out of respect.

A rebirth of respect, however, may be on the way.

A move to restore that respect through a Constitutional amendment is gathering momentum.

The amendment, proposed by The Citizens Flag Alliance, would give Congress and the states the "power to prohibit the physical desecration of the flag of the United States."

The Alliance numbers approximately 100 organizations representing over 27 million members including the American Legion, AMVETS, Elks, Congressional Medal of Honor Society, Marine Corps League, Veterans of the Vietnam War, Gold Star Wives, and other veterans, fraternal and law enforcement groups.

Amendment opponents, of course, are out there with the expected objections: if you take away the right to burn the flag then you are risking losing other freedoms such as religion and the right to assembly and leaving the door open for imposing other restrictions on freedom of speech, expression, and other liberties.

As a long-time newspaperman, I certainly don't want to see censorship or to lose the right to stand up and speak out on issues or the right to criticize the government and elected officials.

But I don't see giving our flag the respect it deserves as a threat to freedom of speech, expression and those other liberties.

It just pains me to see someone thumbing his nose at our flag with the legal excuse that, hey pal, that's freedom of expression.

With freedom of speech and expression should come responsibility. You shouldn't have the right to go running up the aisle of a movie theater or through the lobby of a hotel yelling "Fire!" for the hell of it. Or sticking your head in a bank and yelling "Holdup!" Or standing on Hancock St. and yelling obscenities across the street.

John Adams, Samuel Adams and James Bowdoin couldn't have had flag burning in mind when here in Quincy they wrote the Massachusetts Constitution which became the model for the U.S. Constitution.

Opponents to the flag amendment might argue that we shouldn't be monkeying with the Constitution. Well, Constitutional amendments are nothing new. There have been something like 26 of them.

They might also contend that although burning the flag is a repugnant act, it really doesn't threaten our democracy.

Really?

If they can burn the flag and get away with it what else will they soon be able to do and get away with.

Do you really think we would perish as a democracy if people no longer had the right to put a match to Old Glory?

If destroying a mail box is a federal offense, destroying the American flag should be, too.,

I can't help wondering about people who burn the flag. Are they incapable of expressing themselves in words instead? Do they like the attention? Does it make them feel important?

And I have a feeling that if some of them had to live under the flag of some other country for awhile, they would be mighty glad to come back and give Old Glory a salute.

Health Dept. Water Sampling Begins June 27

The Quincy Health Department will begin its summer water sampling program Tuesday, June 27.

Water samples will be collected every Tuesday until Sept. 5 at 10 beaches, one to two hours before high tide. (Due to the July 4 holiday, that weeks' sample will be collected Monday, July 3.)

The results will be analyzed for fecal coliform counts by a certified private laboratory, and will be made available to the media throughout the summer months.

The Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) will collect and analyze water samples at four locations along Wollaston Beach. The samples will be obtained each Wednesday, and will be reported to beach managers and the Quincy Health Department by Friday of each week.

Quincy will utilize a standard of 200 or greater fecal coliform colonies as an indication of potential health risk. Beaches with counts of 200 or greater will be resampled and posted with signs which read: "Warning: Beach Unacceptable For Swimming, per order of Quincy Health Dept."

Such beaches are considered unsafe for swimming and the signs will remain in place until water samples show fecal coliform counts below 200.

If a period of rainfall has occurred after the water samples were taken on Tuesdays, it is important that people understand that such samples may not represent an accurate reflection of the water quality which will be reported on Fridays. Sewerage can be discharged into the harbor from pipes and drains that contain overflow wastewater in combination with rainwater after 1/4 of an inch of rainfall or greater occurs in a given day. Residents are encouraged to refrain from swimming or bathing for a period of 48 hours after a rainfall to allow for the natural flushing action of the tides to dilute and cleanse the water.

The city has been involved in a Bathing Water Quality Improvement Program over the past several years. The program involved the detection and repair of problems within those sewer and storm drain pipes which adversely affected Quincy Bay.

The program, administrated by the City's Department of Public Works, continues today with ongoing, routine maintenance practices such as street sweeping, drain cleaning and tide gate inspections.

Brochures on the Bathing Beach Water Sampling Program are available at the Quincy Health Department, 1120 Hancock St. For more information, call 376-1278.

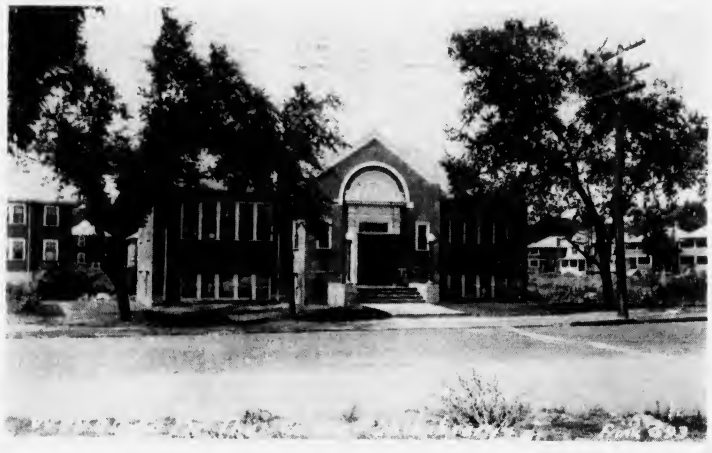
Scenes From Yesterday



THIS OLD POSTCARD dated 1925 shows the new Wollaston branch of the Thomas Crane Library on the corner of Beale and Chapman Sts. Located on the old Farrington estate you can see in the background that most of the newly divided lots in this area were being built with multi-family houses. The corner of Greenwood Ave. on the left was soon improved with a large brick building, now the home of Century 21 Annex Realty. Chapman St., which today is on the immediate right of the library had not yet been cut through to Woodbine. The Beale Street Fish Market is now across the corner. The large spruce tree which blocks most of this view on the right today was not even a seedling when this picture was taken.

A Tribute To Frank Osborne

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I attended a Morrisette Legion baseball game Sunday evening and I couldn't help but feel a deep void and an emptiness in me as I entered Adams Field and did not physically see Frank Osborne with his scorebook giving the Morrisette team line-up to the opposing team.

I had a very sad feeling and I'm sure others felt the same, but I know his spirit is with the squad.

I don't think the general public realizes what a tremendous loss there is to the youth of Quincy with the passing of Frank Osborne. I know of no other person who dedicated himself or gave his services to the young people of the city more than Frank Osborne.

When Quincy Little League baseball started in the city, Frank Osborne was one of the first to volunteer as coach of the Quincy Elks, a position he held for the next 10 years. As a member of the Quincy Lodge of Elks, he was also involved in all youth programs sponsored by the fraternity. He later coached in the Quincy Babe Ruth League for several years before going with the Morrisette Legion baseball team at the strong request of Manager Nick Malvesti. Frank served for 40 years as athletic officer and official score keeper for Morrisette until his death.

Frank did not limit himself to baseball, however. He became involved in the Quincy High School Football Father's Club, which raised money to assist the football program. There he served for 20 years, most of those years as treasurer of the club. He was known as "Mr. O" by the young people in the city and would always acknowledge the name with a big smile. He always remembered and loved to hear from the former players.

This I certainly can attest to for my son, Robert Pettinelli, who played for Morrisette in the early 70s. Robert held Frank Osborne in high esteem and great respect According to Buddy Page, a close friend and fellow officer of the Father's Club, Frank loved every minute of the love and respect he received from the kids, which was certainly well-deserved.

Frank was always ready and willing to give assistance in any type of program that would benefit the young people. He was a dedicated, honorable, sincere, caring person in his way of life, no matter what endeavors or challenges he undertook.

Frank Osborne was a loving and caring family man, married to wife Ellie for over 50 years, daughter Frances, son Billie and four grandchildren, who were very strong supporters of his dedicated services to the youth of the city, always helping in any way possible. Frank received several awards for his many outstanding services and because of Ellie's strong support and help, she has been the recipient of several awards. That was the type of family life the Frank Osborne family adhered to - dedication and giving.

I thank God for men like Frank Osborne, for he was a real role model for anyone to aspire. He will always be in my thoughts, in my heart and in my prayers.

Thank you, Frank, for the wonderful legacy you have left us.

City Wants Broad Meadows Land Returned

June 22 - 28
1958
37 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

Mayor Amelia Della Chiesa and William O'Connell of the Chamber of Commerce called Cong. William Wigglesworth in Washington urging him to expedite action on the Broad Meadows bill.

The Congressman said approval of the transfer of the 11.6 acres of land to the city was unlikely since the General Services Administration was opposing the transfer for the price of $1.

The parcel was transferred to the federal government a few years ago as a spoilage area for the dredging of the Town River.

The city wanted the land back to include it with city-owned land to sell to Mass. Electric for the construction of a multi-million dollar generating plant.

Meanwhile, the Lincoln-Hingham Company made a substantial offer on the land for the construction of a marina.

The fair market value of the land was estimated at $2,500.

JENNESS FIRST TO FILE FOR CONGRESS

Rep. William Jenness was the first candidate to file for the GOP nomination to Congress from the 13th District.

His action came only nine days after Congressman Wigglesworth's surprise announcement of his retirement.

Jenness was the first to file, but the second to announce. Joseph Grossman had already announced. Also considering running were Mayor Della Chiesa, Sen. Charles Hedges and Councillor Thomas Burgin.

Jenness served eight years on the City Council and was in his seventh year in the legislature where he had a perfect roll call record, having answered 2,400 roll calls.

SAND WARNINGS AT WOLLASTON

Mayor Della Chiesa called on Metropolitan District Commission Chairman Charles Greenough to place signs along Wollaston Beach warning motorists of the danger of getting stuck on the loose sand recently spread along the beach in conjunction with shore improvements.

Five cars parked along the beach were stuck in the sand over the past few days.

Tofu Parmesan

How does Tofu Italian sound? How about tofu parmesan? It's delicious for a healthy change.

Tofu is a soybean derivative that can be used in place of meat. And in our family, anything with tomato sauce on it gets raves.

For those on a restricted or meatless diet, it works great. The tofu can be sliced thick, as for a cutlet. It is then layered in the same way as eggplant parmesan.

Tofu Parmesan

1 package herb tofu block style (plain if you can't find herb)

cornflake crumbs (enough for coating)

1 egg and about 3 tablespoons of milk for the batter (or egg substitute) tomato sauce (either home-cooked or store-bought)

1 package shredded cheddar or a favorite cheese grated parmesan or Romano cheese

Cut the tofu in slices about a half-inch thick. Dip in the egg and milk mixture and then the cornflake crumbs. Quickly saute until they are slightly crispy, drain and set aside (or place them on a slightly greased cookie sheet in a 350 degree oven).

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a baking pan, place a little sauce first to line the pan, then place the tofu slices. Add the shredded cheese and sauce , then the grated cheese and layer again until done.

Bake for about 30 minutes until bubbly. Serve with more sauce if preferred and, of course, some more grated cheese.

We all think it tastes as good as eggplant. See what you think!

Mariano, Bellotti Encouraged After Washington, D.C. Trip

Returning from their recent two-day trip to Washington, D.C. as members of the MWRA Caucus, state Reps.. Ronald Mariano and Michael G. Bellotti told The Quincy Sun they were encouraged by what they heard.

The MWRA Caucus, of which Mariano is vice chairman, is a group of legislators who represent cities and towns within the MWRA service area. The legislators have banded together in an effort to lobby the federal government for more support as well as attempting to roll back portions of the Boston Harbor cleanup to bring rate relief to MWRA ratepayers.

On the first day of their trip, the MWRA Caucus met with House Majority Leader Richard Armey (R-Texas) and House Budget Committee Chairman John Kasich (R-Ohio). Mariano said Congressman Kasich left Massachusetts legislators with the impression that continued aid was very possible.

"Congressman Kasich told us that he saw Boston Harbor as a national model, and as such, he would certainly look at the precedents and sees what kind of funding might be available," said Mariano.

On the second day of their trip, Mariano, Bellotti and their fellow caucus members met with Vice President Al Gore and senior Administration officials from the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to further lobby for MWRA rate relief.

Bellotti said the day's meetings had an optimistic tone.

"Like the previous day's meetings with Congress, we were again able to drive home our points," said Bellotti. "Seeking to both save and expand federal financial assistance, we also were successful in getting the Administration to understand that project scale-back approval is warranted."

Mariano and Bellotti went to Washington hoping to get EPA and Congressional support for a new Combined Sewer Overflow (CSO) plan and the elimination of the secondary treatment facility on Deer Island known as "Battery D". Scale-backs of these two projects could shave $1.2 billion off of the multi-billion dollar Boston Harbor clean-up project prize tag.

"Vice President Gore was especially sympathetic to our arguments. He said administration would take a serious look at the new information we provided him, and they would press congressional budget crafters to keep more federal funds flowing", Mariano said.

Specifically, Mariano and Bellotti said they thought the government would approve the new CSO plan for more effectively processing stormaster runoffs that can combine with sanitary wastewater flow to overload the CSO system. During episodes when flows exceed capacity, raw sewage can be diverted directly into nearby rivers and Boston Harbor.

"Prior to 198[illegible] charges would occ[illegible] 80 times a year. Th[illegible] variety of improve[illegible] such discharges happen an average [illegible] to four times a year [illegible] EPA in particular, [illegible] to understand tha[illegible] effort, along wit[illegible] estimates of volum[illegible] new technologies, [illegible] lead the MWRA to c[illegible] CSO upgrades from [illegible] billion to a $370 m[illegible] project," said Bellotti.

Mariano said a simi[illegible] argument was made [illegible] garding Battery D, [illegible] fourth of the four pla[illegible] secondary treatment [illegible] cilities.

"Our studies ind[illegible] that Battery C provide[illegible] more than enough capa[illegible] to treat our wastew[illegible] and that Battery D, a[illegible] cost of $170 million, a[illegible] nothing to cleanliness le[illegible] vels. Again, by stressing [illegible] updated facts with more reliable estimates based on new technologies, I believe we won over several officials," said Mariano.

Earlier in the day, the caucus heard from the Massachusetts Congressional Delegation relative to their combined efforts. Congressmen Joseph Moakley and Joseph Kennedy co-hosted the session which was also attended by U.S. Senators Edward Kennedy and John Kerry and Congressmen Barney Frank, Edward Market, Marty Meehan, John Olver, Peter Torkildsen, Richard Neal and Gerry Studds.

"We came to Washington to make sure Quincy's pleas for equity were being heard. Having met with influential federal policy makers, we know our voices have not only been heard, but our recommendations for rate relief will be addressed," Mariano said.

At DPW Ceremonies

Snug Harbor Community School Wins First Place Service Award

Snug Harbor Community School was the first place winner in this year's Community Service Awards Program as part of National Public Works Week in Quincy.

Snug Harbor received $500 for first place. Other community organizations were also honored at a City Hall ceremony for making significant improvements to public properties within Quincy.

They are:

The Post Island Beach Association and the Ward 4 Community Center which received $250 each for second and third place respectively.

This year, 15 organizations participated in the program.

DPW Commissioner David Colton thanked all participating organizations for displaying interest and pride in their community and for their hard work. "It is organizations such as these that make a city a community," he said.

Award monies are used by their community groups to fund the important activities they sponsor throughout the year.

Locally, the city celebrated National Public Works Week with other observances.

The DPW held an Open House with many demonstrations and exhibits open to the public and visited by more than 500 Quincy school children via field trips. The children enjoyed the behind-the-scenes look at the DPW and received a number of educational handouts to take home.

Exhibits highlighted current public works related technologies and equipment. Computerized drafting systems, recycling facilities, traffic control systems along with displays depicting various projects were displayed.

Entries in the DPW Banner Contest have been displayed on the historical light poles in front of City Hall for the past several weeks. Banners were provided to participating schools and decorated by the children with the theme of what public works means to them.

Awards were funded by Petar's Automotive and Peter Palmer, the shop's owner, was on hand to personally make the presentations to the winners.

This year there was a tie for first place with Atherton Hough School and Bernazzani School sharing top honors. Each school received a check for $250 during ceremonies at the open house.

Also during the open house, the DPW Employee of the Year Award was presented by outgoing recipient Nancy Allen to this year's honoree, William Darrow, a long-time employee in the DPW mechanics shop. Nominations are made and final selection determined by the DPW's management staff.

Darrow was chosen from five nominees. Commissioner Colton made the presentation and congratulated Darrow on a job well done. Other nominees were Henry Barsella, Hugh MacLeod, Primo Capiferri and Kathy Graney.

Ceremonies were capped off with the recognition of Russell Melanson and William O'Connell who were honored for 25 years of service to the city. Both were congratulated and presented with 25-year service pins by Colton.

3rd Annual Event Sunday

All-Star Lineup To Play Blues Festival At Stadium

By LIAM FITZGERALD

For fans of local blues music, it doesn't get much better than the all-star lineup at the third annual City of Presidents' Blues Festival Sunday at Veteran's Memorial Stadium, Hancock St., Quincy.

"There's not another event of this proportion that gives as much entertainment for the money than this does," said concert promoter/producer Joe Hajjar of the Yard Rock Blues Club. "It's packaged and promoted as a family day, with no alcohol involved whatsoever. We want everyone to come out and enjoy the day of music."

Hajjar, a Quincy native who originated the idea for an all-blues festival in Quincy a few years ago, is proud to hold the event in his hometown, though it took many long hours of hard work and dedication to pull it off.

"You have to prove yourself, and we've paid our dues," Hajjar said. "It's been wonderful the last two years, with all the help we have received from the mayor's office and the City of Quincy. The whole city has embraced the event, which is greatly appreciated by all of us who work hard to prepare for the big day."

The concert, hosted by W.C. Handy Award recipient Holly Harris of WBOS radio and musician John Putnam, will begin at noon. Kicking off the day will be the Blues Zooms, the youngest group at the festival. The Zooms, which consist of 8 to 10-year-old Quincy girls, will be backed by their parents' band, Vested Interest.

At 1 p.m., Mayor James Sheets will greet the crowd and Quincy resident Joe Lamporelli will sing the national anthem to kick off the rest of the festival.

Sixteen-year-old blues phenom Monster Mike Welch and his band will perform next, followed by the Susan Tedeschi Band. Clutch Grabwell and the Led Foot Horns then take the stage, with Michelle Willson and Evil Gal to follow.

Steve Murphy and the Yardrockers with John Putnam, Mighty Sam McLain, and Ronnie Earl and the Broadcasters round out the concert list. Special guests Mark Nomad and Bertrand Laurence will play acoustic blues music in between sets to entertain the crowd.

This year, as opposed to the previous two events, will be held on a Sunday, which Hajjar hopes will draw a larger crowd than in the past.

RONNIE EARL

"To me, Sunday is a family day, when the whole family can go out together and enjoy the day," Hajjar said. "It seems more logical to have it on a Sunday, because many people want to relax, sit back and enjoy the concert. We've also moved up the date three weeks, so hopefully it will be cooler, too.

"We'd like to see a good draw - over 3,000 people would be nice. I think we may reach that, since we've received a number of calls from people looking forward to the event, which has not happened in the past."

Before he could move the concert back and have it on a Sunday, Hajjar presented that idea to the mayor's office, which agreed with Hajjar's request.

"I would like to hold the event on the last Sunday in June annually," Hajjar said. "That way, it's easier to book acts and promote the festival way in advance. It also helps with attracting sponsors, since they are aware it is an annual event that delivers the goods."

Among the sponsors Hajjar has acquired are the City of Quincy, Stop 'n' Shop, Harvard Community, South Shore Printing, and Signature Signs.

"When people see that companies like those are standing by me, it solidifies and sanctions the event," Hajjar said. "It's my hope that these sponsors will be around for many years to come, as the festival continue to grow."

How does Hajjar, who owns the Yard Rock Blues Club, located at 132 East Howard St., Quincy, pull off such a massive event?

"Well, we have an immense volunteer staff, with volunteers from the Holy Name Society of St. Joseph's Church, and the Quincy Housing Authority staff, led by my father, Joe," Hajjar said. "Also, my son Joe and daughter Nicole run the field staff of almost 40 volunteer graduates from Quincy High and North Quincy High schools. We also have the Yard Rock crew which runs the stage and does a lot of the hard work."

Hajjar added that a top-of-the-line sound system has been implemented for the event.

"The sound and stage system is first class, by league equipment furnished by ATS," Hajjar said. "Also, Continental Cablevision has been very generous in the past in videotape the festival and show it 30 to 40 times a year."

In addition to the musical performers, there will be a multi-cultural food bazaar, with cuisine from Mexico, the Middle East and Italy.

"Among the restaurants who will be returning for the third year are La Paloma, a Mexican restaurant in North Quincy, D&D Deli, an Italian place in West Quincy, Webster's, a Middle East restaurant in Ward 2, Baskin-Robbins in Quincy Square; Coffee Express on East Howard St., and West End Beverage Company, which is testing out 50 cases of its non-alcoholic beverages at the festival," Hajjar said.

Also participating will be the Quincy Parents' Boosters Club, Caryn's Corner, Infinity Books, and the Yard Rock Shop.

Tickets for the festival are $12 for adults the day of the show, $10 in advance at the Yard Rock Blues Club, 132 East Howard St., Quincy. Tickets for kids under 14 are $2. To charge tickets on Mastercard or Visa, call 337-3989. For more information, call 472 after 2 p.m.

Fans Help Home Owners Beat The Summer Heat

Now that the "dog days" of summer are here, many home owners are relying heavily on the ability of their air conditioners to beat the heat.

But air conditioning isn't the only way to make your home more livable, according to the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors.

Did you know, that a whole house of attic fan can help keep your home quite comfortable at a fraction of the cost of central air conditioning? In fact, attic fans are enjoying a revival as consumers attempt to keep their energy costs down.

How does whole-house ventilation translate into whole-house cooling?

"The first step is to install a large three- or four-bladed fan with a diameter of 20 to 36 inches in the attic floor," James N. Stamos, president of Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors, said. "You'll also want to make certain that this fan is in a central part of the house."

The fan draws air from outside when a few windows are opened on the first and second floors. Whole house fans installed in a hallway ceiling or attic can move 3,000 to 6,000 cubic feet of air per minute. The cooler outside air is drawn up into the attic where it replaces hot attic air which is then pushed through attic vents. For maximum efficiency, fans can be wired to automatically turn off when your air conditioner is in use.

The amount of air coming through the house depends, of course, on the number of open windows. Opening additional windows allows more air through the house. However, if you keep only a few windows open, air will move faster and create a pleasant breeze-like effect.

When having a whole fan installed, be sure to ask two important questions, (1) What fan size should be used? and (2) What type of exhaust ventilation is needed? It is a good idea to work with a local dealer who will be able to advise you on fan size and exhaust ventilation for your home's dimensions.

"Using fans can help you keep cool this summer, especially if the outdoor temperature is under 85 degrees Fahrenheit," Stamos said.

"We've learned to rely on air conditioning both at home and at the office," he added. "We may not have a choice at the office because of all the heat generated by such essentials as computers and the need for a controlled climate. However, for consumers looking to save money on their energy bills at home, a fan may be a pleasant alternative."

But when all else fails, remember that the really hot days can't last forever, and autumn is just around the corner.

The Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors is one of more than 1,800 local boards and associations of Realtors nationwide that comprise the National Association of Realtors. As the nation's largest trade association, NAR is "The Voice for Real Estate," representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Not All Real Estate Agents Are Realtors

Did you know that not all real estate agents are Realtors?

Some people assume that the word "Realtor" is just another word for real estate broker or agent. But, as James N. Stamos, president of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors points out, "that is a false assumption because the term Realtor is a distinction earned only by those real estate brokers and agents who are members of the National Association of Realtors and abide by its strict code of ethics."

Why is a name so important? Most importantly, because the Realtor logo identifies a real estate professional who is closely affiliated with an organization with years of ethical standards, education, research, service and experience. Members of the national, state and local organization display the Realtor identifying mark - the stylized block "R" - or the name Realtor on their signs, advertising and business cards.

Realtors have been working since 1908 to unify and standardize their business practices.

"Our board members feel the consumers should be aware of the distinction between members and nonmembers, allowing them to make a more informed decision when choosing a real estate agent or broker," said Stamos.

Real estate brokers and agents who wish to be Realtors must first be accepted through their local Board of Realtors.

"Before being admitted to membership," Stamos said, "the agent or broker pledges to abide by our nationally recognized code of ethics."

The association's code was recently upheld in a state court of appeals, reaffirming the reasonableness and legality of a local board's enforcement of the code. A recent survey of the association's membership revealed that members overwhelmingly rate the code of ethics as important - 96 percent termed the code of ethics important or very important.

The code demands high professional conduct. It is a three-part document addressing the members' relations with the public, the client and fellow Realtors. The essence of the code is the golden rule, contained in the preamble: "Whatsoever ye would that others should do to you, do ye even so to them."

The code is enforced through professional standards committees which are maintained by local boards.

"These committees are charged with the responsibility of hearing complaints and arbitrating disputes," said Stamos. "The public, a client, or members of the board, can bring complaints before the committee.

"Violation of the code can result in suspension or expulsion from membership whereas a real estate broker or agent who is not a Realtor is governed only by state licensing laws. This additional accountability to the code helps ensure professional and ethical business practices by our members."

Dental Dialogue

TAKES TWO TEETH TO TANGO

Q: I am told that if you can avoid it, you should never loose any teeth in your mouth. Why?

A: The average adult mouth contains 32 teeth, and each tooth plays a very important role. A tooth below needs a tooth above to chew properly, and vice versa. Neighboring teeth provide support for each other, and the contact created helps to prevent food from lodging against the gums. This "teamwork" is so vital that the loss of one tooth can cause the breakdown of the entire mouth. In human relationships it only takes two to tango, but in the case of your mouth, it takes thirty-two.

This column is presented in the interest of better dental health. From the office of:

The National Cancer Institute reports that:
Every year, 434,000 people die of illnesses related to their smoking. But smokers are not the only ones whose health can suffer. Their tobacco smoke in the air is called environmental tobacco smoke (ETS) or secondhand smoke. Breathing it can be a hazard to your health and to the health of your child.
Secondhand smoke contains smaller amounts of the same chemicals that harm smokers. ETS is so harmful that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has classified it as a "Group A" carcinogen. "Group A" carcinogens are the most toxic substances known to cause cancer in humans, also including benzene, radon and asbestos.
The more often you're around secondhand smoke, the greater your risk for health problems. Each year it causes about 3,000 lung cancer deaths in U.S. adults who don't smoke. Secondhand smoke increases the nonsmoker's risk for heart disease and makes worse the symptoms of adults already suffering from asthma, allergies or bronchitis.
Children are usually innocent victims - unable to choose whether or not to be in a smoke-filled environment. Among infants to 18 months of age, secondhand smoke is associated with as many as 300,000 cases of bronchitis and pneumonia each year. It also increases the chances for middle ear problems, causes coughing and wheezing and worsens asthma conditions.
Facts like these show that others people's smoke is more than an annoyance. Secondhand smoke is a serious threat to your good health. (U.S. Dept. of Health & Human Services, June 1993)

Quincy Legion Post established an award to send a candidate to the 1995 Boy State program, June 17-23, at Bentley College, Waltham. Boy State is a week-long study of town, city and state government which is noting the 51st year of the program.

Gunther is involved with class government, baseball and is interested in political science. His brother Mark is a 1988 graduate of the Boy State program.

John Harrington, Quincy High School Counselor, coordinated the selection committee. Thirteen Boy State candidates will be attending the program this year. Five from Quincy High and eight from North Quincy High School will be sponsored by the five Legion Posts in the city.

Permits Granted For Arts In The Parks Program

City Council President Michael Cheney announces that the Park and Recreation Board Commissioners have voted unanimously to issue permits for his Arts in the Parks entertainment program scheduled for the summer.

The program will start with an open, public rehearsal at 1000 Southern Artery July 6 and will continue with a July 11 performance at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater, July 18 at Lebreque Field, July 25 at Fore River Field, Aug. 1 at Bishop Playground, Aug. 8 at Kincaide Park, Aug. 15 at Wendell Moses Playground and Aug. 22 at the Granite Works Memorial, Shea Park, Copeland St.

Cheney said the entertainment lineup is nearly complete. Performances scheduled so far include Made In The Shade, a four-piece dixieland band which performed at Quincy First Night; the Quincy Alumni Band, the Riverside Theatre Works, a Broadway musical review with teenagers and children; and Two For The Show, with folk musicians Jake Kensinger and Ellen Schmidt performing traditional, original and sing-a-long folk music.

Arts in the Parks is a new program created by Cheney, who also founded First Night Quincy. The Arts in the Parks program is a similar non-alcoholic, family-oriented, participatory performance which will run from 6 to 8:30 p.m.

All those attending are asked to bring a chair, blanket or other seating.

"Many people who attended First Night Quincy requested we have similar performances during the warmer months in their neighborhoods," said Cheney. "The Arts in the Parks program accomplishes just that. Neighborhoods, family and friends from the neighborhood can gather for an evening of professional artists' performances. This promises to be fun for the whole family."

Admission is free. Food and beverage will be available at each performance.

Malvesti With No-Hitter Last Week

McCarthy Wins First As Morrisette Streaks

By KERRY BYRNE

In his first start on the mound in Legion ball, Morrisette's Joe McCarthy fanned eight and gave up five hits as his club doubled Canton, 4-2.

It was the third consecutive superb performance by a member of the Morrisette pitching staff. Last week, Tom Malvesti hurled a no-hitter in a 4-0 win over Braintree. Scott Kelly followed with a shutout in his first-ever Legion start in a 7-0 win over West Roxbury.

Morrisette will host Weymouth Friday night and West Roxbury Monday night. Both games are at 8 o'clock.

Morrisette (6-0), which is looking tight and well-balanced in this young season, got by offensively against Canton with a third-inning spurt in which Tim Zaniboni, Tom Malvesti and and Andy Joyce crossed the plate.

"I'm very happy with the way McCarthy threw," said coach Dave Perdios. "We new he had the ability because he was excellent at North Quincy. He throws very well."

It looked like McCarthy's debut would be a short-lived one, as the Canton batters got to him early. Brian Mann opened the game with a single. The next batter, pitcher James Sullivan, ripped a double up the left field line, driving in Mann.

Aided by a high fastball and double plays in the first and third innings, McCarthy held Canton scoreless the rest of the way. Jeff Russell took over in the seventh and was stuck with an unearned run when shortstop Tom Malvesti misplayed a ball in the hole.

"We're playing pretty good defense and we're keeping everyone in the game," said Perdios. "We're using a lot of pitchers; we have some good pitching this year, there's no two ways about it. We have seven guys who pitch in high school or college."

The strength of the pitching rotation is one reason why this year's Morrisette club looks stronger than last year's version at the same point in the season. But that team, after a less-than-stellar regular season, went on to place third in the state tournament, which means Perdios isn't so quick to judge.

"The thing that overshadowed last year's club was that we were hosting the tournament," said Perdios. "At the end of the year we were a very good baseball team. We haven't played the meat of the schedule yet this year. This was our first test."

In the 4-0 win over Braintree, Malvesti's hurled the first no-no for a Morrisette pitcher in nearly a decade.

He gave up four walks and hit one batter, but maintained control with 10 K's. He struck out the side in the third and seventh innings.

Only one runner reached third base.

"Tommy still wasn't as sharp as he could have been," said Perdios, "he had a lot of 2-2's, 3-2's and walks, but you can't argue with a no-hitter."

Without knocking a ball out of the infield, Morrisette managed to score three runs in the first to ice the game early.

Ron McCann led with an infield hit. Joe Biagini walked and Jim Sapienza was hit by a pitch to load the bases. Malvesti beat out an infield hit, scoring McCann. Biagini scored on a wild pitch and Sapienza crossed the plate as Mike Sheffer grounded out.

Morrisette added the final run after Chris Cotter walked, McCann doubled him to third and Russell, running for Cotter, came home on a sacrifice fly by Biagini.

Morrisette recorded only four hits in the contest.

Kelly allowed eight hits but walked just one as he led Morrisette to the 7-0 win over West Roxbury.

Although not dominant, Kelly was tough when it counted and added seven K's to his first-game totals.

Sapienza hit into a fielder's choice in the first inning, driving in McCann with what proved to be the game-winner in the first inning.

Morrisette was held hitless until the fourth inning when Tim Zaniboni led with a single. A base hit by Paul Marnikovic drove in Zaniboni and Mike Santoro. Joyce then knocked in Marnikovic with a single.

A triple by Malvesti in the fifth scored Sapienza and Zaniboni. Malvesti crossed the plate with the game's final run when Marnikovic hit a double.

First Step Towards Hershey Nationals

Quincy Will Host Local Track & Field Meet

The Quincy Recreation Department will host a community track & field meet for boys and girls ages 9-14.

The meet is the first step in a competition that could result in a local athlete advancing to the Hershey National Track & Field Championship in Hershey Park, Penn.

New England champions will be awarded an all-expense paid trip by national sponsor Hershey Chocolate.

Participants in the Quincy meet are not required to have track experience or to be a member of a community track program. This meet is open to participants from surrounding towns.

"The philosophy of this program is to stimulate participation of all eligible children. It is in no way to be construed as an all-star program," said Quincy Recreation director Barry Welch. This event is run in cooperation with the National Recreation and Park Association and the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sport. Our own Olympic bronze-medal winner, Karen Cashman, was a five-year National Championship participant starting in the Quincy competition. I encourage our residents to take advantage of this excellent program."

Registration for the Quincy meet will be held Tuesday, June 27 at 5:30 p.m. for boys and Wednesday, June 28 at 5:30 for girls, at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. The meets will begin at 6 p.m.

Participants must provide the sponsoring agency with proof of age before they will be allowed to compete. There are no entry fees. Spikes and starting blocks are prohibited.

The age of the participant shall be his/her age as of Dec. 31, 1995. Youngsters who are 8, but who will turn 9 before Dec. 31, can compete.

Youngsters who will turn 15 before Dec. 31 are not eligible.

The events are the same for boys and girls:

Ages 9-10: 50-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 200-yard dash, 4x100 relay, standing long jump and softball throw.

Ages 11-12: 100-yard dash, 200-yard dash, 400-yard dash, 800-yard run, 4x100 relay, standing long jump and softball throw.

Ages 13-14: 100-yard dash, 200-yard dash, 400-yard dash, 800-yard run, 4x100 relay, standing long jump and softball throw.

Each participant may compete in up to three events. If someone chooses three events, one must be a field event.

For more information, call the Quincy Recreation Department at 376-1FUN.

Babe Ruth

Kelly, Bryan Post Blank Barry's Deli

Bryan Post blanked Barry's Deli, 6-0, behind the outstanding pitching performance of Mark Kelly in Babe Ruth League action.

Kelly fired a two-hitter, fanned 14 and walked just one. Kelly (2-0) has 26 K's and just two walks in fourteen innings pitched.

BP (8-4) jumped to a 4-0 lead in the first inning on base hits by Steve Wiltshire and Craig Bigham, a double by Kevin Cellucci and a booning triple by Kelly.

Matt Norton, Mike Shaw and Mike Sullivan iced the game with base hits in the sixth.

Wiltshire and Gates foiled a Barry's Deli scoring opportunity with a double play and John Cooper played well at second base.

The Elks (12-0) continue to find ways to win as they defend their league title.

They scored two runs in the bottom of the last inning to pull out a 3-2 win over a Quincy Police team which had been on a seven-game win streak.

Will Tracy was the hero, singling to the hole between first and second and driving in two. Jacky Daly scored the winning run.

Rusty Corner went the distance, allowing three hits. Matt McLoughlin went 2 for 3 with an RBI.

The Elks were trailing Granite City, 4-2, going into the sixth but managed an 8-4 win.

McLoughlin tied the game in the sixth as he crushed a triple which drove in Justin Adams and Corner. Steve Clarke then singled in McLoughlin with the winning run. They iced the game with three run in the seventh.

Chris Bregoli picked up the win with a complete-game, 12-strikeout effort.

Paul Mahoney of Granite City shut the Elks down for five innings before tiring in the sixth. Brian Doyle picked up two hits off Bregoli.

Teams have been picked and the field has been set for the annual Triple A All-Star Game.

Over the last five years, the American League holds a slim 3-2 edge in the classic.

The game will start Saturday at 7 p.m. at Mitchell Field on Southern Artery behind the Collins Rest-a-While Park.

In games from this week:

Flavin & Flavin exploded for 19 runs in the first inning on their way to a 24-17 win over Local 2222.

Dan Rackauskas was among the top Flavin batsmen with two roundtrippers and three base hits. Rob Tatum belted two hits and scored three runs.

Tatum has been playing great ball behind the plate all year. Also doing a good job for Flavin throughout the season have been Adam Jurewich, who has nailed four home runs; Brian Eaton, who has played well at second base, shortstop and pitcher; Robert Rice, who is considered a great all-around team player; and Mike Delahoyde, who has done very well.

Flavin & Flavin played well but were edged, 18-17, by IHOP.

Several Flavin players added to their strong season-long performances. Ron Batherwich, who has seven hits this season, did a great job in the outfield. Bruce Ngo also made some great plays in the outfield. He has six hits.

John Mooney has been strong on the mound with 25 strikeouts, while giving up just seven hits. At the plate he has clubbed 19 hits. Ten-year-old Brian French has also been sharp on the mound. He has fanned 20 batters while giving up seven hits.

Junior League

O'Toole, Butts Lead Jaehnig Club

The Jaehnig Chiropractic Club gained sole possession of first place in the Quincy Junior League after two hard fought wins.

Danny O'Toole pitched a masterful two-hit shutout to lead Jaehnig to a 4-0 win over the Elks.

O'Toole used an overpowering fastball and timely change-up to record 14 strikeouts in the six-inning contest.

O'Toole, Dan Dorsey and Kevin Weeks loaded the bases in the first inning with consecutive singles and Freddie Butts gave Jaehnig all the runs they would need with a bases-clearing double.

Chris Doherty slapped a fourth-inning single, stole second and came home on a Pat O'Brien single to add an insurance run.

Chris Ham and Derek Keezer made nice defensive plays to backbone the Chiropractic defense.

Phil McGillicuddy pitched well for the Elks. He settled after the first inning and posted eight K's. David Riley (single) and Matt Barrett (double) recorded the two Elks' hits, while Billy O'Toole was solid behind the plate.

The Jaehnig Club held off Beacon Sports in a wild 13-10 affair.

Patrick Jaehnig was the offensive star for the winning club. He went 5 for 5 with three doubles, one of which missed by inches being a home run as it bounced off the center-field fence at McCoy.

Danny O'Toole smashed a triple and a towering home run which cleared the 25-foot fence (The Beast) in right-center and landed in Collins Rest-a-While Park. Dan Dorsey had a triple and a single and scored three runs.

Patrick O'Brien (two doubles), Fred Butts (double, single) and Brandon Sleeth (two singles, two walks) were also offensive forces. Kevin Weeks and Tom Buckley had base hits.

Buckley also played a strong game behind the plate despite the 90-degree heat. Jeff Butts and Colin Chesley aided the win with fine play.

Jaehnig notched his third win in relief, but needed help from O'Toole who fanned the last two batters with the bases loaded.

Beacon scored five runs in the third and five more in the sixth as they refused to quit.

Burke Club (10-4) stayed in the hunt with a 5-1 over Keohane's, courtesy of the late-inning heroics of Craig Royce.

Royce came through with a three-run dinger over the center-field fence at Shea Field to give Burke the win. It was the second time this season he delivered with a longball in a clutch situation.

Justin Hall hurled a one-hitter to post the win. His no-hit bid was foiled in the sixth when Mike Tetreault ripped a line drive up the first base line. He fanned nine men.

Rotary came through with an eight-run third on their way to a 14-1 win over Burgin Platner.

Rotary was led by a host of 10-year-olds. Brian Pyer collected two solid hits, scored a run, made two outstanding catches in center field and pitched a flawless inning.

Craig Keenan singled, walked twice and scored two runs. Danielle Millerick scored twice and watched as older brother Matt smashed a monster home run deep over The Beast at McCoy Field.

Kieran Ryan was 3 for 3 with a double, and Joe Thorley cracked a triple.

For BP, Jim Devlin played a solid first base, Dennis Thompson singled and scored a run, and Paul Adams ripped a double.

Men's Softball

Callahan's Pub Wins Two, Moves To Second Place

Quincy's representative in the South Shore Softball League, Callahan's Pub, moved into a tie for second place with two solid wins over Braintree.

Pitcher Bob Hennelly and John Carroll each improved to 5-1 as Quincy (12-4) won, 23-7 and 18-10.

Shortstop Jerry Thomes had a career day, belting a grand slam and five hits and driving in 10 runs. Tom Spillane smashed two triples and two doubles. Al Freeman and Billy Mackin had six hits each.

Clubbing two hits each were Sean Gately, John McManus, Joe Godfrey, Rob Cinquegrano, Todd Filicicchia, Elvis Fabello and Brian Morris.

Rich Keddy played well for Braintree.

Callahan's Pub's chances of winning a title were bolstered this week with the return of star left fielder Paul Cedrone from the injured list.

South Shore Softball League standings: Hanson, 14-2; Quincy, 12-4; Middleboro, 12-4; Brockton, 11-5; Norwell, 6-10; Easton, 6-10; Braintree, 2-14; Pembroke, 1-15.

Three Quincy Boys Lead AAU Hoop Team

Thanks to the work of three Quincy boys, the under 11 AAU MBA Breakers recently won the state basketball title.

Pat Bregoli, Phil McGillicuddy and Joe Sudak were instrumental for the Breakers as they crashed over the opposition in the AAU tournament held at Cardinal Spellman High School in Brockton.

The three will lead the Breakers as they take part in a tournament in Cocoa Beach, Florida from July 15-22.

In a 71-35 wipeout of the Bristol Stars, McGillicuddy lead all scorers with 17 points, while Bregoli finished with 11. Greg Smith of Cohasset added 12 and Dave Powell of Norwood scored nine.

In a semifinal match, the Breakers blew out the South Shore Tigers, 73-16. McGillicuddy was again brilliant, hitting for 21 points. Powell added 17 while Matt Ghiloni of Braintree scored seven. Sudak netted nine.

In the final, the Breakers again dimmed the Stars, 70-26. McGillicuddy totaled 16, while Sudak had 10. Bregoli, Powell and Billy O'Dwyer of Braintree netted eight each.

The Breakers prepared for the tournament by competing in a 12-and-under MBA league in Weymouth. They finished in second place.

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Granted a permit for the Mayor's Band Concert featuring the US Air Force Band to salute World War II July 7 from 7:30 to 10 p.m. at Veteran's Memorial Stadium.

•Granted a request from Adams Shore Community Association, Inc., for a one day non-alcoholic license for a family cookout at the Arthur Boyson Park , from 12 noon to 4 p.m.

•Heard an updated report regarding the operation of a Lodging House at 191 Burgin Pkwy. Leo E. Martin Jr. said he is down to five tenants which makes him exempt from having a sprinkler system installed on the premises. Shea placed the report on file and said the board reserves the right to inspect the rooming house in the future. Martin had hired a fire watch as requested by Fire Chief Thomas Gorman because he had more than five tenants.

•Continued a hearing regarding a request from Woodbine Garage, 471 Hancock St. for permission to change the location of their automotive repair shop license to 105 Federal Ave. Albert Cline told the board he would meet with Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio and abutters to work out a plan. Cline's shop is being taken because of the new Shaw's supermarket.

•Granted a request from Rizzotti Corp., doing business as The Fowler House, 1049-1051 Hancock St. for permission to pledge their liquor license to the Hibernia Savings Bank.

Atty. Robert Fleming representing Mr. Rizzotti said Rizzoti recently purchased the building the restaurant is in and one of the requirements for security was the pledging of the liquor license to the bank.

•Continued a hearing from the Varsity Club, 33 Independence Ave., for permission to open weekdays at 6:30 a.m. to serve breakfast and a permit to serve Bloody Mary's and Mimosa's at 11 a.m. on Sundays. Shea told Adam Kessler that the requests were two separate items. Fabrizio said he would set up a meeting with the neighborhood.

Police chief Francis Mullen expressed concern over the noise early in the morning while Shea said the problem in that area was always "parking, parking, parking."

THE SMELL OF GAS

Fortunately, nearly all people are concerned enough when they smell gasoline in their cars or garages to make a prompt call to the auto technician for a diagnosis of the problem. In a great many cases, the cause of the gas odor can be traced to the charcoal canister, the charcoal canister filter or the vapor hoses of the fuel-evaporation system. Either the charcoal canister or its filter are clogged or a damaged fuel evaporation emissions hose is allowing fuel vapors to escape. It also may be that a fuel line is leaking. In any case, the smell of gas should lead to a check of all lines running to and from the fuel tank. As for the fuel tank itself, it should also be inspected for leaks and replaced (not repaired) if necessary.

HINT: Older fuel tanks are prone to rusting, which can result in rust particles being deposited in the fuel filter and a consequent restriction in the flow of fuel.

For most of your car's maintenance needs including problems with your gas tank, rely on our technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. Learn for yourself why so many of your friends and neighbors turn to us to keep their family cars in top condition. Here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550), we offer both full and mini-serve gas islands and of course, we carry diesel fuel. Hours: Mon-Fri 6am-9pm, Sat 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

Spending Of Block Grant Funds Approved

The City Council voted Monday night to authorize Mayor James Sheets to begin spending the city's $2.6 million in federally-funded Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds for the upcoming fiscal year.

The money will be divided into the following areas:

•$800,000 for public works projects.

•$500,000 for planning studies and administration.

•$400,000 for organizations such as food pantries, senior citizens' centers and youth groups.

•$300,000 for Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation.

The funds for Quincy 2000 were the subject of much discussion. Several councillors questioned whether the mayor should give the corporation its annual $300,000 when a third of the $900,000 it has received since 1992 remains unspent in a federal account, and some wished aloud for line-item veto power.

The council, which cannot make cuts to the CDBG funding, can authorize Sheets to spend the money but has no say over what he does with it.

Councillors suggested that in the future, Quincy 2000 should come up with a concrete spending proposal for presentation to the council before it is allowed to have the money.

"It's time for Quincy 2000 to produce," said Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill. "This (money) isn't targeted for anything. Without a plan on how to spend it, we're just throwing money away."

Council President Michael Cheney, a member of the Quincy 2000 Board of Directors, questioned the corporation's focus, saying a board meeting has not been held in some time. He added that he has no authority to call a meeting himself.

Councillor-at-Large Joseph LaRaia, an outspoken critic of Quincy 2000, also expressed reservations about giving the money to the corporation.

"Why allow all this money to accumulate into an account?," he said.

Councillors also said Quincy 2000 should begin focusing on smaller business districts in neighborhoods throughout the city, saying too much attention has been placed on Quincy Center, Wollaston and North Quincy.

The council ultimately agreed to approve the CDBG monies because the amount for Quincy 2000 is only about 20 percent of the entire figure. It was also agreed, however, that Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino, who took over that position earlier this month, should appear before the council at an upcoming meeting to outline his future plans.

Mannarino said Tuesday he looks forward to meeting with councillors individually before giving a full presentation of his plans to the entire council as soon as possible.

DeCristofaro In Florida After Suffering Seizure

Ward 2 City Councillor Ted DeCristofaro is resting in Florida after suffering a mild seizure last week.

DeCristofaro and his wife, Betty, are spending some vacation time with Mayor James Sheets and his wife, Joann. DeCristofaro did not attend Monday night's City Council meeting.

The seizure, which forced DeCristofaro to miss serving as grand marshal of the annual Quincy Flag Day Parade June 14, was caused by a medication imbalance. He collapsed around 5 p.m. that day, only a couple of hours before the parade.

Mrs. DeCristofaro said prior to leaving for Florida that an adjustment was made in her husband's medication and that should be the end of the problem.

DeCristofaro, 72, suffered a heart attack and stroke last year. He plans to step down as Ward 2 councillor in the fall after serving seven terms.

Rezoning Plan Receives Support At Public Hearing

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A plan to rezone land near a Shaw's Supermarket that is to be built on the North Quincy-Wollaston line received nothing but support at Monday night's City Council meeting.

Two area residents spoke in favor of the rezoning and presented a petition from the neighborhood in support of the plan. No one spoke or was recorded in opposition.

The proposed rezoning is the result of an agreement between the city and the supermarket chain. The land, located between 488 Hancock St., 2 and 8 Albion Rd., and 5 and 7 Albion Rd., is to be rezoned from Business "B" to Residence "A."

The new supermarket will be built at the site of the former Boston Gear Works located across the street from the land to be rezoned.

Linda Colon of 10 Albion Rd. said she is "very much in favor" of the rezoning and that most of the neighborhood is as well. More businesses in the area would result in parking and quality of life problems, she added.

"If we don't rezone now, we're leaving ourselves wide open to all sorts of problems," she said.

Marylou Desserres of 11 Albion Rd. said the rezoning should be done "so we can preserve our homes as homes" and so the quality of the neighborhood can be preserved.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan noted that the rezoning is a condition that was put into the special construction permit Shaw's was granted and is necessary "to keep the project on the other side of Hancock Street."

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, who hammered out the permit with Phelan and Shaw's officials, agreed.

"It's just another safeguard," he said. "This is in the best interest of the neighborhood."

Council President Michael Cheney said the council will vote on the rezoning either in September or prior to that at a special summer meeting.

Board Approves Extension Of NQ Liquor License

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License Board granted a request from Newport Liquors, doing business as L & J Liquors, 66-68 Newbury Ave. for an extension of their liquor license from 1770 square feet of retail space to 2460 square feet of retail space.

Owner Richard Racette told the board he has made physical changes in the store and only planned to expand the retail part of the store.

Pat Newman, director of the Atlantic Neighborhood Center said the only concerns she had was to make sure Racette kept the retail and liquor stores separate at all times.

One abutter said neighbors were not notified of the expansion of the store. However, Chairman Joseph Shea said "this was not a new liquor license" and then read the legal notice that appeared in the newspaper. He added that this was already the second meeting for Mr. Racette.

Last week Ward 6 Councillor asked to board to postpone their vote until he met with the Atlantic Neighborhood Association to give residents the opportunity to meet Mr. Racette and hear his plans.

Ayers assured the neighbors that Mr. Racette's license would be revokes if he did not abide for the following restrictions compiled by him and members of the Atlantic Neighborhood Center.

•There should be two entrances to the building. One for the package, the other one for the variety.

•No signs nor advertisements should be on the sidewalks.

•The area must be kept clean and clear of litter at all times.

•Delivery routes and delivery hours must be flexible to the neighborhood and a traffic engineer's review.

•All building codes must meet or exceed the building inspector's criteria.

•The dumpster must be locked.

•The business must meet all licensing board restrictions.

•The business area must be kept clear and clean of snow.

•The name and phone number of a contact person, owner or manager must be included in the permit and held accountable.

•Any proposed changes must come before the licensing board.

•The hours of operation are 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. subject to change.

•In the legal advertisement, it was advertised as enlarging the package store. It should be corrected to advertise as enlarging the variety store.

•The proposal to store liquor on the premises is to be cleared by the city solicitor as well as confirming the legalities to permit enlarging the variety store.

LaRaia Suggests Entrance Change At New Dunkin Donuts

Councillor-at-Large Joseph LaRaia suggests the entrance to the new Dunkin Donuts from Southern Artery be eliminated as one of the access areas.

LaRaia made the suggestion after conferring, he said, with residents who complained about the Dunkin Donuts business at at the busy location.

In a letter to the Quincy License Board Tuesday, LaRaia said the plan has been referred to by the Traffic Engineer as Plan A which LaRaia said he whole-heartedly endorsed, not only as a member of City Council, but as a long-term resident of that area. familiar with the traffic patterns.

The other plan, LaRaia said would allow only exiting from the location that he referred to, but opposed this option because of the Route 3A traffic density at the busy intersection.

LaRaia said he hoped that a harmonious solution to the traffic concerns would be reached by satisfying resident's complaints without any undue hardship on the licenses.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Too often children are familiar with and expect all the privileges of belonging to a family circle, but have not been trained in assuming the responsibilities which should always accompany privileges. Children should be expected to share in the work of the home, thereby developing a sense of responsibility and experiencing the joy of co-operative effort which will extend to their outside relationships later.

To learn what it means to submerge one's own personal interests in the larger interests of the family develops in the children a proper sense of values and reduces his natural selfishness. When a child has been deprived of the experience of taking his share of responsibility in the home, he invariably finds it difficult to make the necessary adjustments when he leaves home and gets out into the world on his own.

Quincy Crisis Center Facing Its Own Crisis

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy Crisis Center is facing a crisis of its own.

The City Council has unanimously appropriated $12,000 from Quincy's federally-funded Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG)/Monarch III account so that the center may continue to provide various services to needy families throughout the city. The appropriation Monday night marked the first time in the center's history that it has asked the city for funding.

Heather Rideout, a spokeswoman for the organization, said the center has operated in Quincy for over 17 years without receiving federal monies from the city. She added that the center now needs funding to operate its six programs because Esther Sanger, the group's executive director, has been unable to continue her constant fund-raising activities because of health reasons.

Sanger did not attend Monday night's meeting, but councillors had strong words of praise for the executive director.

"Esther catches those who fall through the cracks," said Council President Michael Cheney.

"She does a remarkable job," agreed Councillor-at-Large Joseph LaRaia.

When Rideout said another part of the center's problem may be that it is exceeding its costs, Ward 1 Peter Kolson asked if the organization plans to combine with other local service agencies in the future. Rideout said there are no such plans at this point.

Cheney suggested that the group consider doing so and added that the city may have to eventually create an Inter-Agency Council so that the organizations can continue to thrive in the future.

•$1.62 million for the computer network, which will be put all of the city's 18 schools. The amount includes $810,000 to install wiring, $200,000 for computer hardware and $610,000 to build a classroom-sized computer in each school.

•$300,000 for street repairs and other continuing improvements in Wollaston.

Somes councillors have expressed skepticism about supporting another plan to bond, saying the city has borrowed too much money in recent years. Others, including Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien who helped develop the technology plan, are in favor of the package.

Credit Union Official Found Not Guilty Of Theft Charges

A Norfolk County Superior Court judge has found John Bradley, 34, of Milton, innocent of all charges stemming from an alleged scheme to obtain unlawful personal loans from the Wollaston Credit Union.

Bradley was the only one of the eight defendants accused in the 1993 aspersion who chose to go to trial. The other seven pleaded guilty.

Quincy Atty. John McGlone III said Bradley was "looking for vindication, and vindication he received."

Bradley added, "I just wasn't willing to say I was guilty for something I never intended."

The trial lasted three days. During closing arguments, McGlone asserted that Bradley was not a key player in the alleged fraud, but rather an innocent victim of a corrupt system.

"This was a 23 year-old kid who needed a loan and asked his boss how to obtain one," said McGlone. "Loans make money for a credit union, and in the 1980s, the market was very competitive. They were not about to deny Mr. Bradley a loan--instead, they said, 'here, this is how you obtain the financing you need.'

"Bradley simply listened to his boss. He didn't know he was doing anything wrong."

McGlone added that it was common practice at the time among all credit unions to approve home improvement loans as home equity loans. Since 1990, the law has changed to allow credit unions to give home equity loans, he noted.

The judge deliberated for approximately one hour before coming to a decision. A verdict of "not guilty" was awarded on all five counts against Bradley.

Bradley, who has lost his job since the investigation began five years ago, expressed relief at the verdict.

"It's hard to believe this is really over," he said. "It takes a toll on you that you just can't imagine. I'm just glad that justice was served and that I can finally start piecing my life back together."

Marina Bay Responds To Parking Issues

George O'Malley, of Coastal Partners at Marina Bay presented to the Quincy License Board at Tuesday's meeting a list of responses to issues raised about the parking problems at Marina Bay.

License Board Joseph Shea cited last summer's complaints about the parking situation and the possibility of opening a parcel of land to park an additional 400 cars.

O'Malley met with the owners and tenants of properties at Marina Bay and presented the board with the following.

•New signage has been installed providing directions to visitors to Marina Bay as to location of parking.

•All broken lights have been fixed as the filling of pot holes.

•There is no written agreement between the MDC and the marina regarding their 900 car parking lot, rather it is an oral representation from MDC Commissioner David Balfour's staff.

•Monitoring of the parking lot has commenced and will continue throughout the summer months.

•All boats and cradles have been removed form the Tent parking lot. Storage for the season will be done in accordance with a program launched in early spring.

•Police and parking attendants will direct parking on arrival and exiting.

•Provide a handicapped access to the Tent area.

•With cooperation from various landowners, problems such as the sewer line will be minimized into the future.

QUINCY RECYCLING PROGRAM PAYS OFF

Quincy's recycling and leaf composting programs are great for several reasons.

First of all, recycling and composting preserve precious natural resources.

Second, several recyclable items and leaves are now BANNED by state law from Massachusetts landfills and incinerators.

Third, every ton we recycle and compost saves the city $47.50! That's how much the city pays Browning-Ferris Industries (B.F.I.) for trash disposal.

Fourth, the leaves we have been composting are being used to cover the city's old landfill. THIS YEAR ALONE we will save $125,000 because we won't have to buy as much loam.

Fifth, the city's contract with B.F.I. requires B.F.I. to share with us the revenue they receive from the sale of recycled items. In just the last three months alone, Quincy has earned $86,000! This is because the value of recycled paper is currently very high.

To take advantage of all these benefits, Quincy residents are STRONGLY encouraged to participate in the city's recycling program. Please do what you can for the environment and to save Quincy a great amount of money. For more information about the Quincy recycling program, please call 770-BINS.

QHA Gets Top Rating From State

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy Housing Authority is currently number one among its peers, according to the state Executive Office of Communities and Development (EOCD).

The QHA received a rating of 2.78 out of a possible 3.0 following a EOCD management review conducted on various dates in 1994. The authority received the results of the review last week.

QHA Executive Director John "Jake" Comer said anything over 2.5 is classified as "excellent," adding that the rating Quincy received is currently the highest in the state. He noted that about five or six of the state's other largest housing authorities, including Brockton and Springfield, have been reviewed but only Quincy has received an excellent rating.

Comer said he was thrilled with the news.

"I'm more than pleased," he said. "It's very exciting, but it's more exciting for my staff than for me. I have a great staff, the most outstanding in the state."

Comer said the staff

Dickinson Sheets' Choice To Develop Hancock Lot

The city is planning to designate Mark Dickinson, president of Dickinson Development in Quincy, as the developer of the Hancock Parking Lot in Quincy Center.

Mayor James Sheets made the announcement this week. The City Council will look at the mayor's proposal during a special meeting tonight (Thursday).

Dickinson was the only developer to respond to a recent request for proposals (R.F.P.) put out by the Quincy Planning Department.

Dickinson's plan, which is somewhat scaled down from a previous proposal he made on the same site, calls for a five story, 150,000-square-foot building of which the top four floors, or about 120,000 square feet would consist of office space.

The bottom floor would include retail space, an atrium area and some additional office space.

The plan also calls for a three story (above grade) parking garage that would contain 490 spaces, only 35 spaces less than the current Hancock Lot.

Dickinson was pleased when told of the mayor's plans at press time.

"That's what we were hoping for," he said.

He added that if all goes according to plan, the project could be completed sometime in 1998.

The city owned lot, 5.25 acre lot is located at Chestnut Street (across from Quincy District Court) and McGrath Highway.

Early Deadline For Next Week's Sun

Because of the July 4th holiday there will be an early deadline for news releases and advertising for the July 6th issue of The Sun.

News, church and sports releases, as well as classified advertising and legal notices should be in The Sun office, 1372 Hancock St., by noon tomorrow (Friday).

Thank you for your co-operation.

Kolson: Change Keno Licensing

Ward 1 City Councillor Peter Kolson wants to see a change in the way licenses for Keno operations are granted in Quincy and throughout Massachusetts.

Kolson outlined his thoughts in a memo addressed to Quincy's Legislative delegation Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Stephen Tobin, Ronald Mariano and Michael Bellotti and City Clerk Joseph Shea (chairman of the Quincy License Board).

"I am writing to appeal a change in the way the state is granting licenses for Keno operations in the small, variety stores with common victualer licenses," he wrote. "I strongly believe that this practice contradicts the practice of the local license boards to oversee the operation of stores in local neighborhoods.

"This type of activity changes the atmosphere of the variety stores--turns them into legalized gambling establishments, with people watching the Keno screen for long periods, sending the wrong message to the younger citizens. If people do not make a quick purchase and leave the variety stores as a matter of convenient purchase, there will be added traffic and parking problems at each location.

"I strongly urge that the law be changed in order that this particular licensing be done by the local Board of Licensing Commissioners."

"Thank You!"

Morrissey Pushes For MBTA Noise Abatement

State Sen. Michael Morrissey announced Tuesday that the Joint Committee on Transportation has given a favorable report to legislation calling for comprehensive sound studies of the MBTA's Red Line.

Morrissey's bill, Senate 1741, was released by the committee and will be taken up by the full Senate in the near future.

Last year, the MBTA erected a sound barrier along a portion of Newport Ave., to provide relief for the residents of the abutting neighborhoods.

"We have been making progress with the MBTA in the area of noise abatement," said Morrissey. "I filed this legislation in order to stress to the T the needs of the community in which the Red Line operates. I want to see a comprehensive review as to the effectiveness of the wall and how we can implement better noise programs along the Red Line in Quincy."

Senate 1741 directs the MBTA to conduct a comprehensive sound study from the Neponset River Bridge to the Braintree Station during equipment operating hours over a minimum of a 24-hour period. The bill calls for the study to be conducted by an acoustical engineer of the MBTA.

In the residential areas where the decibel level generated by the Red Line exceeds the ambient level by 10 or more decibels, the MBTA will be required to install sound barriers in order to mitigate said noise pollution problem.

Morrissey said he is optimistic about the legislation. "I believe the MBTA will act in good faith with the neighbors of the Red Line," he said. "The addition of better trains and the continuation of noise abatement programs will go a long way to fostering a positive relationship between the T and the people of Quincy."

Senate 1741 must first be voted on by the full Senate, then will be taken up by the House of Representatives. The governor will have the final decision on the legislation.

Sheets Encouraged By Mayors' Conference

Mayor James Sheets returned to the city Monday encouraged by what he heard and saw at the recent U.S. Conference of Mayors in Miami, Fla.

The mayor, who sits on a conference committee that deals with the subjects of family, education and jobs, said those in attendance are more at ease now that they have braced themselves for anticipated budget cuts that are expected under the new Republican-led Congress.

"While the mayors are mostly Democrats, they seem to be coming to terms with the budget cuts that have to be made," he said. "The conference really helped us all come together realize that it not the end of the world."

Sheets said he was also pleased that the issue of crime was "more off the table" at this month's conference and that more emphasis was placed on the family and other things "that hold cities together."

He added that "a number of resolutions" pertaining to such issues were passed at the conference, which is held twice a year.

Lyons Makes His Candidacy Official

By MICHAEL WHALEN

It's official: Roger Lyons will challenge Mayor James Sheets in the fall election.

Lyons, 78, a retired contractor who lives at 211 West Squantum St., said at press time he planned to bring his nomination papers to City Hall by yesterday (Wednesday). All candidates must have their papers in by July 11.

Lyons, who first announced he would challenge Sheets last month, made it official this week, noting that he has collected "well over 100" signatures for his candidacy. Only 50 are needed, he added.

"Having resided here for 50 years and taken an active interest in government, I now have the time to get involved directly, not just in civic affairs but in the economic matters so detrimental to the betterment of its citizens," he said.

Lyons called the creation of new jobs for the city "the most important issue" in the race. He said devising a new image for Quincy is essential to bringing prominent businesses to the city, because many companies view it as a place where businesses are unfairly taxed.

ROGER LYONS

"Businesses' taxes are much higher than they should be," he said.

Lyons added that another way to draw businesses to Quincy is to eliminate Planned Unit Development (PUD) zoning, which he said intimidates some from wanting to come here.

Among the other issues Lyons said he would concentrate on if elected are the strengthening of the Quincy Building Department by adding to its manpower and the status of Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation. Of the latter, he said he wants residents to have a more complete understanding of its day-to-day operations.

"I think the public should have a better idea of what they're (Quincy 2000) trying to do," he said.

Lyons, who has never held elective office, lost two bids for the Ward 6 city councillor's seat in the early 1960s.

Public Meeting July 5 On Land Sought By Morrisette

A public meeting will be held Wednesday, July 5 at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center to discuss the sale of city-owned land on Quarry Street in West Quincy to the Cyril P. Morrisette Post.

The meeting has been called by Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio. The Post has proposed rezoning the land from open space to Business "B" zoning so that it may build its new headquarters there.

Special Salute To World War II Veterans July 7

A special salute to World War II veterans from the Quincy-South Shore area will be held Friday, July 7 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium, Hancock St., Quincy.

The event is being sponsored by the Metropolitan District Commission with the cooperation of the City of Quincy.

Featured will be a concert by the U.S. Air Force Band of Liberty with musical selections ranging from the World War II era to themes from current movies.

Participating veterans or widows and widowers of veterans will be presented certificates.

Color guards, a huge U.S. flag, a military display including a tank, helicopter and howitzer, a Postal Service mobile unit with World War II commemorative stamps are other highlights of the special salute.

The military vehicles known as tanks are so called because during their development in Word War I, their British inventors referred to them as water tanks to conceal their real purpose.

HOW GOOD ARE GENERIC DRUGS?

Generic drugs can be lifesavers for people who need medical care but have limited resources to pay for it. However, generic drugs can also pose a health risk in some cases. For example, some generics are less effective or have more side effects than their brand-name counterparts. In other instances, prescription and non-prescription drugs simply don't have generic substitutes that have been proven equivalent. Fortunately, help is available in figuring out the medication maze. Your doctor's experience with particular medications and advice in using them can be invaluable. Your doctor or pharmacist may also refer to an FDA publication called the Orange Book, which gives each drug's equivalency status.

P.S. Whenever you are given a new prescription, be sure to talk to your doctor about other drugs you are taking.

Ask your physician if a suitable generic equivalent can save you money on your prescriptions. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and myself offer complete medical care with a focus on treating heart disease. Call 472-2550. Office hours by appointment. Presented as a public service for the benefit of all by the offices of COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE.

Cheney Being Realistic

Serving as acting mayor seems to whet City Council President Mike Cheney's political appetite for taking on the job full-time someday.

CHENEY

Cheney, who has just finished up another stint as acting His Honor, says candidly:

"I love it. I really enjoy it. Serving as acting mayor gives me a real insight to the job and new respect for it."

And for mayoral hopefuls who might be wondering who else has thoughts of running for mayor in the future, he adds: "Being acting mayor is also good on-the-job training."

Since March of 1994, Cheney as City Council President, has had the opportunity to serve as acting mayor on nine occasions during the absence of Mayor James Sheets on official business or vacation time.

Sheets returned Monday from a nine-day trip to Florida where he attended the U.S. Conference of Mayors in Miami.

Does Cheney definitely have his sights trained on the mayor's office?

"Realistically right now I have my sights trained only on re-election," he says.

Cheney, who is in his 11th year on the City Council, isn't one to take things for granted—especially this election year.

The stage is already set for one of the best City Council at-large races in recent years.

Cheney and fellow incumbents Tim Cahill and Joseph LaRaia have strong challengers to contend with in Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien and former state Senator (and former councillor) Paul Harold. Chretien is already an official candidate and Harold, who has nomination papers in circulation, will make his formal announcement before the July 11 filing deadline.

Cheney is a political workaholic with tiger-in-his-tank energy which is a plus for him. He knows he has got to campaign hard and not run out of fuel this election year.

Right now he isn't allowing his mind to wander to the big office on the third flood at City Hall. First things first.

But he confides:

"If I am re-elected, I will sometime during that term, make an evaluation and and a decision about my political future."

IN CASE YOU might have been wondering, Bruce Ayers will be seeking his third term as Ward 6 city councillor. Ayers made it official with an announcement at a fundraiser last week at The Adams Inn, North Quincy. An estimated 350 attended.

AYERS

Incidentally, it looks like Ayers will be the only City Council candidate without an opponent this year.

QUINCY'S Uncle Sam Rounseville is one of the features in the current issue of Yankee magazine. Among the profile tidbits on him:

UNCLE SAM

Since legally changing his name from LeRoy Rounseville in 1955 he estimates that 10 times daily he responds: "Yes, Uncle Sam is my real name."

The last four digits of his telephone number, post office box and zip code are: 1776.

He estimates he has persuaded thousands to register to vote and he has handed out an estimated 50,000 American flags at various events.

Hundreds of publications have featured a story and or photo on him.

There are two days in the year he has a hard time wearing his red-white-and-blue outfit: Halloween and April 15.

And how much does he receive in payment for his efforts to inspire patriotism: $0.

PERSONAL: To our good friends Kae and Ed Spargo: our thoughts are with you at this difficult time. We are rooting for you, Kae.

Incidentally, Bob and Gloria Noble, two of the nicest people in this world, are celebrating their 45th wedding anniversary. Congratulations, kids.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1915 POSTCARD shows the original wooden St. Chrysostom's church and parsonage on the corner of Linden and Hancock Sts. Later rebuilt with stone, the church began to serve the people of Wollaston in 1894. This view is from across Linden St. which was the main road in and out of the huge Tubular Rivet plant then located to the left of the church in this picture. Across Hancock St. on the right, you can see the old Taylor farm which was developed about this time into house lots and became known as Taylor Terrace. Factory workers at the nearby Boston Gear Works and the Tubular Rivet Company bought most of the houses from which they could walk to work. This area is now known as the ABC streets which really run from A, Albion, to F, Ferndale.

Democracy Is Not A Spectator Sport

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Democracy is not a spectator sport - for it to survive and flourish, we all must become involved.

This is the message I heard from 489 high school students representing 43 Massachusetts high schools who recently participated in the Close Up Foundation government studies program in Washington, D.C.

For a full week the students had the opportunity to develop a better understanding of our democratic process. By observing Congressional proceedings, questioning journalists and meeting with government experts, the abstracts of history and the process of governing were transformed into concrete experiences. In addition, students were able to share their views with their peers from other areas of the country.

Participants returned home with a deeper awareness of their responsibilities as citizens and the realization that a single individual can make a difference. Their enthusiasm for involvement in the democratic process is to be admired.

The Close Up experience was made possible through the strong support of parents, teachers, and schools. Also, various companies and organizations helped make Close Up fellowships available to students in financial need. These sponsors include New England Electric System.

On behalf of all of us at Close Up, I would like to thank all who made the experience possible.

Navy To Seize Broad Meadows Land

By PAUL HAROLD

June 29 - July 5
1955
40 Years Ago

John Flavin, President of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, informed the City Council this week that the Navy Department planned to seize land at Broad Meadows to build a Navy and Marine training center.

The land, which fronts on Sea St., was owned by the city but negotiations between the Navy and the leasee had broken down on the issue of compensation. The leasee operated a golf driving range at the site.

The City Council had voted to give the land to the Navy and under the terms of the agreement, the leasee could be cancelled if the land was needed for city purposes. However, since this was a use by the federal government, the leasee still had rights in the land. The resolve this legal snafu, the Navy said it would exercise its eminent domain power and seize the land.

CITY TO RE-BUILD MONTCLAIR SIDEWALKS

DPW Commissioner Charles Herbert said that newly installed sidewalks on Hilma St. would be torn up and rebuilt to conform with the street line. The sidewalks were built by real estate developer Alfred Keith who built them at no cost to the city for the convenience of the owners of the new homes. He said that since the City Council was so slow in accepting new streets even mail delivery would be delayed without sidewalks.

Keith developed Hilma St., Clement Ter. and London Ave., constructing 1,500 feet of roadway at a cost of $22,500.

CITY SEEKING BIDS FOR DPW GARAGE

City Manager Donald Blatt informed the City Council that he was seeking bids for the construction of a new DPW garage on the site of the former city stables. Estimated cost of $87,000 was available from a previous bond issue.

He said construction of the comfort station at a cost of $25,000 would have to wait until Governor Herter signed legislation authorizing the use of those funds.

Quick Tasty Meals For Hot Days

Here are a few ideas in the food department on how to survive this projected long hot summer with some quick, easy and tasty recipes. That is if you don't get "take-out."

And all can be fixed ahead and either kept in the refrigerator or the freezer.

I have found two tasty ways to prepare fresh fish for outdoor cooking.

The first one is for either haddock, scrod, or flounder which I place on a piece of heavy aluminum foil

With a pastry brush, coat each piece with a little white wine, garlic powder, freshly-chopped parsley and some fresh lemon juice. Wrap tightly and put on preheated grill.

In about 15 minutes, the fish is succulent and moist.

If you prefer, and are not a calorie counter, coat the fish with melted butter, the wine, garlic, parsley and lemon.

Another method is to place the fish on the foil and add some thinly-sliced pieces of zucchini and fresh tomatoes, basil, salt and pepper to taste and cook the same way.

If you are tired of the same old plain hamburger, do the following.

In a bowl, place a cup of seasoned bread crumbs, an egg and 1/4 cup grated romano cheese. Salt and pepper to taste with a pound of ground meat. Mix until blended. Make patties about one inch thick and place on grill.

To cook indoors, place the patties on a slightly-greased cookie sheet in a 350-degree oven and turn once.

On a cool day, I sometimes cook a batch of rice and then freeze it in small containers. That way we can always have a "side" of rice.

And my favorite hint is to have tomato sauce either in the refrigerator or in the freezer. In no time at all, I can have pasta, a salad and crusty bread for unexpected diners.

'Jefferson and Adams' At Adams Site July 4

The National Park Service, Adams National Historical Site will host a performance of the award-winning play, "Jefferson and Adams," Tuesday, July 4 from 2 to 4 p.m. at the historic Carnegie House estate of the Adams family, 135 Adams St., Quincy.

The drama, which won the 1991 New Play Awards of the San Francisco Playwrights' Center, tells the story of the 50-year-long friendship between the second and third presidents of the United States. Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Did you know...

Massachusetts residents smoke 12 billion cigarettes each year. Tobacco use is an addictive practice with often deadly consequences. Cigarette smoking is the leading preventable cause of premature disease and death among Americans. Based on current smoking rates, about 375 Massachusettes residents alive today may die of smoking-related disease. It is estimated that 11,000 Massachusettes residents die each year of tobacco-related illnesses. Smoking accounts for almost one in five deaths in Massachusettes, more than are attributed to AIDS, drug and alcohol abuse, motor vehicle accidents, homicide and suicide combined. Eighty-five percent of all lung cancer deaths in Massachusettes are considered at least partially attributable to smoking , as are 25 percent of heart attack deaths and 20 percent of all low-birth-weight babies. Data for 1991 indicate that health care and lost wages associated with tobacco-related morbidity and mortality cost the state about $2 billion ($334 per capita).

The Quincy Health Department Tobacco Control Program is designed to address three critical dimensions of the tobacco problem: youth tobacco use, adult smoking and non-smokers' exposure to environmental tobacco smoke (ETS). (ABT Associates, Inc., Executive Summary, 2/95)

USS Salem Seeks Cobblers, Barbers As Museum Volunteers

Specific trades volunteers are sought for the USS Salem, announces William MacMullen, executive director and chief officer of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum at the Fore River Shipyard.

The 718-foot, 21,000-ton retired warship utilizes personnel with related experience in its living museum presentation. This enables visitors to interact with staff members involved in what would have been routine ship duties or restoration work.

"Now that the tours are running smoothly, we're moving ahead with plans to further develop the overall educational program on the Salem," MacMullen said. "Specifically, we are going to bring barbers and cobblers aboard as weekend volunteers. When the ship was active, personnel with this trade experience were in demand, serving both officers and enlisted men."

"Already, we have a barber who is searching for period equipment in order to refurbish the shop realistically. Once that is complete, the volunteer barbers will actually cut hair. The cost to the public will be low and all revenues will go towards the upkeep and operation of the ship. We will create this same type of setup in the cobbler shop, too," MacMullen said.

Built at the Quincy shipyard and commissioned in 1949, the Salem became the flagship of the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean. The ship cruised the waters throughout the 1950's during the early years of the Cold War. Staff members now include some of those involved in the USS Salem's construction, along with retired military personnel who served on similar vessels.

While are barbers and cobblers are encouraged to inquire about this latest request for ship volunteers, MacMullen said he particularly welcomes those who served in the military. For more information about the volunteer program aboard the USS Salem, call the museum at 479-7900.

Quincy Sailor In Historic Visit To China

[Special to The Quincy Sun]

For sailors, part of the Navy adventure is being able to visit exotic places around the world, but for the past 40 years, China has not been on the top of the list for naval port calls.

However, Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class Robert K. Kelly Jr., of Quincy, made history recently when he and the rest of the crew of the guided-missile cruiser USS Bunker Hill visited the coastal city of Quindao in the Peoples Republic of China. This was the first time a U.S. Navy ship dropped anchor in a Chinese port since 1989.

"I think it's a great way to settle our disputes with China and better our relations with them," said Kelly, the 27-year-old son of Atty. Robert Kelly of Quincy."I visited the Great Wall of China, the Forbidden City, and made a trip to Beijing."

Kelly, a 1985 graduate of Boston Latin Academy, is a gas turbine systems technician and a work center supervisor who repairs the electrical components of the gas turbine engines used to power the ship.

"I learn something new everyday, not only in my job but also about people., Staying in the same state and city you tend to be closed minded about a lot of things. I've had the opportunity to meet many different people from many different cultures. It's helped me mature," said Kelly, a four-year Navy veteran.

The Bunker Hill is forward-deployed in Yokosuka, Japan, and is part of the Navy's Seventh Fleet. The Ticonderoga-class cruiser is a vital part of the aircraft carrier USS Independence Battle Group. Serving overseas 365 days a year is a challenging but exciting adventure for all of the 450 crewmen.

This is the second time the Bunker Hill has made a historic port call. In September, 1993, the 9,600-ton warship visited the Russian port city of Vladivostok.

Since the port call in China, the Bunker Hill has resumed training operations with the Independence off the coast of Japan in preparation for an extended deployment to the Arabian Gulf later this year. Kelly said he has a lot of goals he'd like to accomplish on the cruise.

"I had a dream to see the entire world during my first enlistment and when I deploy later his year, I will have realized that dream," said Kelly.

Even though being on the ship is demanding, Kelly feels he made the right decision by joining the Navy.

"I joined the Navy to complete my education, see the world and learn more about foreign cultures that I probably wouldn't get to see in Massachusetts," said Kelly.

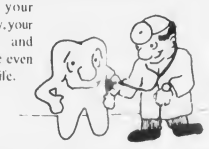
Dental Dialogue

HEALTHY, WEALTHY AND WISE

Q: I seem to be fairly resistant to tooth decay. Is it still important to see my dentist every six months?

A: Yes, it is, since a thorough dental examination involves much more than your teeth. The person who keeps regular check-up appointments has a better chance of retaining his or her teeth for life. Dental problems, which may affect your teeth, your gums, or both, can be corrected more easily and with less expense in their early stages. But even problems other than strictly dental ones may be diagnosed during your exam. For example, since some of their symptoms appear in the mouth, systemic diseases are often detected at the check up appointment. These diseases may include cancer, diabetes and certain blood disorders. So far from being optional, regular check-ups are a necessity. They can help save your money, your teeth and maybe even your life.



This column is presented in the interest of better dental health. From the office of:

Legislature Votes To Continue Community Policing Program

Rep. Stephen Tobin announces that the state Legislature has voted to continue the community policing grant program.

The provision, a $12.16 million allocation, was included as part of the recently enacted state budget for FY'96.

"A proven tool is the war against crime, I believe these community policing monies will work towards making our streets safer places by making partners of the municipal police departments and the neighborhood residents they are assigned to protect," said Tobin.

Community policing funding was created in the House two years ago to bolster local police efforts. Through the work of Tobin and his fellow law enforcement advocates, the program was expanded by approximately $1 million for the upcoming year, thus enlarging the pool of monies from which Quincy may apply to access.

Tobin said given the fiscal reality facing the Legislature as the state budget was being debated, he was pleased to be able to include this measure, along with other public safety initiatives such as $10 million for new state police cruisers, a $5 million increase for the juvenile court system and a $19 million increase in the county corrections budget.

"I am especially proud that this community policing money will again support the valiant efforts of the Commonwealth's law enforcement officers," said Tobin.

Durkin Asks Legislators To Address T Train Noise

Stephen J. Durkin, candidate for Ward 5 councillor, recently called on Sen. Michael Morrissey and Representatives Steve Tobin and Michael Bellotti to address the issue of M.B.T.A. train noise in the Wollaston area.

In a letter to the three legislators, Durkin described the concerns and frustrations of some residents.

"Having spoken with numerous Wollaston residents in the Newport Ave./Oval Rd. area in recent weeks, I know that many in the area continue to be concerned with M.B.T.A. train noise and the lack of any sound barrier.

"As you know, a brick-wall barrier was recently constructed in Ward 3 along Newport Avenue. Many Ward 5 residents would like to see a similar barrier constructed in their area," Durkin said.

"For residents living in very close proximity to the M.B.T.A. tracks, the train noise is really overwhelming, and the situation only worsens in summer months when residents' windows are open."

Durkin said he wants to see an analysis of the effectiveness of the barrier in Ward 3 in reducing the noise level, taking into consideration that there are now many new and presumably quieter trains in operation.

"Does that barrier actually increase the noise level on the Hancock St. side of the tracks," Durkin asked in his letter.

"While the vast majority of residents I have talked with would prefer a wall barrier, that preference is not held by all residents, some of whom dislike the barrier idea due to its appearance, and because of the potential for graffiti. Perhaps those concerns could be addressed through appropriate landscaping."

Durkin said any initiative which addresses the noise issue would require substantial funding.

"Since the legislature (and you as members of Quincy's delegation whose districts include the neighborhoods concerned) has much more influence with the M.B.T.A. than do local officials, please let me know whether you have made any progress at with this issue.

To Refinance Or Not: That Is The Question

By ART FOLEY

One of the questions homeowners ask themselves in times like these with interest rates heading to new lows is, "Should I refinance for the lower interest? Is it worth it?"

First, there are some basic questions you must answer:

•If I refinance, how long will I stay with my new mortgage?

•What up-front costs am I willing to incur (although this cost can usually be rolled into the new mortgage)?

•Will the savings per month justify the cost of refinancing?

Example: I presently have a mortgage of $125,000 at 8.5 percent for 25 years and I paid two points and $1,000 for legal and miscellaneous costs. Total cost: $3,500.

The interest rate today is 7.75 percent (no points) or 7.25 percent (two points). Now let's take the same $1,000 for legal and miscellaneous costs.

The present mortgage of $125,000 at 8.5 percent for 25 years equals $1,005. The new mortgage (no points) at 7.75 percent for 25 years equals $943, a monthly payment that is $62 lower.

To figure out the breakeven, take the $1,000 cost and divide the savings per month into the cost: $1,000 divided by 62 equals 16.13 months to break even.

After 16.13 months, the savings are all yours.

Example, two points: The present $125,000 mortgage at 8.5 percent for 25 years equals $1,005. The new mortgage (two points), $125,000 at 7.25 percent for 25 years equals $902, a per-month savings of $103.

In this example, the cost to refinance is $3,500.

Take this cost and divide the savings into it to find the breakeven: $3,500 divided by 103 equals 33.18 months to break even. After that, the savings of $103 per month is all yours.

If you go ahead and refinance, pay the points, and then move in two years, you shouldn't have refinanced.

If you refinance, pay two points, and stay 10 years, you made the right decision and saved $8,961 after covering the cost of refinancing.

So again, the key questions are, "How much will my savings be?" and "How long will I keep the mortgage?"

The original costs you incurred with your present mortgage aren't really a factor, since that's done and there's nothing you can do about it now. Certainly, if your present mortgage was a no-point mortgage, it's not easy psychologically to refinance again.

This analysis could get a lot more complicated by taking into account the present value of money and the federal tax consequences, but the end result wouldn't be a lot different. This was done using just fixed mortgages if you factor variable rates, buydowns, two-step loans, etc. Then the analysis would be much different.

Good luck and happy refinancing!

About 2,000 Attend Stadium Festival

Rain Doesn't Dampen Blues Fans' Spirits

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Sunday's rainy weather did not dampen the spirits of about 2,000 blues fans as they sat through nearly seven hours of performers from around New England at the third annual City of Presidents Blues Festival held at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Festival producer and promoter Joe Hajjar, whose Yard Rock Blues Club in Quincy Point was the event's main sponsor had hoped for a crowd of 3,000 to 5,000, but said he was "not disappointed" at the turnout.

Hajjar called the festival an "outstanding day with due respect to the weather," and added, "there's no control over God."

He also praised Stop & Shop and Harvard Community Health who supplied inkind service, including advertising and supplies of free water bottles to the fans.

Although he acknowledged the fact that he lost between $4,000 and $5,000, Hajjar said, "the City of Quincy stood behind me" and that he couldn't "buy $5,000 worth of good will".

He called the festival a "Hajjar family event" and said "I have a wonderful family" whose backing helps makes the show go on. He said the festival is cultural as well as "family day entertainment."

'I'm 100 percent positive with the job we all did," he said. "We accomplished what we wanted to and drew almost 2,000 people--families, children all creating the right atmosphere.

"And one of these days, we'll have better weather."

Hajjar added that he he is looking into the possibility of procuring a substantial size tent next year in case of rain or asking for a "rain date."

The non-alcoholic event featured two headliners: Mighty Sam McClain and Ronnie Earl.

Other performers included Steve Murphy & the Yardrockers, with John Putnam, Michelle Wilson & Evil Gal, Clutch Grabwell & the Led Foot Horns, the Susan Tedeschi Band and Monster Mike Welch.

Guests were welcomed by Acting Mayor Michael Cheney.

Sponsors of the event were the City of Quincy, The Yard Rock, Stop & Shop, South Shore Printing and Signature Signs.

Last year, nearly 2,000 people attend the blues festival despite cloudy skies. Among those in attendance was Gov. William Weld.

This year's recipients were chosen based on their involvement in drama activities, their commitment to the drama club, and an individual essay detailing what they learned from their involvement in the theater.

The Gregory P. Toland Memorial Scholarship was established in 1988 in memory of one of the founding members of the theatre group. The North Quincy Alumni Theatre's next production is Bernard Slade's, "Romantic Comedy," which will be performed in the Black Box Theatre at the high school for three consecutive weekends beginning July 21.

Morrisette Runs Unbeaten Streak To Nine With Win Over W.R.

By KERRY BYRNE

For the second Monday in a row, Joe McCarthy struggled in the first inning, only to improve the rest of the way as he led Morrisette to a 5-3 come-from-behind win over West Roxbury.

McCarthy held West Roxbury hitless from the second through fourth innings before giving way to Jeff Russell who was perfect in three innings of work.

Russell was credited with the win, as he took over in the top of the fifth with his club trailing 3-1. In the bottom of the frame, Morrisette (9-0) pushed four men across the plate to seal the victory.

Morrisette has a tough week ahead of them. They were scheduled to host Randolph and their ace Kevin Sullivan last night (Wednesday). Sullivan posted a 13-0 record for Div. 3 champion Archbishop Williams during the high school season.

They will host Weymouth Friday. Weymouth was undefeated before falling to Morrisette last week. Both games are scheduled for 8 o'clock.

Morrisette coach Dave Perdios saw two reasons for the slow start against the weak (1-7) West Roxbury team.

"Basically, I think we were a little flat," he said. "We weren't ready to play. [Also] McCarthy was a little nervous at the beginning. He has some trouble getting used to this mound and he's never pitched at this level before this year."

Although he gave up a walk, double and triple in the first inning which led to two West Roxbury runs, McCarthy put up solid numbers in four innings: six K's, two hits, four walks. Two free passes and a wild pitch in the fourth led to the third West Roxbury run and to Russell's entry in the fifth.

Tom Cunio, Jim Sapienza, Joe Biagini and Paul Marnikovic scored for Morrisette in the decisive bottom of the fifth. Marnikovic also scored in the fourth.

The win capped an impressive week for Morrisette in which they knocked off Milton and previously undefeated Weymouth.

Ace Tom Malvesti took the mound in the 8-2 win over Weymouth.

Malvesti (3-0) threw a three-hitter and fanned 12 men. In 20 innings of work this season, he has not allowed an earned run, has struck out 30, and given up just six hits.

Morrisette went to work early on offense as their first six batters reached base. The big blow was a bases-loaded triple by Tim Zaniboni which scored Ron McGann, Sapienza and Cunio. Zaniboni later scored on a Marnikovic groundout.

They scored four more in the fourth as 10 batters came to the plate. Curro's double drove in two. McGann singled home another, and Malvesti was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded.

Cunio ended the game with four hits.

Russell earned the W in an 8-5 victory over Milton.

Mike Kenney pitched through five innings before tiring. Russell allowed one hit and one run in the last three innings.

Zaniboni singled in McGann and Cunio in the first inning to get the ball rolling for Morrisette. Zaniboni scored when Malvesti singled.

Ten batters led to four more runs in the third. Zaniboni, Malvesti, Marnikovic and Andy Joyce scored. A base hit by McGann drove in Malvesti with Morrisette's final run in the fourth.

"I'm surprised [with the 9-0 record]," said Perdios. "We have a good team and we've had the breaks go our way. Pitching and defense has kept us in ball games. If we keep it up we'll be in every ball game the rest of the year."

TWO-SPORT STAR Noreen McBride recently wrapped up another season with the Suffolk University softball team. The junior catcher helped lead the Rams the Northeast Women's Athletic Conference post-season tournament. McBride also plays on the Suffolk University women's basketball team.

Babe Ruth

Elks (15-0) Roll, Seek Second Title

The Elks continued their quest for a second consecutive Babe Ruth League title with three impressive wins this week to improve their record to 15-0.

Bobby Johnston and Jack Daly worked the mound in a 16-5 win over Barry's Deli.

Johnston posted the win, his fifth of the season. Matt McLoughlin and Johnston batted in three runs each. Daly had two hits and two RBI while Steve Clarke smacked three base hits. Scott Staiti and Kevin Shea also added some bunch to the Elks attack.

Nate DeRosario tripled for Barry's while Tom Daly and Chris Curry had two hits each.

The Elks' Chris Bregoli pitched a six-inning no-hitter versus Houghs Neck in a 14-0 win.

Bregoli also doubled and homered to spark the offense. Daly drove in three with two hits and Will Tracy continued his hot batting with four RBI on two hits. Rusty Corner also had two hits.

Corner picked up the W in a rain-shortened 14-1 victory over Bryan Post.

BP's Mike Shaw was working on a no-hitter until 13-year-old Rachel Powers broke up the bid with an RBI single for the Elks.

Bregoli and McLoughlin each tripled while Staiti knocked in two. Justin Adams did a solid job behind the plate.

Rich (Axl) Rose and Ryan Ploof combined for the shutout as Morrisette topped Bryan Post, 3-0.

Rose worked through four innings with four strikeouts before handing the ball over to Ploof. Ploof entered with one out and the bases loaded and K'd the next two batters to preserve the goose egg.

Greg Peck led the offense with an double and triple while Rose nailed a single and a triple. Jason Crossman and Jamie Grossi were sharp defensively.

Shawn Manning fanned seven batters for Bryan Post. Mike Shaw stroked two base hits while Brian Gates and Mark Kelly played well in the field.

Ploof again earned the save, this time with Grossi as the starter, in Morrisette's 6-5 win over Sons of Italy.

With the game tied in the fifth, Ploof stepped to the mound and fanned the next three batters.

Swinging the big sticks were Peck (single, double, triple) and Mike Centrella (single, double). Ploof and Axl Rose clubbed two base hits each while Ryan McMahon knocked in the game-winning run with a single in the fifth.

Chris Duffy, Tom Doyle and Jason Crossman sparked the Morrisette defense.

Playing well for Sons of Italy were T.J. Miller, Brian Deschler and Adam Goodrich.

Mark Kelly hurled an outstanding one-hitter as he led Bryan Post to a 9-1 win over Granite City Electric.

Kelly fanned 11 in six innings of work.

Steve Wiltshire sparked the winning offense as he continued his torrid pace at the plate. He hit a double and a booming triple which iced the game. Wiltshire is hitting .500 for the season.

Mike Sullivan had two hits and did some fine baserunning. Kelly, Shawn Manning, Matt Norton, Matt Graham and John Cooper also had base hits.

Infielders Wiltshire, Graham, Kevin Cellucci and Brian Gates turned in several superb plays. Manning was sharp behind the plate while Mike Shaw, Matt McCann and Shawn Boostrom each played well.

INTERIOR COMFORT AND EASE

When looking to purchase a new car, buyers should turn their attention as much to the interior as to the car's ride, braking and handling characteristics. Ergonomic engineers have seen to it in recent years that features have been added to maximize comfort and minimize distractions. Power-adjusted, orthopedic seats assure correct posture and firm support to combat fatigue over long hauls. Buttons and knobs on the dashboard and center console are also easier to find and are within easy reach. Engineers have also made them distinguishable from one another by touch so that the driver's attention is not diverted from the road. In addition, adjustable steering wheels, memory buttons for driver seating positions and height adjustable seat belts make driving safer.

Hint: New-car buyers: be sure to check out the car's air conditioning, heating and ventilation systems for their ability to perform and aid driving comfort.

AT LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, we look forward to putting our years of training and experience to work for you and the vehicle you finally decide upon. Our technicians are highly skilled in working on all types of cars and look forward to putting their knowledge and training to work for you. Here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Bellotti Bicycle Bill Gets Favorable Report

State Rep. Michael Bellotti has filed legislation relative to bicycle and pedestrian access in construction of public ways.

The bill requires that any contract for construction of a new or existing public way involves final plans that meet both the bicycle and pedestrian needs of the area. H-1490 received a favorable report from the Transportation Committee and is currently being held in Bills in Third Reading.

"Due to the alarmingly increasing number of bicycle/pedestrian accidents recently here in the city of Quincy, I feel it is necessary to take every safety precaution possible for our citizens. I will continue to work to ensure that our streets are safe for both our walkers and cyclists", Bellotti said.

Bellotti also noted that beyond safety concerns, this legislation would enhance and beautify more traveled neighborhoods, also encourage more people to walk, run and bicycle for recreation, exercise, and as a means of transportation, he added.

Applications Available For Boat Buy-Back Program

Congressman Gerry Studds has announced that the Commerce Department is now accepting applications from owners of Northeast groundfish vessels who want to participate in a $2 million pilot boat buy-back program.

Fishermen from Quincy and other local communities must apply by Sept. 5.

"Obviously, the number of boats we can buy for $2 million is not going to significantly reduce effort in the groundfish industry," said Studds. "But for a modest investment, we can design and test a full-fledged buy-back program that will reduce effort and help rebuild stocks in the Northwest Atlantic."

If the pilot is successful, the Commerce Department will likely launch a full-scale program, according to Studds. The congressman was the first to propose a boat buy-back more than four years ago as part of comprehensive legislation to restore groundfish stocks in New England.

Successful applicants will have to scrap their vessels and surrended all fishing permits associated with them.

Fishermen from the Cape and South Shore should contact the fishing assistance center in Chatham at 1-508-945-5492 or the National Marine Fisheries Service regional office in Gloucester at 1-508-281-9203.

Jeffrey Ketcham Attends MDA Summer Camp

Jeffrey Ketcham of Quincy was among over 47 children ages 6-13 who recently cruised into summer with some assistance from the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Jeffrey and the other children are attending this year's Camp Florian at the Massachusetts Hospital School in Canton.

The Harley Davidson Group from central Massachusetts helped MDA in welcoming children to the start of summer by providing cycle rides and sharing in other camp activities.

MDA's Camp Florian allows children diagnosed with one of 40 neuromuscular diseases to participate in various camp recreational activities designed to help them focus on their abilities, not their disabilities.

Camp Florian is named after the patron saint of fire fighters, honoring the hundreds of New England fire fighters who help raise funds for MDA in support of patient services, support groups, and research facilities.

Quincy Delegation Members Support Minimum Wage Increase

State Rep. Ronald Mariano, Michael Bellotti and Stephen Tobin recently joined their colleagues in the House in approving a bill which would increase the minimum wage.

The proposal increases the Massachusetts Minimum Wage by $1 from $4.25 to $5.25 per hour, in two intervals over the next 15 months.

"Given the current minimum wage, a full time worker will earn $8,500 a year, " said Mariano. "A family of three trying to live on such a low earned income falls 25 percent below the poverty level. To me, the solution is unconscionable. If, as a society, we are trying to emphasize work over welfare, this must be changed."

Bellotti said despite popular conceptions, three quarters of all minimum wage workers are over the age of 20 and more than half are over the age of 30. Sixty-three percent of all minimum wage earners are women. Those individuals have seen the real value of the minimum wage in Massachusetts decrease by 24 percent since 1974.

For almost all minimum wage workers, their income level translates into a life without health care or child care for them and their families. Lack of health care is a major reason cited by welfare recipients in their decision to apply for benefits.

Tobin said, "Raising the minimum wage will serve to supplement the Legislature's efforts to provide those at the lower end of the wage spectrum some relief as they struggle to make ends meet. Clearly, no cure for poverty, taken in conjunction with our efforts to provide low income tax credits, access to affordable health care and improved public education, this would enhance the quality of life for thousands of working families in the Commonwealth."

Should the minimum wage be increased, Massachusetts would become the fourth New England state to mandate a wage higher than the federal level. Contrary to big business rhetoric, the delegation members said, the higher minimum wages offered in Connecticut, Rhode Island and Vermont have not resulted in the expansion of jobs for the Massachusetts economy.

The Quincy delegation also cited studies conducted in California and New Jersey which reassert their contention that this action will not contribute to any job reductions.

consists of between 60 and 65 employees, including seven department heads. In particular, he praised Jackie Loud, his assistant director, who came to the QHA with Comer 14 years ago.

The management review was based on the BOAST program, which was established in 1993 to assist the EOCD in evaluating the operations of local housing authorities. Areas examined through the BOAST program include budget, occupancy, administration, standards of health and safety, and tenant services.

Each of the five areas was broken up into four subdivisions. For instance, the standards of health and safety category was divided into routine and preventative maintenance, inspection program, work order system, and planning.

The QHA scored a satisfactory mark in the occupancy category and excelled in all other areas. It achieved a score of 3 in each of the subdivisions of both the standards of health and safety and tenant services categories.

The system is explained in a letter Comer received last week from Owen Ahearn, management representative for the Bureau of Housing Management.

"We have attached the BOAST Summary Sheet to show you how you are rated under the new program," wrote Ahearn. "The summary provides a breakdown of the rating on the various components and subcomponents which encompass the review. A rating is provided for each, and based on those ratings, the QHA received an excellent (2.78) rating."

Buildings under the QHA's jurisdiction which house senior citizens and the disabled include Drohan Apartments in West Quincy, O'Brien Towers in Germantown, Pagnano Towers in Quincy Point, Sawyer Towers in Quincy Center, Snug Harbor Court in Germantown and Tobin Towers in Wollaston.

Those that house mainly families, as well as some seniors, include the Snug Harbor and Riverside buildings in Germantown and West Acres in West Quincy.

Special Holiday Admission Offer At USS Salem

Children 10 years of age and under can tour the USS Salem free July 1 through July 4 when accompanied by an adult, announces U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum Executive Director William MacMullen.

"Independence Day is an ideal time to extend this invitation," MacMullen said. "The USS Salem and its staff have so much to offer, especially during such a patriotic weekend. And by allowing children ten-and-under to tour the ship free, we hope adults and families will share in this valuable learning experience."

Staff and volunteer crew members aboard the USS Salem include some that were involved in the ship's construction, as well as retired military personnel who served on similar vessels. Tours are conducted as a "living museum" presentation, enabling visitors to interact with staff, many of whom are performing that would have been routine daily ship duties or restoration."

The USS Salem, a 717-foot, 21,000-ton cruise ship, is the centerpiece of the USNSM, located at the Fore River shipyard in Quincy Point.

Built at the Quincy shipyard and commissioned in 1949, the USS Salem was the Flagship of the Navy's Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean. The ship cruised the waters throughout the 1950's during the early years of the Cold War. It is the world's only remaining heavy cruiser.

Tours aboard the Salem begin at 10 a.m. and continue throughout the day until 6 p.m., with the ship closing at 7 p.m. Children ages 10 and under will be admitted for free from July 1 through July 4 when accompanied by an adult.

Regularly, admission is $5 for adults, $3 for children ages four to 12; and $3 for senior citizens except Tuesday when the rate is $2. Children ages 3 and under are free.

The Salem is docked at the Fore River shipyard, located on Wharf St. in Quincy Point (access via Route 3A rotary). For visitor information, call the USNSM at 479-7900.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Through the years the success of the American Revolution has been an inspiration to struggles against tyranny worldwide.

But the primary significance of the Fourth of July is for the American people themselves.

The Proclamation of Independence of July 4, 1776, translated our forebears from being subject of a royal majesty into being free citizens of a nation that they themselves had created . . .

Citizenship is an active, not passive condition. Citizenship carries with it responsibilities, as well as rights and privileges . . . Unfortunately, too many Americans are content to allow others to exercise the responsibilities of citizenship for them, taking but passive interest in the decisions being made locally and nationally for them.

On this Fourth of July, let us all breathe a solemn vow to commit ourselves to active, rather than passive, citizenship.

Let us remember that apathy is democracy's greatest enemy, and can do more to unravel our liberties than whole battalions of invading troops . . .

Jeffrey, Alice Booker Named Barton House Curators/Tenants

Jeffrey and Alice Booker of Quincy have been selected as the curators/tenants of the Barton House at F. Gilbert Hills State Forest, Foxborough. The announcement was made by State Environmental Affairs Secretary Trudy Coxe and Environmental Management (DEM) Commissioner Peter Webber.

"The proposal expressed the family's eagerness to preserve the house and to invite public use of the Barton State Park, a part of F. Gilbert Hills State Forest," said Webber.

Coxe added,"This program is a result-oriented approach to resource protection. The co-operative efforts of DEM and the curators/tenants will insure the preservation of this historic property."

DEM selected the Bookers' proposal through an open process. Jeffrey Booker is a general contractor with experience in the rehabilitation of historic homes. Alice Booker worked with her husband on the rehabilitation of their Quincy house and is an avid gardener.

Their proposal aims to restore the Barton gardens for public enjoyment as well as rehabilitate the house as their home.

Work will begin immediately, and the family hopes to occupy the house at the end of the summer.

QUINCY RECYCLING PROGRAM PAYS OFF

Quincy's recycling and leaf composting programs are great for several reasons.

First of all, recycling and composting preserve precious natural resources.

Second, several recyclable items and leaves are now BANNED by state law from Massachusetts landfills and incinerators.

Third, every ton we recycle and compost saves the city $47.50! That's how much the city pays Browning-Ferris Industries (B.F.I.) for trash disposal.

Fourth, the leaves we have been composting are being used to cover the city's old landfill. THIS YEAR ALONE we will save $125,000 because we won't have to buy as much loam.

Fifth, the city's contract with B.F.I. requires B.F.I. to share with us the revenue they receive from the sale of recycled items. In just the last three months alone, Quincy has earned $86,000! This is because the value of recycled paper is currently very high.

To take advantage of all these benefits, Quincy residents are STRONGLY encouraged to participate in the city's recycling program. Please do what you can for the environment and to save Quincy a great amount of money. For more information about the Quincy recycling program, please call 770-BINS.

Historic Quincy

A Tourist Guide

A Special Supplement The Quincy Sun Thursday, June 29, 1995

City of Quincy, Massachusetts

Office of the Mayor

Welcome to Historic Quincy

On May 14, 1995, the U.S.S. Salem was commissioned at the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy. This ceremony marked the re-enactment of the U.S.S. Salem's original commissioning forty-six years ago on May 14, 1949. The U.S.S. Salem has become the cornerstone of the United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum and will be used to help preserve two hundred years of shipbuilding history in the City of Quincy. In September of this year, over four hundred men who served on the U.S.S. Salem and who are members of the U.S.S. Salem Association, will visit Quincy to reunite with their ship. The City of Quincy welcomes them and plans special events in their honor.

Quincy has many places of historical interest: the birthplaces of two Presidents (the only father and son Presidents to serve this great country) John Adams and John Quincy Adams; the burial places of these two presidents and their wives; Adams National Historic Site (sometimes called the Adams' Summer White House); Abigail Adams Cairn; Adams Academy Building (now the home of the Quincy Historical Society); Colonel Josiah Quincy House; Granite Railway Incline; Hancock Cemetery; Quincy City Hall (Greek Revival structure of Quincy Granite); the Quincy Homestead; and many other sites.

Whether in honoring its past or preserving its future through actions of today, Quincy remains a City of historical significance and interest.

Enjoy your visit in this great city while you brush up on history and come back again soon.

Sincerely,

James A Sheets

It took on that "as it was" look after a painstaking six-year reconstruction project in the 1980s.

JOHN ADAMS BIRTHPLACE

Visitors to the John Adams Birthplace, which peers over the shoulder of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace on Franklin St., South Quincy, can now see more completely how the house looked.

The house is well furnished and looks like it did when John and Abigail lived in it.

The final renovation touches were to the room where Deacon John Adams made shoes.

The rooms are furnished from the period of Deacon John and his wife and probably reflected her tast. They are furnished not elaborately, but sufficiently to have a lived-in look.

The birthplace was probably built in the late 17th or early 18th Century for less than $1,000 in the pounds of the day and the clapboards were hand-hewn from trees that grew in its fields.

The pine clapboards of the John Adams Birthplace are unpainted and the U.S. National Park Service, which restored the house, insists that based on research the house will remain that way, despite the fact that John Adams was known to have preferred it white.

For more than 80 years they were the little red farmhouses at the foot of Penn's Hill. But research turned up the fact that Abigail Adams, the wife of the second president, wanted them "stone" and white in color.

Since what Abigail wanted, Abigail usually got, in the summer of 1980, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace was repainted to Abigail's taste, the "stone" color determined to be a sort of off-white mixed especially for the occasion from a late 18th Century formula.

The John Adams Birthplace was painted white so that both houses would look as they did in 1807, the year the last Adams lived in them, but later research indicated it was unpainted.

The birthplaces, parts of which date back to the 17th Century, were taken over by the National Park Service on May 1, 1979, after years of semi-neglect due to lack of restoration and maintenance funds.

The John Quincy Adams Birthplace re-opened in 1982 for the first time in three years after undergoing a $175,000 rehabilitation faithful to the lives of the prominent family that lived there.

If you close your eyes and give your imagination full rein you can see them now as they were more than 200 years ago.

There is Abigail Adams in the new pink gingham dress. There is the curly-haired infant, Thomas Boylston Adams, bouncing on his father's knee. And there is John Adams, home from the Continental Congress in Philadelphia for the first time in a year, sitting at the table drinking a cup of tea.

The setting, right down to the pewter plates and candlesticks, is reproduced faithfully in the corner room of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace.

The furnishings of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace are precise reproductions of those that were in the house when the second president lived there. The originals are at the Old House, the Adams National Historic Site, from which they cannot be removed under the ownership agreement with the Adams family.

The most interesting room in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace is John Adams' old law office, in which the elder Adams, James Bowdoin and Samuel Adams drafted the Massachusetts State Constitution, the model on which the U.S. Constitution was based.

The law office is furnished pretty much as John Adams had it.

There is the hutch table on which he wrote the State Constitution; the bookcase filled with books that probably were there in John Adams' day, judging by an inventory of his law library; his old writing desk and two chairs that were copies from those in his second law office in Boston.

Pastels of Abigail and John, originally done in Salem, were photographically reproduced by photographer George Dow and now hang in Abigail's sitting room. The originals are in the possession of the Massachusetts Historical Society.

Abigail's old kitchen cabinet was discovered serving as a bookcase in the Old House.

The cabinet was reproduced and installed in the kitchen of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace along with copies of the blue china that John purchased when he was emissary to Holland.

The Adams Birthplaces are at 133 and 141 Franklin St. They are open daily, including Sundays and holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April 19 to Nov. 10 with guided tours. The last full tour is at 4:15 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults and children over age 16, which also includes admission to the Adams Mansion within seven days. Park passes available. Tours should be arranged in advance through the Visitor Center, 1250 Hancock St.

The Adams Cottages

Our Only Father - Son Presidents Born Here

It was the North Precinct of Braintree then, a sprawling tract of woods and farmlands on the gently rolling hills some 10 miles south of the Boston Stone along the winding Coast Road to Plymouth.

Something less than 1,500 people lived in the North, Middle and South Precincts of Braintree in the year 1735 and two of them were Deacon John Adams, 44, farmer and cordwainer, and his wife, Susanna, 26.

Their home was a weathered gray farmhouse with a high peaked roof and attached lean-to kitchen set on seven acres of farmland at roughly Milepost 11 of the Coast Road, just where it turned up the wooded slopes of Penn's Hill toward the Monatiquot River ford.

He was a pillar of his rural community. Mr. Adams was, a deacon in the First Parish Church, a lieutenant in the Braintree militia and a town constable with a forceful personality and tact that enabled him to collect taxes from his neighbors.

He was a hard-working farmer whose cider was acknowledged best in town, he worked in leather during the winter months, and he had an eye on an adjoining piece of farmland, 9½ acres owned by the Billings brothers, complete with a farmhouse similar to his own.

Susanna Adams was a Boylston of Brookline, socially a cut above her husband, and perhaps there were moments in the simple house at the foot of Penn's Hill when she thought of the home of her uncle, the noted Dr. Zabdiel Boylston of Brookline, whose furniture came all the way from London.

Their first child, a son who was named John for his father, was born in the southeast bedroom of the farmhouse on Oct. 19, 1735 (Old Style). He would become the second president of the United States.

Deacon John purchased the house next door for 500 pounds in 1744 and it was ready 20 years later when young John moved in with his brand new bride, the former Abigail Smith, the preacher's sparkling daughter from the next town of Weymouth.

Their second child, a son who was named John Quincy Adams after his great grandfather, Col. John Quincy, was born there on July 11, 1767. He would become the sixth president of the United States.

The junction of Franklin St., Independence Ave., and President Ave. in South Quincy is the only place in the country where the birthplaces of two presidents who are father and son stand side by side in the same city.

The precise age of the two cottages at the foot of Penn's Hill is not known.

When the John Adams Birthplace was retored by the Daughters of Revolution in 1897, a brick bearing the date 1681 was discovered under the southeast corner, and the house was known to have been occupied by one Joseph Penniman in that year.

And a man named Samuel Belcher was living in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace as early as 1663, when it was little more than a one-room shack with fireplace. It was built to its present size in 1716, as evidenced by a date brick found in the new fireplace.

According to Henry Adams, a grandson of President John Quincy Adams, no member of the family lived in the cottages after 1818, although ownership remained in the Adams family until 1940.

Both houses were restored by the Adams Realty Trust, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace in 1896 at a cost of $1,650 and the John Adams Birthplace a year later at an expense of $515.49.

They were presented to the city of Quincy in 1940 and supervised by the Quincy Historical Society until they were turned over to the U.S. National Park Service in 1979.

The Adams Birthplaces at 133 and 141 Franklin St. are open daily, including Sundays and holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April 19 to Nov. 10 with guided tours. Last full tour is at 4:15 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults and children over 16, which also includes admission to the Adams Mansion within seven days. Park passes available. ADAMS MANSION NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE

The Adams Mansion

Summer White House And Home Of 2 Presidents

Josiah Quincy, the one who built railroads around New England and founded the cooperative bank movement in Massachusetts, was in his boyhood a frequent visitor to the mansion where John Adams, the second president of the United States, lived in retirement.

Later, he wrote with wry amusement about Sunday dinner with the aging patriarch of the Adams clan and his wife, Abigail, a dinner that inevitably began with a thick pudding made from boiled corn meal.

"...it being thought desirable to take the edge off one's hunger before reaching the joint," wrote Quincy.

"Indeed, it was considered wise to stimulate the young to fill themselves with pudding, by the assurance that the boy who managed to eat the most of it should be helped most abundantly to the meat, which was to follow.

"It need not be said that neither the winner nor his competitors found much room for meat at the close of their contest; and so the domestic economy of the arrangement was very apparent."

Quincy, as a young Harvard law student, stopped by several times a week in summer to talk and read to the former President. He found the visits delightful. Indeed, the Adams of the cold and austere public men was never more relaxed and warm than he was at his country home in Quincy.

The original house, a small part of the present building, was built probably in 1731 by Major Leonard Vassall, a wealthy West Indian sugar planter who lived in Cambridge and apparently used it for a summer place.

His daughter, Mrs. Anna Borland, who was a Loyalist during the Revolution, abandoned the house to leave with the British forces when they evacuated Boston in 1776. For a while it was used as a haven for rebel refugees fleeing the war zones.

Mrs. Borland returned to reclaim the house after the Revolution and John Adams, then in Europe as the first American ambassador to London, purchased it for 600 pounds through the good offices of the Cotton Tufts of Weymouth, his wife Abigail's cousin.

The Adamses were about to return to the United States after seven years abroad and Abigail was concerned that John's books and papers and the furnishings they had acquired in Europe would not fit into their old farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill where they lived before.

The deal was closed on Sept. 26, 1787, and the deed is still on file in the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in which the Adams purchase is specified as a house, barn and other buildings on seven acres of land with some 76 acres more scattered around the North Precinct of Braintree.

There are indications that Abigail was at first disappointed with her purchase. It was a lot smaller than she remembered it.

"In height and breadth it feels like a wren's house," she wrote to her daughter, Abigail, the wife of Col. William S. Smith, "Let Col. Smith come without heels to his shoes or he will not be able to walk upright."

Abigail and John Adams moved into the house, which they named "Peacefield," after his retirement from the presidency in 1801 and lived there until they died.

It was from the "Old House," as the family called it, that John Adams carried on his long and increasingly warm correspondence with his old rival, Thomas Jefferson of Virginia, who had succeeded him in the presidency. In retirement, they became firm friends as they outlasted their contemporaries.

"Thomas Jefferson lives," whispered John Adams as he lay dying in the Old House. He was wrong. Jefferson, in far away Monticello, Va., had preceded him in death by a few hours on the same day.

It was July 4, 1826, the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

The Old House which served as summer White House for two presidents, was home to four generations of the Adams family, the last, Brooks Adams, dying in February, 1927. It was taken over by the U.S. National Park Service in 1946 to become the Adams Mansion National Historic Site.

The site at 135 Adams St. is open from April 19 to Nov. 10 daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The last full tour is at 4 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults and children over 16, and includes admission to the Adams Birthplaces within seven days. Tours should be arranged at the Visitor Center, 1250 Hancock St.

THE FIRST PARISH CHURCH

TOMBS OF PRESIDENTS John and John Quincy Adams and their wives in First Parish Church.

First Parish Church

Where 2 Presidents, Their Wives Are Entombed

In 1949, when the present First Parish Church building, the Old Stone Temple, was 121 years old, it was ruled officially that the church is older than the city itself and the town before it.

It was then that the late historian William Churchill Edwards was called upon to resolve a minor dispute that involved the rounding of the corners of the church lot in downtown Quincy.

"Almost the first subject to which the minds of the early settlers of our country were turned after they landed here was the formation of a church," said Edwards.

The first church in these parts was established as a branch of the Church of Boston in 1636. It became a church in its own right in 1639. The Mount Wollaston section of Boston was incorporated as the town of Braintree on May 23, 1640. Ergo, the church came first!

Quincy's first house of worship, the branch of the Church of Boston, was called the "Chappel of Ease," and if it was neglected by early historians it was because its first pastor, the Rev. John Wheelwright, his sister-in-law, Anne Hutchinson, and others were banished from the Massachusetts Bay Colony for heresy.

The new church, the one that lasted, was gathered by convenant on Sept. 26, 1639, and it was holding services in its third meeting house in 1732 when its pastor was the Rev. John Hancock, father of the bold first signer of the Declaration of Independence. Son John also was a member.

The affairs of the church and the town of Quincy were one and the same until 1824 when church and state were separated in Massachusetts and the Congregational Society was established to handle parochial matters.

The old Hancock meeting house was still standing, although a little run down, on the south lawn of the present church lot in 1822 when former President John Adams deeded the interest from certain of his lands and granite from his pastures to build a stone temple.

It was completed in Greek revival style at a cost of $30,488.56-which was some $3,000 less than architect Alexander Parrish's estimate-and dedicated Nov. 12, 1828, with John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States holding Pew No. 1.

Even before the church was dedicated, the mortal remains of its benefactors, John and Abigail Adams, were transferred to tombs in the crypt of the church and, in 1852, the bodies of John Quincy Adams and his wife, Louisa, joined them

It is the only church in the United States in which two Presidents are buried. The only other church in which a President is buried is the Episcopal Cathedral in Washington D.C., where President Woodrow Wilson is entombed.

An active Unitarian Universalist Church, it is open to the public for tours daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. through Friday, Nov. 10. Admission is $1. For further information, call 773-0062 or the church office at 773-1290.

Why We Pronounce It 'Quin-zee'

Why do we pronounce Quincy "Quin-zee" when just about everyone else in the country refers to it as "Quin-see?"

There are 19 other Quincys in the U.S., but they pronounce it "Quin-see."

Can they be right and we be wrong?

Not according to Quincy's late city historian, William C. Edwards who never budged an inch whenever the argument ever came up. And it still comes up.

The reason we pronounce it "Quin-zee" is very simple.

"That's the way the Quincy family pronounced it," he used to explain.

"The original Quincy family which settled here at Mount Wollaston pronounced it 'Quin-zee,' including Col. John Quincy after whom Quincy, Mass.--the first Quincy--was named in 1792."

Colonel Quincy was the great grandfather of sixth president John Quincy Adams.

Anyway, that is how Edwards explained it. Seems like a sound argument.

City Hall

Seat Of Government For 151 Years

Daniel and Hannah French deeded the land to the town of Quincy for $1,000 with the stipulation that it "shall not be used for any other purpose than as a place for a Town House and for the said Inhabitants."

And, with a few minor transgressions of that vow, the solid structure of Quincy granite on Quincy Square has been just that for the past 151 years, the nerve center of government for the town and then the city.

It was the great hall on the second floor that the popular John Quincy Adams II, grandson of a president of the United States, held forth as town moderator for many years and, with his brother, Charles Francis Adams Jr., gave informal direction to town affairs.

One of the earliest ordinances passed by the first City Council on March 8, 1889 was the adoption of the City Seal emblazoned with the four most significant dates in Quincy's history:

1625, for the first settlement on Mount Wollaston; 1640, for its separation from Boston as the town of Braintree; 1792, for its separation from Braintree as the town of Quincy; and 1888, for its incorporation as a city.

CITY HALL

Designed by the architect Solomon Willard - who received $280 for drawing up the plans and superintending construction for five months - the City Hall was completed and occupied for the first time on Nov. 1, 1844.

It cost exactly $19,115.93 to build, including 88 cents to John Briesler for lead to seal the chimney.

In 1979, when a 3 and one half story reflective glass addition was built behind the old City Hall, the cost was $1.9 million.

Quincy Was Almost Hancock

If some of the early settlers had their way, you would be living in the city of Hancock today instead of the city of Quincy.

Quincy, like George Washington, was born on Feb. 22.

On Feb. 22, 1792, the General Court of Massachusetts passed an act incorporating the North Precinct of Old Braintree as the separate town of Quincy.

But, just before that, quite a few of the residents wanted the new town named after native-son John Hancock instead of Boston-born Col. John Quincy.

Colonel Quincy, who had represented Old Braintree in the General Court, was the great grandfather of President John Quincy Adams.

Many people today think Quincy was named after the sixth President but the honor actually goes to his great grandfather.

John Hancock who was born in the North Precinct, was governor of Massachusetts when the General Court passed the act incorporating the new town as Quincy. He signed the act the following day.

But at the first town meeting of the new town in May, a petition was presented to change the name from Quincy to Hancock in honor of the patriot and first signer of the Declaration of Independence. The move was finally defeated after a stormy verbal battle.

Opponents argued that Hancock

was still alive and that the honor should go to a distinguished-but deceased-person.

Colonel Quincy met those requirements. He was both distinguished - and deceased.

He had represented Old Braintree in the General Court from 1717 to 1741 - 12 of those years as Speaker of the House. He died in 1767 at age 77 -- two days after John Quincy Adams was born.

Quincy became a city June 11, 1888.

THE GRANITE RAILWAY

The Granite Railway

First Commercial Railroad In U.S.

It was the darndest looking contraption that many amoung the distinguished gathering had ever seen.

Each of the three wagons had four wheels, 6 and one half feet in diameter, surmounted by a smaller gear wheel which was used to raise and lower the cargo platform that was slung low between the wheels.

It rode on foot-high wooden rails, topped by iron plate, which rested on stone sleepers or cross ties, placed eight feet apart and firmly supported on crushed granite to a depth beyond the frost line.

On Saturday, Oct. 7, 1826, the wagons were laden with 16 tons of the finest Quincy granite and the opening day guests were properly amazed when a single horse moved the whole thing with ease more than three miles to a special wharf on the Neponset River.

The granite blocks, a particularly hard and weather-resistant stone capable of taking a brilliant polish, were en route to Charlestown, where they were building a monument to the Battle of Bunker Hill.

The Granite Railway, the first such commercial venture in the United States, was built specifically to transport stone for the Bunker Hill Monument.

That it became successful, and a model for others around the country, is a tribute to three vastly dissimilar men, the engineer Gridley Bryant, the architect Solomon Willard and the financier, Col. Thomas Handasyd Perkins.

Bryant was 27 at the time but already an engineer of note. He invented the eight wheeled railroad car and, when a fellow named Ross Winans of Baltimore sued to establish a patent on it, Bryant was able to prove his claim to the satisfaction of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Willard, then 43, was a great bear of a man, gentle, obliging, industrious. Frivolity, it was said, was alien to him and he was never known to run. He could be crotchety, too. He was a carpenter turned wood-carver, turned stone-carver and, finally architect.

Perkins was the autocratic, 52-year-old merchant king of Boston who was said to have been offered the post of Secretary of the Navy by President Washington and turned it down with the observation that he owned more ships than the Navy.

It was Perkins who lobbied the Railway's charter through a puzzled and obstinate State Legislature, which had never been called upon to incorporate a commercial railroad before. It was Perkins who financed it, too, largely with his own money.

Even in its early days, the Granite Railway was a tourist attraction of some magnitude.

Daniel Webster, who used to stop off for a pick-me-up in Quincy en route from Boston and Washington to his home in Marshfield, viewed it and decided that it would never succeed because of the frost that would form on the rails in the winter.

The President of the United States, a local boy named John Quincy Adams, visited in August, 1827, got caught in a thunderstorm and took shelter in a shed where Willard's stone-cutters were hacking away at monument granite.

A group of visitors were riding up the Railway's incline in an empty car on July 25, 1832, when the chain broke and catapulted them over a 40-foot cliff. One was killed in what may have been the first railroad fatality in the United States.

The Granite Railway Co. survived until 1870, some 27 years after the Bunker Hill Monument was finished, when most of its track was taken over by the Old Colony Railroad, which in turn became a division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

Today much of the roadbed, over which freight moved commercially on rails for the first time in America, is buried under the macadam of the Southeast Expressway.

The incline of the old Railway has been restored and is located at the dead end of Mullin Ave. in West Quincy. It is open to the public year round, 24 hours a day. There is no admission charge.

The Thomas Crane Library

A Romanesque Architectural Beauty

He came to Quincy as a boy of 7, grew to young manhood on a farm in Quincy Point, learned the granite-cutters' trade, and left at the age of 26 to win fame and fortune in stone in New York City.

That was the last Quincy saw of Thomas Crane for half a century until one February day in 1880, five years after his death, when his son, Albert, appeared with $20,000 with which to build a memorial -- preferably a library -- to his father.

"My father always retained a strong feeling for the town of Quincy," was his only explanation.

Albert Crane himself chose the man to design the building, Henry Hobson Richardson, grandson of the English scientist Dr. Joseph Priestly and the foremost architect of the day.

His reputation was so formidable that he was able to tell Crane, "I can not guarantee that the building, when completed, shall conform to (your) ideas of beauty and taste," and still get the job.

Richardson's Romanesque building, which now houses the reference section of the library, was dedicated on May 30, 1882, with the principal oration delivered by Charles Francis Adams, Jr., chairman of the Board of Trustees.

It was Adams who gave the library its name. Albert Crane wanted it to be "The Quincy Free Public Library." Adams insisted on "The Thomas Crane Public Library."

"Who's giving the building?" asked Albert Crane.

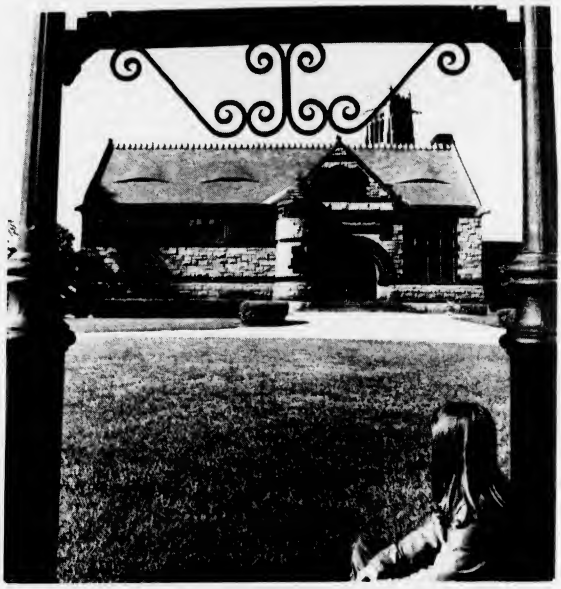
"You are, but you wouldn't have if it hadn't been for me," said Adams, who was used to having his way around Quincy, and that was that.

President John Adams' modest collection of books was housed in the library until 1893, when it was discovered that in 11 years only two persons, one of them Charles Francis Adams, Jr., had asked to see them. They were then transferred to the Boston Public Library.

At the start, Richardson's magnificent building was all but hidden behind a grain store, a hotel, an office building and four homes that lined Washington St.

Albert Crane, however, was a persistent man and, by the time he died in 1917, he had purchased and torn down all the buildings, leaving a broad expanse of open space to enhance the library.

But before the lawn could be seeded, World War I intervened and, in a burst of patriotism -- "Food will win the war," they said -- the area was planted with potatoes, tended by an expert brought in from Maine. The experiment failed.



THOMAS CRANE PUBLIC LIBRARY

"There wasn't a potato in the lot that was anywhere near as large as a golf ball," said Mayor Joseph L. Whiton. The harvest was donated to the poor farm.

Albert Crane also put up $64,000 to build the Spear St. wing of the library in 1907-08 and the Crane family gave yet another $164,000 for the free standing addition, built in 1936, that now houses the stacks and the children's section.

The Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., is open to the public, free of charge, Monday to Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Friday and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. It is closed on Saturdays during July and August.

The voice of historic Quincy.

Dorothy Quincy Homestead

John Hancock's Declaration Of Love

An aura of romance surrounds the stately old house that is set back in the trees from the corner of Hancock St. and Butler Rd., on the banks of Furnace Brook.

There is the wallpaper with its blue cupids and pink flowers that was imported from France for the wedding of Dorothy Quincy, the vivacious daughter of the house, to Quincy born John Hancock, a patriot on the run with a price on his head.

There are the words "You I Love and You alone," addressed by Hancock to his beloved Dorothy and scratched on a window pane with his diamond ring just before he fled to Lexington on the eve of the Revolution.

And there are the secret chambers and passageways, used, it was said, to hide fugitive patriots during the Revolution and, at an earlier date, even certain English men fleeing a charge of regicide in the death of King Charles I.

Parts of the house were built in 1685 by Col. Edmund Quincy, the second of the name, on land that was granted to an earlier Edmund in 1638. The major part was built in 1706 by Edmund the third. (There were six Edmunds in all, four in a direct line, two nephews.)

The house was the social center of old Braintree during the regime of the fourth Edmund, largely because he sired five beautiful daughters around whom swirled a whole future generation of judges, generals and merchant kings.

The undisputed belle of the household was Dorothy, the coquettish youngest of the eight Quincy children, whose troth was soon plighted to John Hancock, the wealthy young businessman from Boston who was already becoming known as a leader of the rebels.

Tradition has it that they were to have been married in the north parlor of the Quincy homestead with its French cupid wallpaper when Revolution intervened and John had to flee with the British on his heels.

Eventually, they were wed Aug. 28, 1775 at the home of Thaddeus Burr, uncle of Aaron Burr (later vice president of the United States) in Fairfield, Conn.

After the Revolution and the death of Edmund the fourth in 1788 the old house passed from the Quincy family. The Hancocks wanted nothing to do with it. Their only son, John George Washington Hancock, was killed in a skating accident at age 9 while on a visit in 1787.

The house was acquired in 1904 by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames, who restored it with vintage furniture, utensils and clothing, and gave it to the state with the proviso that the Dames continue to run it.

The truth is, because of family problems or low incomes, a lot of kids can't afford the opportunities to go places and be with adults who can give them the caring attention that they need.

That's why the YMCA is so important. We give kids the positive experiences they need to grow up prepared for happy and productive lives. But we always run out of money before we run out of kids.

QUINCY RECYCLING PROGRAM PAYS OFF

Quincy's recycling and leaf composting programs are great for several reasons.

First of all, recycling and composting preserve precious natural resources.

Second, several recyclable items and leaves are now BANNED by state law from Massachusetts landfills and incinerators.

Third, every ton we recycle and compost saves the city $47.50! That's how much the city pays Browning-Ferris Industries (B.F.I.) for trash disposal.

Fourth, the leaves we have been composting are being used to cover the city's old landfill. THIS YEAR ALONE we will save $125,000 because we won't have to buy as much loam.

Fifth, the city's contract with B.F.I. requires B.F.I. to share with us the revenue they receive from the sale of recycled items. In just the last three months alone, Quincy has earned $86,000! This is because the value of recycled paper is currently very high.

To take advantage of all these benefits, Quincy residents are STRONGLY encouraged to participate in the city's recycling program. Please do what you can for the environment and to save Quincy a great amount of money. For more information about the Quincy recycling program, please call 770-BINS.

John Quincy Adams:

The Old Flame Still Burned

The old man's bitterness glowed from every word as he penned them in his diary on June 17, 1843, the day the Bunker Hill Monument was dedicated.

"What a name in the annals of mankind is Bunker Hill! What a day was the 17th of June, 1775! And what a burlesque upon them both is an oration upon them by Daniel Webster!"

The old man despised Webster as a turncoat to his own heritage, one whose compromises had sold out to slavery.

"The ideal associations of the thundering cannon, which I heard, and the smoke of burning Charlestown, which I saw, on that awful day . . How could I have witnessed all this at once, without an unbecoming burst of indignation.

"Daniel Webster is a heartless traitor to the cause of freedom; John Tyler [the President] is a slave-monger. What have these to do with the Quincy granite pyramid on the brow of Bunker Hill?

"I stayed home . . "

The old flame still burned in John Quincy Adams at 75.

Josiah Quincy House

Lookout For Spying On British Ships

Abigail Adams stood with her great uncle, Col. Josiah Quincy, in a window of his mansion overlooking Wollaston Beach and watched the tall masts of 170 ships stand slowly out to sea. It was March 17, 1776. The British were evacuating Boston.

But even in triumph there was tragedy.

Aboard the departing ships were more than 1,000 Loyalists, Americans who had chosen King above country, and one of them was Abigail's cousin, Samuel Quincy, the Colonel's only remaining son, an avowed Tory.

"I take a long farewell," his sister, Hannah, wrote to him for one last time. "Let it not be published that a brother of such brothers fled from his country. Can you expect to walk uprightly now? Can you take fire in your bosom and not be burned?"

Two of Col. Josiah Quincy's sons had died young. Now he had no more.

But there was no time for regrets. The work of revolution had begun. The second floor of the house at what is now 20 Muirhead St., Wollaston, was a lookout from which the 66-year-old Colonel spied on British ship movements for his friend, Gen. George Washington.

A few months before, Col. Quincy watched the Royal Governor, Gen. Thomas Gage depart and he scratched on a pane of window glass the reminder: "Oct. 10, 1775, General Gage sailed for England with a fair wind."

This time he remained in the window for three days as the British tall ships moved restlessly about the Harbor as if reluctant to leave. Finally, on March 20, the last of them passed through the roadstead and out to sea.

The mansion in Wollaston reached full social flower under the aegis of the Colonel's grandson, the third Josiah, the "Great Mayor" of Boston, president of Harvard and Congressman, who called it "Tranquillia" and used it as his summer home.

It was there that the Marquis de Lafayette visited one Sunday afternoon after dinner with his friend, exPresident John Adams at the Adams Mansion. He carried flowers from the Adams garden for Mrs. Eliza Susan Quincy and her five attractive daughters.

The house was built in 1770 by the old Colonel himself, the first in a line of six Josiahs. It was said that, while most families passed their line from sire to son, the Quincys went from 'Siah to 'Siah.

But, while there were six Josiahs and innumerable Edmunds, the city was named for yet another member of the prolific family -- Col. John Quincy, the great grandfather of John Quincy Adams sixth president of the United States.

JOSIAH QUINCY HOUSE

The Josiah Quincy House is open to the public from June 1 to Oct. 15 Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. Tours are conducted on the hour and the last tour begins at 4 p.m. Visits may be made at other times by appointment. Admission is $2 for those over 16. All Quincy residents and SPNEA members are admitted free.

How Many Miles From Boston?

Stone mile markers across Hancock Street from each other indicate that the traveler is both 7¼ and 10 miles from Boston. And both are correct.

The 10-miles marker was placed on the Old Coast Road, one of the oldest highways in the United States still in existence, which went from Boston to Plymouth in 1639 by way of inland Milton.

The 7¼-mile marker was raised after the first bridge over the Neponset River was built in 1803, creating the Neponset Turnpike, which is today Hancock St. in North Quincy and Wollaston.

When Josiah Quincy IV built a house for his family, he considered location, beauty and community. He then chose the best spot in town ...

Abigail Adams Cairn

The Smoke Could Be Seen Over Bunker Hill

Abigail Adams was awakened at dawn in the farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill by the sound of far off guns. All through the sweltering morning of June 17, 1775, as she hustled about with the chores, the dull boom of cannon intruded on her consciousness.

Riders on the Coast Road to Plymouth, stopping at the farm house for a drink of water, told her of a great battle underway on Breed's Hill in Charlestown.

One of them brought word that Dr. Joseph Warren had been killed in the fighting and little Abby, age 10, burst into tears , and John Quincy, nearly 8, felt bewildered and sad, for Dr. Warren was the Adams family doctor in Boston.

In the afternoon, Abigail could stand it no longer. Taking Abby and John Quincy by the hand, she walked up the Coast Road to the top of Penn's Hill and climbed up on the rocks for a better view.

The panorama of the Bay, a shimmering blue in the sunshine, spread out before them, the tiny houses on the three hills of Boston and, beyond, the black smoke rising in billows.

"Good God," exclaimed Abigail, "they are burning Charlestown!"

The scene etched itself forever in John Quincy's memory.

The early days of the Revolution were times of turmoil in Old Braintree and its North Precinct, which was later called Quincy.

Abigail's husband, John, was away most of the time at the Continental Congress in Philadelphia, leaving 31 year old Abigail to manage the farm and look to the needs of four small children, Abigail, John Quincy, Charles, 5, and Thomas Boylston, 3.

There were days of alarm as the British, penned up in Boston by the brand new Continental Army, foraged up and down the coast for supplies. Refugees from occupied Boston and the inner towns of Dorchester and Roxbury sometimes slept in the kitchen and in the fields.

As the wife of a member of Congress, Abigail was a center of attention. The house on the Coast Road was a favorite stopping place for travelers to Plymouth. Politicians up from Philadelphia made it a point to stop by for a visit with John Adams' wife.

Abigail was invited to visit Gen. George Washington's headquarters at Winter Hill. The aristocratic Washington was suspect among New Englanders. He was a Virginian; he was an Anglican; and, it was said, he held slaves. But John Adams liked him and Abigail was soon charmed.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN

One day, young John Quincy came home to find his Uncle Elihu melting down Abigail's pewter spoons in the kitchen to make bullet molds. He looked at his mother and she looked back at him and something indefinable passed between them.

"Do you wonder," wrote the sixth president of the United States some 68 years later, "that a boy of 7 who witnessed this scene should be a patriot."

In 1896, where the old Coast Road (now Franklin St.) meets Viden Rd. atop Penn's Hill a stone cairn was built to mark the spot where Abigail and young John Quincy watched the Battle of Bunker Hill. It is open to the public free of charge.

First Iron Works

Steel Industry Born Here In 1644

It failed after nine years of effort and, since failure was anathema in a growing America, perhaps that is why the site and even the memory of the first commercial iron blast furnace in the United States was lost for so long.

It flourished, if that is the word, from 1644 to 1653 on the banks of the Mount Wollaston River in a section of Old Braintree called, "the Woods." It left its name on the river, now Furnace Brook in West Quincy.

Iron was an important commodity in Colonial Massachusetts, particularly for nails and pots and pans. Unfortunately, iron utensils had to be imported from England, a costly process for the penny-wise colonists.

With this in mind, John Winthrop Jr., son of the governor of the Massachusetts Bay colony [Did someone cry "Nepotism?"], went to London and formed the "Company of Undertakers for the Ironworks in New England." He, of course, was the local agent.

The Company gave Winthrop a thousand pounds of capital and a work crew of indentured servants, many of whom ran away when they heard they were going to the wilds of America. Jail was better than that!

When, after a search from Maine to Plymouth, he decided to locate in Quincy, Winthrop was also granted 3,000 acres of land, with subsidiary land rights elsewhere in the colony, and a 21-year monopoly.

The operation was deemed of such importance that the iron workers were given exemption from militia duty, this at a time when war was imminent with the Narragansett Indians and with Ninigret, sachem of the Niantics.

The first iron was turned out in 1644, but young Winthrop was fired the next year, to be succeeded by Richard Leader. It is interesting to note that one of America's earliest magnates toiled for a salary of 100 pounds a year.

The ore from which iron was blasted on the banks of Furnace Brook came from the swamps and bogs. It was not a high quality product. Water power from a dram thrown across the Brook was inadequate. Quincy iron proved to be more expensive than the imported kind.

The Company of Undertakers appealed for fresh money in 1646 and apparently there were enough investors ready to send good money after bad because the furnace was still in operation in 1650 when the Scotch Prisoners arrived.

The Scots were rugged Highlanders, soldiers in the army of the future King Charles II who were captured by Oliver Cromwell in the Battle of Dunbar. They suffered the fate common to most 17th Century prisoners of war.

Cromwell shipped 272 of them to New England, cheap labor in an effort to make Quincy iron works a paying proposition. It didn't work. The Company of Undertakers went bankrupt in 1653 and "the Woods" went back to the bear and the deer.

Meanwhile, with the same Richard Leader as agent, construction began on a second iron works on the North Shore in Saugus in 1646. When it was completed in 1650 it was recognized as the first integrated iron industry in America.

Adams Academy

On Site Of John Hancock's Birthplace

ADAMS ACADEMY, now home of the Quincy Historical Society.

By modern standards, the boarding house at the corner of Hancock and Depot Sts. had all the aspects of a genteel prison.

Residents were forbidden to leave between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. They could not enter or leave at any time except by the hall door. They were banned from pool halls and bars. Smoking materials also were forbidden to them.

In exchange for good behavior, plus tuition ranging from $75 to $150 a year, they were given the best prep school education of the day for they were students at Adams Academy, which flourished from 1872 to 1907 in Quincy.

The academy was a gift of John Adams, the second President of the United States, who always had his checkbook ready to fill the spiritual and educational needs of the citizens of his beloved Quincy.

The trust fund, nourished by "rents, profits and emoluments" from certain Adams-owned properties, was set up in the Adams will of 1822, but it was not until 1869 that the fund was deemed large enough to start construction.

The location was specified by Adams himself as the corner of Adams and Hancock Sts., site of the birthplace of his childhood friend, John Hancock, the first signer of the Delcaration of Independence.

The doors opened to the first students, 24 of them, on Sept. 4, 1872. Five years later, the academy reached a peak enrollment of 154 with an international student body ---25 from Quincy, four from Washington, D.C., 125 and 14 states, two from England and one from Chile.

It had one of the earliest prep school football teams, too, recording a tie with the Resolutes of Boston on Oct. 21, 1876, a scant seven years after Princeton and Rutgers played the first college game. It whipped Andover three times from 1877-79.

The admissions catalogue specified that applicants be "well prepared in the usual studies of good grammar schools" and warned that "no pupils are desired to give them a collegiate education."

The best known headmaster was Dr. William Everett, once acclaimed as one of the seven smartest men in the world. He ran the academy with a firm hand from 1878 to 1893 and again from 1897 to 1907. From 1893 to 1897, he was a U.S. congressman from Lynn.

Dr. Leverett, an aimiable if sometimes waspish eccentric, was widely known as the man who hated Abraham Lincoln. He had reason. His father was Edward Everett, whose masterful oration at Gettysburg was over-shadowed by Lincoln's notes scribbled on the back of an envelope.

It was Dr. Everett who signaled the passing of Adams Academy --- and many other 19th Century classical prep schools --- at graduation exercises in 1907 when he said that "unless someone comes forward and planks down $50,000, the academy will be closed."

Nobody did and on June 22, 1907, the Adams Academy officially closed it doors.

The building today is occupied by the Quincy Historical Society, which maintains a museum and research library in the old classrooms as well as an expanded gift shop.

The museum and gift shop are open all year, Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m. The library is open Monday and Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m. or by appointment. It is closed Sunday and holidays. There is a $1 fee for non-members; children age 12 and under are admitted free.

Moswetuset Hummock

'Birthplace Of Massachusetts'

The Indians saw it as a hill (wetuset) shaped like an arrowhead (mos) so they called it "Moswetuset" and when English tongues got through mangling the word it came out "Massachusetts," which became the name of the bay and then the state.

The little wooded hillock near the junction of East Squantum St. and Quincy Shore Drive was once the seat of the sachem Chickatabot, who comes down through the pages of Quincy history as a rather pathetic figure.

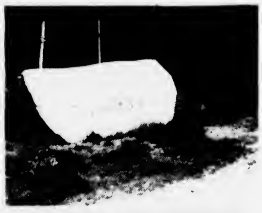
He was the chief of the Moswetuset Indians, a once great tribe that occupied the coast north of Plymouth.

A few years before, under the great sachem Nanepashemet, the Moswetuset had been able to field some 3,000 warriors for a war with the Nanepashemet was killed.

Then came the plague.

In two years the mighty Moswetuset were all but wiped out. No more than 60 of them were left to till their fields on the banks of the Neponset River. Sachem Chickatabot fled his home on the hill in Wollaston and took refuge on Moswetuset Hummock.

That was the situation in 1621 when Capt. Myles Standish landed from a shallop with an exploring party of Plymouth Pilgrims that included the Indian guide Squanto (or Tsquantum), whose name was given to the peninsula that stuck out in the bay.



MOSWETUSET HUMMOCK

The tragic Chickatabot died not long after the Pilgrims' visit and he was succeeded as sachem by his son, Josiah Wampatuck, a boy who knew a good deal when he saw one.

Wampatuck sold what was left of his virtually deserted tribal lands to a group of whites for 12 pounds, 10 shillings. The lands included most of what is today the city of Quincy and the towns of Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook.

Moswetuset Hummock, identified by a marker stone and maintained in its natural state, is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Abigail Adams Wife, Mother Of Presidents

Mrs. John Adams, the former Abigail Smith of Weymouth, is the only woman to be wife of one president and mother of another --- and she could have been grandmother of a vice president.

Husband John was chief executive from 1797 to 1801; son of John Quincy occupied the White House from 1825 to 1829; and grandson Charles Francis Adams ran for vice president on the Free Soil ticket in 1848.

An early advocate of women's rights, Abigail Adams once wrote to her husband, John:

"In the new code of laws which I suppose it will be necessary for you to make, I desire you would remember the ladies and be more generous and favorable to them than your ancestors.

"Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of the husbands. Remember, all men would be tyrants if they could."

ABIGAIL ADAMS

Abigail Adams: A Woman Of Special Honors

Abigail (Smith) Adams was the only woman to be the wife of one President and mother of another.

She was the wife of John Adams, our second President.

She died in 1818, however, and did not see her son John Quincy Adams elected our sixth President.

John Adams did live to see his son become President in 1825.

A Third Generation Continues Our Traditions.

Quincy has changed a great deal since Sweeney Funeral Home was established in 1917. But, it's nice to know some things will never change. Like the observance of traditional values and customs.

At Sweeney Funeral Homes, older residents are quick to notice the subtle reminders of yesteryear, such as the grey gloves our funeral director still wears. Like the characteristic top hat and tails that our founder, Dennis Sweeney, wore over 30 years ago, they reflect our Tradition. One that has been built on a dignified and instinctive concern for the city's bereaved families for three generations.

Today, our founder's grand-nephew, Dennis S. Sweeney has continued the family's philosophy of maintaining a beautiful, home-like atmosphere.

And like his namesake, who started pre-arrangements in the 1940s, Dennis believes in helping residents to plan for the future. Pre-planning means that this financial decision is not left for a family to decide while they are attempting to cope with a major personal loss. It's a difficult time, a time when family members are least able to make the wisest choice.

Sweeney Funeral Homes has been helping South Shore residents with difficult decisions for over 70 years. Call Dennis Sweeney at (617) 773-2728 for a free consultation. There's no time like the present.

Hancock Cemetery

Patriots, Early Settlers, Intrigue Buried Here

Henry, the first Adams in Quincy, is buried there. So is the Rev. John Hancock, father of the first signer of the Declaration of Independence. And Col. John Quincy, for whom the city is named.

But of all the 800 graves in the Hancock Cemetery, the Old Burying Ground of Colonial Quincy, most intriguing is one marked by a tombstone bearing this cryptic epitaph:

"Erected to the memory of John R. Grieve: Died Nov. 12, 1850, age 22 years, and Hannah Banks, his wife, died Nov. 12, 1850, age 15 years. Both of Zanesville, Ohio. Deluded by the writings of A.J. Davis."

The mystery of John and Hannah has never been fully solved.

They came to Quincy in 1850, not as man and wife, but as male cousins, John Green and George Sands. They obtained work in a shoe factory but rarely left their lodgings on Elm St., spending long hours reading books on spiritualism.

Co-workers thought that George Sands looked frail, almost effeminate. It was widely suspected that "he" was a girl. A scheme was devised to test the theory.

One day at lunch one of the shoe workers tossed George an apple. A man would catch it by closing his legs; a woman by spreading her skirt. Guess what "George" did!

Humiliated, John and Hannah never went back to the factory. Nor did they ever return to the house on Elm St. Their frozen bodies were found next spring by rabbit hunters on Penn's Hill, locked in a loving embrace.

Several months later, the father of John Grieve arrived from Ohio to bury the young couple. It was he who directed the words to be chiselled on the headstone. He explained no further.

A.J. Davis was never identified for sure. But Andrew Jackson Davis, a spiritualist, hypnotist and faith healer, was then practicing in Boston.

Among the belongings found in the Elm St. lodging house were these words, written by 15-year-old Hannah Banks:

"To the oppressed and down-trodden, to the suffering and afflicted, I would cry out...Death is only an event, only a circumstance in the eternal life experience of the human soul. Death is simply a birth into a new and perfect state of existence."

Not far from the grave of John and Hannah is a tomb bearing words that cry out of an earlier injustice:

"Three precious friends under this tombstone lie

"Patterns to aged, youth and infancy.

HANCOCK CEMETERY

"A great mother, her learned son, with child.

"The first and least went free. He was exiled.

"In love to Christ, this country, and dear friends

"He left his own, cross'd seas and for amends

"Was here extoll'd, and envy'd all in a breath,

"His noble consort leaves, is drawn to death,

"Stranger changes may befall us ere we die,

"Blest they who will arrive eternity.

"God grant some names, O thou New England's friend.

"Don't sooner fade than thine, if times don't mend."

The tomb with its hidden message contains the family of the Rev. Leonard Hoar, third president of Harvard College, a man too liberal for his times.

He was forced by the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Colony to resign at the instigation of religious opponents and jealous colleagues for permitting Harvard to "languish and decay." Eight months later in November 1675, he was dead at 45.

In 1975, the same General Court, now of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, righted the 300-year-old wrong done to the Rev. Mr. Hoar by "proclaiming and confirming his innocence of any misdeeds while president of Harvard College."

The cemetery, on Hancock St., Quincy Sq., next to City Hall, is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

The Centerpiece Of The U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum

USS Salem: Quincy's Newest Tourist Attraction

The USS SALEM is Quincy's newest tourist attraction.

Built at Quincy's renowned Fore River Shipyard, she became the Flagship of the United States Navy's Sixth Fleet during the Cold War years in the 1950's.

The SALEM is over 700 feet long and carries the heaviest automatic main battery guns in any warship of any navy. As the most powerful gunned warship in the fleet, she was a bulwark of democracy in the Mediterranean and the Caribbean Seas.

She carried a crew of over 1600 men, and traveled at a cruising speed of 35 knots. Today, visitors can tour the Main Deck, Number 3 Turret, Admiral's and Captain's Bridges, and other sources of interest. Guided tours by today's uniformed crew will take guests through the Second Deck where they can see how the SALEM's crew lived and worked.

Of special note are the crew's gallery and bake shop, the barber shop, where one can actually get a haircut when the barber is on duty, and the machine shops where the actual work is done to restore the ship. Real sailors will want to see the CIC (Combat Information Center), the nerve center of the ship where she was controlled and fought from, Engine Space Number 1, where her powerful battleship class propulsion system drove her through the sea, and her berthing compartments, where Sailor and Marine lived their lives. A well-stocked Museum Shop is on board in the ship's store where souvenirs and gifts as well as actual artifacts can be purchased.

Senior citizens, school groups, and Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts as well as other organizations are welcome and can reserve tour times in advance if desired. The ship will be available for overnight encampments and other special activities.

The quarterdeck and other large spaces aboard the ship can be reserved for parties, corporate meetings, dinner functions and other uses. An Operations Specialist can arrange for catering and other amenities to make the SALEM a great place to have a function. Tours are always available daily, but large groups, (20 or more), should make advance arrangements.

The wintertime will bring special events like the "North Atlantic Cruise" where a weekend long series of events chronicling what a winter cruise on the SALEM would be like. These events are interpreted by actual former SALEM crewmembers. There will be period Motion Picture Films and the ever present "training films" showing on board, as well as plenty of hot coffee.

Spring, summer and fall are the sun times aboard the ship, and with her awnings rigged, you will be transported to some of the SALEM's many ports of call. A motor whaleboat can take you on a tour of the shipyard where the SALEM and many other great ships were built, and where women played a key role in our nation's defense with their contribution to the war effort. Children and grown ups alike can ride in a captured enemy tank on the museum ground, (there will be a small charge for the boat and tank ride). The Second Marine Division, SALEM Detachment will drill and perform on the parade grounds next to the ship, (check ahead for exact dates and times), and the Massachusetts Military Research Center will be open for research and viewing its extensive collection of armaments, uniforms, and memorabilia.
